DISCUSS SALES TAX ANEW AT WHITE HOUSE

Hoover Calls Press to Aid Nation.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—President Hoover, turning to the press of the nation, tonight discussed means of aiding the nation's economic situation and rallying public opinion in local communities behind a breaking of the legislative jam in congress.

Various opinions upon the course and effect of the conference came from the thirty-nine leading publishers or their representatives as they emerged after midnight from a three hour meeting in the President's study.

From one of those at the conference came a definite statement that the sales tax was presented as the one best means of breaking the legislative jam in which congress now finds itself, and that President Hoover himself held this view.

Others, however, disputed this and maintained that although the sales tax was mentioned among other topics there was no agreement upon it, and that the chief executive did not commit himself to its revival in the pending revenue bill.

Finds Greater House Support.

The President was quoted as saying he believed that if the sales tax ever came to a vote again in the house there would be a far larger number voting for it than at the time of its overthrow. He also was quoted as saying that Acting Chairman Crisp of the house ways and means committee would confer with him at the White House tomorrow. It was asserted that Crisp had been assured by 43 Democrats who refused to support the sales tax that they are now prepared to accept it should the senate place it in the revenue bill now being considered in that chamber.

To Clear Legislative Jam.

It was learned that an effort was initiated at an earlier meeting to rally support not only among the publishers present but throughout the press of the nation generally for a concerted move to break the legislative jam on Capitol hill.

Although no definite agreement was reached, there was definite support for an idea that not only the publishers present but the press of the nation should endeavor to rally public pressure behind an early passage of budget balancing measures.

TAX DELAY CALLED MENACE

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—A runaway senate tonight was brought back to calmer consideration of the revenue bill by a bipartisan appeal which insisted that further delays meant real peril to the country.

The appeal was made by David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] and Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.]. Mr. Reed said the main thing was not the choice between methods of taxation, but the necessity of balancing the budget.

"What we do," he declared, "determines the standing of America's commercial integrity in the eyes of the world and in the pages of history."

During the last week, said Senator Reed, 127 millions in gold has been withdrawn from the United States by foreign countries "in the same spirit that frightened depositors draw out their deposits from some bank about which rumors have been circulated."

Dread Moratoriums.

He pointed out the financial straits of Austria and other Danubian states saying that they might be driven to declare moratoriums. He warned lest the United States, for want of sound courage, be driven along the same course.

"Our depositors are making a run on the bank," he said. "We can stand that run longer than our depositors think we can, but there is an end to the run we can stand.

"The process of 'withdrawal' will stop the very instant the world knows that here in this chamber we have the courage to balance our national budget, to pay as we go, to maintain our money in its present soundness."

He referred to the waiting Vandenberg amendment, to strike out the passenger car tax altogether. "No one wanted to tax automobiles, or any other commodity or enterprise, he said, but preservation of the country must go ahead of the wishes of any particular business.

Life of Nation Involved.

"It is more than the convenience of taxes," Senator Reed concluded. "It is more than a choice between this one or that one. It is a question that goes to the very life of our nation."

If the passenger car tax went out

CERMAK RAKES BOARD FOR HIGH BUILDING COSTS

Myers' Re-Election Brings Charges.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Six holdover trustees reelected Lewis E. Myers president of the board of education yesterday afternoon.

"This solid six reelected Myers to protect themselves," commented Mayor Cermak. "That was their purpose."

Following this, the mayor gave out a report of an investigation of two junior high schools, in the construction of which, he charged, there was an "excess profit of $1,015,391."

Investigating for a Year.

"Those are some of the 33 cent a cubic foot schools that the former city administration said it built," added the mayor, "and the solid six holdover trustees from that administration desire to protect themselves. They know that my advisory committee has been investigating the cost of schools for a year. This is the first shot, but not the hottest. These solid six trustees want to go on spending whether they have the money or not. The Lord help the teachers with that old gang still running the schools."

The six who voted for Myers were Myers himself, Joseph P. Savage, James A. Hemingway, John A. English, H. Wallace Caldwell, and Carter Blatchford.

"Blatchford came to me voluntarily," said Mayor Cermak, "and said that the trustees I had appointed had the interests of the school pupils at heart and he desired to go along with them. He said he would vote to defer the election, then—in political parlance—he double crossed me."

The mayor's charge of $1,015,391 "waste, extravagance, excess profits, or whatever it was"—to use the mayor's words—was easily the sensation of a busy day in school affairs. Especially so, since he asserted he will make other and more startling disclosures.

Compares Two Schools.

The one last night compared the cost of the Wright Junior High school at 3400 North Austin avenue with the Proviso school in Maywood, which is approximately the same size. The investigation was made by a corps of architects, engineers, and contractors. The Wright school cost $1,645,341 and the Maywood school $1,033,744. The Wright school contains 3,351,000 cubic feet and the Maywood school 3,234,900 cubic feet.

Another comparison submitted by the mayor is between Kelvyn Park Junior high school at 4343 Wrightwood avenue and another school outside the city. The Kelvyn Park school cost $809,778, while the school outside of the city cost $405,984. The cubic contents of the Kelvyn Park school are 1,619,000 as compared to 1,528,749 for the outside school.

Switching back to the comparison of the Wright and Maywood schools the experts said the Maywood school "is a fine example of architecture from the viewpoint of utility, good building construction, the proper use of materials and restraint from lavish expenditure"; of the Wright school, the experts simply said "It is well constructed."

Libraries Contrast.

Another striking contrast presented by the experts relates to the school libraries. Regarding the Maywood school they reported: "There is a large two story library with balcony." Relative to the Wright school the report says: "There is a library little larger than a classroom."

The investigators also reported that the cafeteria and serving room of the Maywood school are "well ventilated and attractive," but the service rooms of the Wright school failed to draw such commendation.

Some of the examples of where money was "wasted or excess profits made" on the Chicago school are contained in a comparison of the costs of various items as shown in the following table:

Kind of work—	Wright school.	Maywood school.
Masonry and carpentry	$835,000	$414,198
Plastering	100,536	54,929
Painting	31,834	13,720
Glass	24,797	5,779
Heating	264,729	138,030
Plumbing	91,482	59,911
Electric wiring	130,018	29,875
Ash conveyor	7,707	3,500
Lighting fixtures	11,728	7,820
Terrazzo work	147,444	104,298

The architects and engineers described the Kelvyn Park school as an addition to an old building," and of inferior quality." The report continues:

Jurors Acquit Swalwell in Kidnap Trial

Attorney Ward Swalwell was found not guilty of the kidnaping of Dr. Max Gecht and his wife by a jury last night. The verdict was returned in Judge Philip Sullivan's Criminal court after the jurors had deliberated four hours.

The defendant, who had nervously paced the corridors of the Criminal courts building during the debate of the jurors, appeared almost hysterical as the verdict was read. Just before the jurors came in, he told his attorney, Public Defender Wilbert Crowley, that he half expected the electric chair.

Weeps as Verdict Is Read.

When the clerk read the verdict, Swalwell jumped from his seat. He threw his arms around Attorney Crowley and wept. When the jurors were discharged, he went among them, tears in his eyes, wringing their hands.

"I'm all excited," he told them. "You know, my mind hasn't been what it should be. That was the reason I didn't take the stand."

Swalwell's failure to testify in his own behalf and the resting of the defense without putting on a single witness was a surprise move in the trial yesterday. It was regarded as a skillful stroke by Public Defender Crowley, who thus closed the case without permitting the state to introduce any rebuttal testimony which might have been damaging. Swalwell was formerly an assistant state's attorney.

Acquitted on Fourth Ballot.

The jurors retired at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon, after closing arguments were finished. They took four ballots, standing eight to two for acquittal on the first ballot, with two jurors not voting. Nine voted for acquittal on the second and third ballots and all agreed on a verdict of not guilty on the fourth ballot which was taken at 8 p. m.

The verdict was not read until 9:15 p. m. because there was a delay in reaching Judge Sullivan.

The jurors were reluctant to discuss their verdict, but one of them said that the state had not done more than point the finger of suspicion at Swalwell.

Four verdict forms were presented to the jury—one providing for acquittal, one for the death penalty, one for life imprisonment, and the fourth for a prison term of not less than five years.

"I can't say any more than what I said the night I was arrested," said Swalwell. "And that was that I acted merely as a friend of Dr. Gecht in negotiating with the kidnapers."

Pair to Be Sentenced Today.

Judge Sullivan this morning will sentence John Pingera and William Thomas, two of the kidnaping gang, who pleaded guilty after the trial started. Edward Finnen, another of those indicted, was freed by a directed verdict of not guilty at the close of the state's case.

The other two members of the gang trapped last January were Gus Sanger and Neil Montague. Montague escaped from the county jail. Sanger turned state's evidence before the grand jury and was not placed on trial. In his closing argument, Attorney Crowley stressed the fact that Sanger had not been prosecuted.

Dr. Gecht and his pretty blond wife were kidnaped last Dec. 10. The physician was released and paid $2,000 ransom for the release of his wife. The gangsters were trapped later because Sanger, infatuated with Mrs. Gecht, made a date to meet her, she kept the date, accompanied by detectives, who arrested Sanger.

Seabury Quiz Brings a Near Riot.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—Mayor James J. Walker fought for his political life today in one of the most turbulent and disorderly public hearings ever held in a courtroom.

In a duel with the white haired, calm Samuel Seabury, the dapper little mayor had a crowded, rowdy audience cheering him on to wisecrack after wisecrack despite the mountain of damaging evidence that piled up as the hours passed and which Mr. Walker had a minimum of success in explaining away.

The mayor's first day before the Hofstadter legislative committee investigating New York City affairs was more like circus day in a county seat town than a dignified court proceeding. It was a big show—one of the town's most extraordinary spectacles.

What Hearing Revealed.

Nevertheless, before Mr. Walker stepped down from the witness chair for a night's rest, these outstanding developments had been introduced and partly sifted:

1. The story of an adventure into high finance with Paul Block, the newspaper publisher, in which Mayor Walker made a profit of $246,892 in Wall street without putting up a penny. Nothing, it was testified, was said about covering losses because there never were any losses to be covered.

Mr. Walker made no attempt to explain the significance of his gifts from Mr. Block and left the idea that they were the result of "beneficence." Mr. Block at the time of the joint trading account with the mayor was heavily interested in a company seeking to sell titles to contractors building city subways.

Mysterious Letters of Credit.

2. The marking for identification of a number of mysterious and unexplained letters of credit issued to Mayor and Mrs. Walker. The marked exhibits in this instance were not introduced as evidence, the decision coming after long argument among members of the committee on the right to go into Mayor Walker's private and family life.

3. The fact that Mayor Walker's joint account with Mr. Block was frowned upon by federal income tax agents although the taxes were paid and that the trading account was later changed on the books of the brokerage firm of Baruch & Co. to the name of Paul and Max Block, Max being a brother.

$25,000 Every Few Weeks.

4. The revelation by Mayor Walker that he was being paid out of the trading fund at the rate of $25,000 every few weeks during 1927, 1928 and 1929 and that he was taking his money in cash and putting it in a safe in his home for "spending money for himself and Mrs. Walker."

5. The inability of Mr. Walker to explain why one of the Equitable Coach company's backers should have paid a $3,000 overdraft Walker made on a letter of credit in Paris in 1927.

Explains Letter of Credit.

6. The explanation by the mayor of a $10,000 letter of credit which he took to Europe to pay for "the party's personal expenditures" on a junket financed by Rodman Wanamaker. The mayor said every one—or almost every one—in the party contributed to the $10,000 pool and that it "just happened to be issued by the Equitable Trust company." He said he took $3,000 in cash from a safe in his home and turned it over to Senator John A. Hastings as his, the mayor's, share in the fund. He admitted that he drew an overdraft, but could not explain why it was paid by J. Allen Smith, backer of the Equitable Coach company, months later.

7. The accusation by the mayor that Mr. Seabury had been an agent of the traction interests and an intimation that Seabury was facing "a couple of lawsuits growing out of his traction company service."

It's Walker's Show.

There were many times during the long day in the crowded room when the mayor simulated wrath. There were other times when he was sincere in his anger. It was Walker's show

Gunman Slain as He Tries to Rob Policeman

One of three robbers was shot and killed early this morning in a revolver battle with Policeman John F. Kelly during an attempt to rob Kelly and his fiancée, Miss Helen Illanich, 26 years old, in 85th street near Bennett avenue. The two other robbers escaped.

Kelly, who is assigned to the East Side station, and Miss Illanich, who is employed in the office of the board of assessors, were sitting in his automobile near her home at 8503 Bennett avenue when the bandit trio drove up in a stolen car. They stopped in the middle of the street.

Policeman Opens Fire.

One man alighted and advanced toward the policeman and Miss Illanich with a pistol in his hand. As he uttered the command to "stick them up" Kelly opened fire. The bandit fired back, sending six bullets at Kelly. Three of them penetrated the window six inches behind the policeman.

Kelly's fourth bullet struck the bandit in the heart, dropping him dead to the street. As the shooting started the robber's confederates fled on foot. Cards in the slain gunman's pockets bore the name Earl J. Strauss, 5839 South Kilbourn avenue. He was about 26 years old.

Tells of Theft of Auto.

The automobile abandoned by the fugitive robbers was stolen at 9 o'clock last night from William Beagle, a salesman for the Becker Motor company, 3439 West 63d street. He identified the slain bandit as the man who, with another, stole the car. Beagle said that he picked up a youth at 63d street and Albany avenue, and at the latter's request drove to 59th and Mozart streets. There the robber who was later killed emerged from an alley, forced Beagle out of the car, and drove away with his friend.

Hits Auto of Chief Allman; Captured in Loop Chase

Mack Billingslea, a Negro living at 6503 Langley avenue, smashed the fender of a sedan while driving in the loop last night and sped away after the accident. The driver of the sedan was Police Commissioner Allman. Catching Billingslea at Clark and Madison streets after a block's chase, the commissioner reprimanded him for driving away and then signed a complaint charging reckless driving. Billingslea will be arraigned in the Speeders' court today.

STORM BREAKS HEAT; SHOWERS TODAY FORECAST

A rainstorm accompanied by considerable lightning swept the city last night, particularly the south side, felling power wires and even trees, and flooding basements. The rain, unofficially estimated at 1 inch, was part of a general downpour in the west and north and was welcomed by farmers and city gardeners as an end to a spring drought.

Thundershowers will hit Chicago this afternoon and tonight, according to J. R. Lloyd, government forecaster. This afternoon will be cool and this evening much cooler, he said.

Last night's rain broke the warm spell which at 7 o'clock registered 83 degrees, the day's maximum. The temperature had dropped to 67 degrees at 9 o'clock and at midnight it was 66. The rain flooded dozens of basements, including that of the Grand Crossing police station. The flag pole on the closed Bain bank at 6753 Stony Island avenue was splintered by lightning. Mrs. Clara Lagger, 60 years old, and her daughter, Arbutus, 16, of 600 West 61st street, were slightly injured when they stepped against a fallen electric wire and were struck to the pavement at 61st and Wallace streets.

8 Injured in Wild Fight in Prussian Diet

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, May 25.—More than 200 National Socialists and communists converted the Prussian parliamentary chamber into a bloody battleground today in the fiercest hand to hand fighting in the history of German parliaments. Eight deputies were injured, several of them seriously.

Chairs and ink stands hurtled from Hitlerite to communist and back again with painful effectiveness. A few knives flashed. Those who found no furniture or other objects at hand flailed about with fists.

After about fifteen minutes the fracas ended with the reds, who were outnumbered 57 to 162, ejected bodily, the Hitlerites triumphantly singing their battle song, and the legislative hall a wreck.

Furnishings Ruined.

Heavy, ornate oak table legs were splintered. The furnishings were ruined, while the profuse bloodshed had affected rugs all the way from the hall to the emergency treatment ward. Two deputies were borne out unconscious. One was Deputy Juergenson, a Socialist non-combatant, who had taken a nasty cut on his face.

The carnage started after votes for president and vice president of the diet had been taken. Hans Kerrl, National Socialist, was elected president, 262 to 157, and Ernst Wittmaack, Socialist, was named vice president.

Shortly thereafter Wilhelm Pieck, a communist, shouted out:

"There are murderers on the Nazi benches."

War Begins.

Then the war began. After a truce had been effected, one of the injured communists reëntered the chamber, shook his bandaged head and shouted:

"Twenty against one. You dogs. You'll pay for this!"

Both factions asked the committee of elders to forego a police investigation of the fight. Socialists and Centrists, however, insisted on an investigation since a prominent member of the Socialist party, who had nothing to do with the fight, was seriously injured. A communist girl deputy and a parliamentary stenographer were also among the casualties. The elders took no action, however.

The diet was adjourned until June 1 to enable the parties to negotiate for the nomination of a premier. If the Hitlerites succeed in winning this post they will be the masters of Prussia, the largest of all German states.

MAYOR WALKER PROFITS $246,600 WITHOUT INVESTMENT IN STOCK ACCOUNT

from a spectator viewpoint most of the time and the doughty, although badly worried, executive got in about three words for Mr. Seabury's one.

The mayor, once he had overcome early nervousness, kept the courtroom in a shrieking uproar by barbed repartee, bobbing of his head, lifted eyebrows, asides to the committee, shrugging of shoulders, simulated mock awe and terror, pounding of the arm of his chair, glaring exhibitions, finger pointing and wagging.

Dozen Talk at Once.

The mayor, however, did not do all the talking. There were minutes when a dozen or more were shouting questions and answering them all at once—some of the interrogators arising from their seats in the audience. One strong lunged spectator threw the room into an uproar by shouting hysterically:

"How do you like it, Sam; how do you like it? You can't take it, Sam, but Jimmy can."

There was a second major disturbance in the afternoon which for a time threatened to break up the proceedings. The hecklers of Mr. Seabury and Mr. Walker were red hot, the courtroom atmosphere was even hotter. The mayor leaned forward in his chair, stuck out his chin, waved a finger threateningly in the astonished Mr. Seabury's face and shouted:

"I want to know if you are trying to prove I accepted a bribe?"

"The subject matter is exceedingly suspicious——" began Mr. Seabury when the room began to echo to sounds of mixed cheering and hissing. After every one had become breathless the noise ceased and Mr. Seabury resumed:

"I think I ought to be permitted to question this witness regardless of the Tammany demonstrations."

"I'd like to discuss that remark about Tammany demonstrations," shouted the mayor and the roar of the crowd began anew. The calling of a ten minute recess saved the hearing from complete disruption.

Room Like Picnic Ground.

Earlier in the hearing court attendants had managed to keep a semblance of order, but the noon recess proved their undoing. Every one remained in the vicinity of the room and most of the crowd ate their lunch and drank soda pop with the same abandon they would at a carnival. When the hearing was resumed two persons occupied each seat formerly occupied by one, windows were filled and discarded bits of luncheon littered the floor until it resembled a picnic ground.

Outside several thousand struggled with police to get inside the building.

Large, important looking gold and silver police badges blossomed on blue serge clad civilians and the courtroom was more than seventy-five per cent Tammany. It would have been virtually impossible to have cleared the courtroom even had such threats been put to the test.

Take Up Joint Stock Account.

The financial partnership between Mr. Walker and Mr. Block occupied the closing hour of the hearing. It began calmly enough, gradually growing more heated until it developed into a wrangle over letters of credit issued to the mayor's wife.

"Mr. Mayor, between Feb. 10, 1927, and Aug. 5, 1929, was there a joint account opened between Paul Block and yourself?" Mr. Seabury began the questioning.

MR. WALKER—There was a joint account, but I don't recall the date.

Q.—And was that account initially in Paul Block's name and your own name, and subsequently changed from that to a joint account in the name of Paul Block and Max Block? A.—I don't know of that of my own knowledge, but Mr. Block has told me.

Q.—At whose request was this account opened? A.—Upon nobody's request, but upon his own determination.

No Investment, All Profits.

Q.—Did you personally make any deposits to the credit of that account? A.—Nobody made any deposit to the credit of that account.

Q.—Well, it must have been started some way. Was it started by any stock or cash put up my you? A.—It was not. It was started upon Mr. Block's splendid credit and reputation, without any deposit.

Q.—Did you agree to stand any of the loss that might arise in the course of trading in that account? A.—I was ready to.

Q.—Did you have any agreement to that effect? A.—Mr. Block made no agreement about the matter.

Q.—Don't you know that it was the understanding that you should not so contribute? A.—There was no understanding that I should not. The subject was never discussed.

Q.—Did you have any discussion with Mr. Block as to the manner in which the account should be handled? A.—There was no understanding, but a method developed.

Q.—What was the method that developed? A.—By Mr. Block's determination. When he drew any money from that account he drew a similar amount for me and gave it to me. When, on a couple of occasions, I can't say how many, upon his inquiry whether I needed any money, if the reply was in the affirmative he drew the amount and drew a similar amount for himself, so he told me, to keep the account even and balanced.

Q.—As a matter of fact, did you make requests for withdrawals from that account before any profits had yet accrued? A.—I think there was always profit in it.

Q.—But beyond the amount of the profit? A.—Never beyond the amount of the profit.

Q.—I hand you a memorandum, furnished to us by Mr. Max Block, being his communication to Mr. Paul Block. Would you be good enough to look at it and read it, and tell us whether or not the facts in it, so far as you know, are correct? A.—Shall I read it aloud?

Mr. Seabury—No, read it to yourself.

Reads History of Account.

Mr. Seabury—Mr. Schurman, will you please read the exhibit for me?

Mr. Schurman—To P. B., which is Paul Block, from M. Block, which is Max Block: "On Feb. 10, 1927, you opened a joint account for yourself and Mayor Walker with S. W. Baruch & Co. On that date you bought for this joint account 1,000 shares of Lackawanna Railroad and 1,000 shares of General Motors. From that time on you continued buying and selling on this joint account until Aug. 6, 1929, when the last securities were sold and the account closed."

The list of withdrawals in Mr. Walker's favor were covered in the letter, which continued:

"Your ledger, of course, contains a complete list of all transactions which were made for this joint account.

"The account was opened in the name of 'Paul Block and J. J. Walker.'

Advised Joint Account Unwise.

"Some time after the account had been opened [I do not recollect whether it was late in 1927 or very early in 1928] an agent of the income tax department named Herskowitz called to examine your income tax return for 1925 or 1926. In going through your ledger he saw the ledger sheet marked 'Paul Block and J. J. Walker, joint account.'

"He commented upon it, saying that he believed it unwise to carry an account with which the mayor's name was connected, because, while he could see that there was nothing discreditable about such transactions some people might suspect ulterior motives, and he would advise that instead of having the mayor appear as one of the two parties of this joint account it would be better to substitute another name.

"I requested S. W. Baruch & Co. to change the name of the account so as to have it 'Paul Bock and Max Block, joint account,' and I caused the same change to be made on your ledger.

Profits Paid Income Tax.

"The mayor did not receive all of the above scheduled payments. Some of the money drawn in 1928 went to pay the state and federal income taxes on the profits [all of which profits were included in my income tax return.]

"This has been fully explained to the treasury department which has investigated the matter thoroughly and has found that all taxes due to the government have been paid.

"In addition to the money drawn by Mayor Walker on profits from the stock transactions you loaned him some money in November, 1928 [$5,200 and $25,000], all of which was paid back in 1929.—M. B."

Mayor Kept No Records.

A.—The dates and the amounts, I don't know. I assume that if Mr. Max Block says they are correct they are.

Q.—I want to know whether the substance of that is correct?

A.—I kept no independent record of the amounts and no books or papers about it. That his ledger contains a complete list of all the transactions I don't know, but I assume that is so, especially if Mr. Max Block says so. The conversation or the suggestion made by the internal revenue collector, I know nothing about, and never heard of it before, but again, if Mr. Block says that conversation took place, it must have. The fact that the names were changed, I heard about. When, I don't know, but no such reason was ever ascribed to me by Mr. Block. This part, I hope, is true, "that the mayor did not receive all the above scheduled payments. Some of them went to pay the federal income tax and the state."

Q.—The income tax? A.—I hope that is true [laughter].

Mr. Seabury then got Mr. Walker's admission that he had indorsed the checks made out to him from the Block account, but that he always "took the cash."

Q.—Now, what did you do with the cash, Mr. Mayor? A.—Took it home and put it in a safe. Not a vault, not a tin box—a safe in my house. [Laughter; gavel]. I mean, to distinguish that, seriously.

Didn't Want to Mix Money.

Q.—Did you deposit that in any bank? A.—I did not. None of that money from the Block account was deposited in a bank, but kept in my safe in my home available for Mrs. Walker and myself.

Mr. Seabury handed the mayor some checks to identify.

"They bring back fond memories," Mr. Walker replied.

Q.—Well, what did you do with the cash from this check, Mr. Mayor? A.—Same thing.

Q.—Put it in your safe in your home? A.—They were put in the safe, for the same reason, that these moneys were all tax paid, and I never deposited them in a bank where they might be confused with or associated with moneys that were not tax paid. That is my reason.

Mr. Seabury began to add up.

Q.—That makes $102,500 which you received within five months in 1927. Can't you give the committee some idea of the disposition that you made of it? A.—No, I cannot.

Quarrel Over Credits to Wife.

Q.—Will you be good enough to look at this letter of credit in favor of Mrs. Walker on Jan. 2, 1930, and tell me whether or not that was made on your authority?

MR. CUVILLIER—I object to that question as highly improper—as to that letter of credit payable to Mrs. Walker, the witness' wife. What have the affairs of the committee to do with that? It is not proper. It is not decent. What affair is it of the committee, with regard to the witness obtaining money for his wife—what is that of our affair?

MR. McNABOE—Is there any limit, Mr. Chairman——

MR. CUVILLIER—To decency and courtesy and respect?

MR. McNABOE—Any limit to prying into persons' private affairs? Haven't we struck the limit yet, after fourteen months of this kind of work? Is there no sense of decency in the members of this committee?

MR. SEABURY—Can't we proceed free from insults by the learned Senator McNaboe?

MR. McNABOE—Objection is not always insult.

Letters of Credit Enter.

It was here that the "mystery letters of credit" were introduced.

THE CHAIRMAN—Please mark those papers relating to the same matter as one exhibit.

Q.—Will you be good enough to look at those papers [hands to witness] and tell me whether or not they represent a letter of credit and increases that were authorized by you? Please just say yes or no to that question. A.—They were not authorized by me.

Q.—They are payable, however, are they not, to the same person to whom the check for $7,500 was paid from the Paul Block account which you authorized? A.—Evidently.

MR. SEABURY—I ask that it be noted upon them, without my offering them in evidence, that the witness identifies the papers that are handed to him, although they have already been marked.

Q.—Do you know whether the letters of credit referred to therein were arranged for by Russell T. Sherwood? A.—I don't know.

Q.—And you made the same answers, I take it, to any increase that may have been made to that letter? A.—The same answer.

Traction Deals Excite Mayor.

Another clash occurred when Mr. Seabury mentioned several deals made by the Block-Walker partnership in Interborough Rapid Transit and Brooklyn Rapid Transit stocks, both city controlled traction companies.

The mayor grew excited and demanded that a letter from Max Block to the legislative committee be read aloud. The letter was read and in it Max Block said in substance that as soon as he "discovered the fund was being used to trade in traction stocks" he ordered the stocks sold.

There was a profit of several thousands of dollars, Max Block wrote, and none of the money went to Mayor Walker. His brother Paul, Max wrote, split the transaction profits with his wife because he was too close a friend of Mayor Walker to permit him to be criticized about trading in a city stock when the mayor knew nothing about the deal.

Start Bus Franchise Quiz.

At the outset of the examination Mr. Seabury plunged into the Equitable bus franchise affair which has been the subject of so many sensational disclosures in previous sessions. The examination proceeded:

Q.—Mr. Mayor, at the time the Equitable Coach company's application for a franchise was under consideration by the city authorities, there was also, was there not, an application for a franchise from the Service Bus company?

A.—Surface or service?

Q.—Service. A.—I think there was.

Q.—And in accordance with the usual procedure, they were referred, were they not, to the board of transportation? A.—That was the custom, so I assume that.

Q.—The board of transportation did report upon both of these applications, did it not? A.—I assume they did. I have no independent recollection of the fact. I say that because I don't know of any company upon which they were asked to report which they either declined or neglected to.

Invested on Best Offer.

Mr. Seabury asked several questions evidently designed to indicate that the promise of the Equitable Coach company was not the best one received, to which the mayor replied that the best offer the city ever had received had come from men in the bay and feed business on Long island.

From this Mr. Seabury skipped to the question of security and a $100,000 check another company was said to have filed with its offer. In reply Mayor Walker suggested that $100,000 was not enough to finance a bus company and added that "a $100,000 check from one man to fulfill a $20,000 contract mightn't be as good as J. Pierpont Morgan's mere promise."

After a colloquy over the length of franchise wanted by the bus companies, whether they wanted a ten or twenty-five year franchise, Mr. Seabury asked the mayor to identify a report which he did as a report of the board of transportation. The mayor asked if it had been shown to John H. Delaney, chairman of the board of transportation.

Q.—Generally speaking, you relied largely on his judgment in these franchise matters? A.—Not only relied upon it, but was very glad to get it.

Q.—But you did rely upon it. A.—Largely, yes.

At this point Assemblyman Irwin Steingut, Democrat, interposed, somewhat triumphantly, to declare that the Service Bus company had wanted a twenty-five year franchise.

"I thought so," remarked the mayor. "You were asking me technical questions six years old," he added—to his inquisitor.

Assemblyman Steingut asked to have Commissioner Delaney called.

"It wouldn't be a bad idea if you want to know the facts," supplemented Mayor Walker.

Mr. Seabury proceeded to question the mayor about the returns promised in the franchise applications of the Equitable and Service companies. Mayor Walker said he could not recall any of the details because the two companies had not been considered separately but only in comparison with other applicants—"sixty-nine or sixty-six, or whatever number it was."

Calls Question Impossible.

Q.—Well, now, what was the advantage of the Equitable over the Service Bus in respect to these crucial matters in reference to which I have directed your attention? A.—It would be literally impossible to discuss that subject, one that took five or six years' study by a corps of experts.

Q.—You had, I take it Mr. Mayor, substantial reasons for recommending and moving the Equitable franchise? A.—I never recommended the Equitable franchise. I voted for it, and I had good and substantial reasons for doing that.

This led to a lengthy verbal bout in which Mr. Seabury attempted to make the mayor admit he had urged the granting of the franchise to the Equitable company, while the mayor steadfastly denied he had done anything more than vote for it himself.

Mayor Again Draws Laughs.

The mayor finally said:

"The recommendation of the board of transportation cited the Equitable as the best franchise and I was for it because of the fact that it maintained the initial 5 cent fare. You probably yourself remember this because I think you appeared before the transit commission while a good deal of this discussion was going on.

MR. SEABURY—Not in reference to this matter, Mr. Mayor. A.—No, but a kindred matter of unification.

MR. SEABURY—No, not even that. You are in error there. A.—Not according to the records.

Q.—Yes, according to the records. A.—I will get you that and submit it to you. [Laughter, gavel.]

Wrangle Over Rival Offers.

There was a long wrangle over the zoning and fare provisions of the rival petitions. Another half hour or so was devoted to the "financial backing" angle, particularly that of the Equitable. At one juncture of the colloquy the mayor protested that Mr. Seabury was "asking me to remember details of a report six years ago and you can't agree on what happened last week, can you?"

Mr. Seabury read the mayor what purported to be a statement of his—to the committee of the whole—indicating that General Electric was "back of" the Equitable.

The mayor protested that he couldn't remember what he had said at a meeting "two weeks ago." The examination proceeded:

Q.—Doesn't that—— A.—Now, please let me answer.

Q.—Well, isn't that an answer? A.—No, it is not, and you are not going to make it an answer.

Q.—Well, it is an answer. A.—Let's settle that now.

Q.—That's an answer. A.—Never mind, I have been through all this. Remember, I am still the mayor of the City of New York. (Applause.)

Q.—I recognize that, but you are also a witness here. A.—That's correct, thanks to you.

Q.—And as such propose to testify to facts. A.—And I am going to.

Q.—Now, my question—— A.—But you are not going to testify.

Q.—My question is whether you made that statement. A.—My answer is that I don't know, but I will get around to it. You don't need to worry about whether I am going to meet questions or not. I am not going to meet them in your distorted way. Now, that was a meeting on what date?

Exchange Grows Heated.

Q.—March 4, 1929. A.—All right. Now, you ask me what I said about a matter, one matter on a calendar where there were probably five hundred other matters—

Mr. Seabury interpolated an exasperated "O," and the mayor continued: "Never mind that. Don't you dismiss it in that way. All you are interested in is one thing. I am interested in the people of this city."

Q.—O, I know how philanthropic you are. A.—You bet you know and you have evidence of that.

The colloquy reached a heated stage when the mayor started to tell about "propagandists who were trying to destroy" something which Mr. Seabury prevented him from naming by cutting in with "Never mind the propagandists."

"I will mind," the mayor shot back. "This is only an annex to it, in my opinion, and at that time you were appearing for the traction interests."

They Go "Round and Round."

"No. That is false and you know it," Mr. Seabury retorted. "You cannot draw a red herring like that over it."

"You have not heard the last of it," the mayor replied. "There are a couple of lawsuits that will familiarize you with it and your participation."

Q.—All right, we will come to attacks upon me later. In the meantime I would like to get an answer from you.

Which set them going round in circles anew.

Eventually they got down to the much-discussed $10,000 letter of credit which the mayor cashed—and overdrew—on his famous European junket. Mr. Seabury led up to it by asking:

Q.—Now, it is in evidence that on Aug. 9, 1927, you received a letter of credit issued by the Equitable Trust company in your favor for $10,000? A.—I don't know the date, but I did some time before I sailed in 1927 in August receive a letter of credit.

Q.—Now, you know that the ledger card of the bank shows that that letter of credit was obtained by J. Allan Smith? A.—I know it now; I didn't know it at the time. I know it because I have read it in the papers, not as a matter of fact.

Q.—You didn't have an account in the Equitable at the time, did you. A.—I did not.

Q.—Well, you remember this letter of credit was overdrawn by $3,000? A.—I understand it was.

Q.—And that was at the Equitable that it was overdrawn? A.—I really don't know. Whatever bank it was on, if it was overdrawn, I assume it was on that bank.

Q.—Now, it is in evidence here that the letter of credit and the purchaser's agreement and the letter of identification were brought to you by a representative of the Equitable Trust company, a Mr. Hoffman, in company with Senator Hastings. Do you recall that? A.—I remember Senator Hastings and another man coming who I believed to be and supposed to be a representative or an employé of the bank. I didn't know his name.

Q.—Did you supply any of the funds that were used in obtaining that letter of credit. A.—I did.

Q.—How much? A.—Three thousand dollars.

Q.—To whom? A.—It was sent or left for Senator Downing by me in the mayor's office, and I left it with Mr. Stanton [the mayor's secretary], who told me he gave it to Senator Downing, as Senator Downing afterwards told me he got it from Mr. Stanton.

Asked No Receipt.

Q.—By check? A.—No, cash.

Q.—Did you get any receipt from Senator Downing for it? A.—I didn't ask for a receipt from Senator Downing.

Q.—My question was whether you did get one? A.—I did not. I did not ask for one. We weren't that kind of friends [laughter—gavel].

Q.—Is that the full extent of the contribution that you made to the letter of credit? A.—To that letter of credit, yes.

Q.—Of $10,000? A.—Yes.

Q.—And also the overdraft? A.—That is correct.

Q.—When you gave this money to Mr. Stanton, was it in an envelope? A.—It was.

Q.—Was the envelope sealed? A.—It was not.

Cash Came from Safe.

Q.—In cash? A.—In cash.

Q.—Whereabouts in your home? A.—In a safe.

Q.—Did you obtain the overdraft for your sole use? A.—I did not.

Q.—For whose use did you obtain the overdraft? A.—For Senator Downing and those participating in the letter of credit.

Q.—Who did participate in the letter of credit? A.—So far as I know, those on the party, with the possible exception of Senator Herrick.

Q.—Have you been informed that J. Allan Smith paid that overdraft in January, 1928? A.—No, I have not been informed that J. Allan Smith paid the overdraft in January, 1928.

ALDERMEN CALL FOR 13% PAY CUT FOR CITY COURTS

12 Judges Tell Why They Balk at Reductions.

Members of the finance committee of the city council recommended last night that the judges and all employés of the Municipal court be docked 48 days' pay during the coming year. This is equivalent to a 13 per cent reduction.

The action of the finance committee was seen as a challenge to the Municipal judges over the rights of the court to fix its own budget independently of the city council. It was also regarded as a slap against numerous judges who were named on Tuesday as refusing to accept a voluntary pay cut, while other city employés' smaller salaries were being cut.

"Let's go out and battle the judges and determine what powers we have over their appropriations," declared Ald. Jacob M. Arvey. "The judges' salaries are fixed by city ordinance. If they don't economize now, we'll reduce their salaries for the next six year term."

Chief Justice Is Present.

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby attended the committee meeting. Mayor Cermak was also present. Judge Sonsteby suggested that the committee make an appropriation, and said he would summon a special meeting of the judges to discuss placing all court employés on a basis of 78 docked days a year, which is the pay cut other city employés will take. The judges had previously voted a cut for court employés on the basis of eleven and one-quarter months' pay for twelve months' work. The committee's recommendation doubles this reduction in pay, and means, it was said, an approximate saving of $285,000 annually. It would be retroactive as of May 1.

The judges themselves recently passed a resolution of Judge Edgar A. Jonas that they take a two day salary reduction each month. The judges are paid $27.32 a day. Some of the judges have accepted the cut in full, some in part, and some not at all.

Judges Explain Opposition.

Twelve judges who were named as opposing this voluntary reduction, were asked yesterday to give their reasons for their stand. Their comments follow:

FREDERICK W. ELLIOTT—I think this is purely a political action, without any connection with real economy. I believe it is dangerous for politicians to endanger the stability of the judiciary by any such move as this, even though the reduction is in itself a trifling matter.

GEORGE V. McINTYRE — Last summer I began to contribute two days pay per month. I continued for six months. If the city needs it, I'll contribute now.

SAMUEL HELLER—I began my contributions last summer and continued them until the last two became due. I contributed $328. Judge McIntyre and I made these payments when others were not doing so.

JAY A. SCHILLER—If my contribution will help to balance the city's budget, I'll be glad to make it. At present, however, additional and unnecessary jobs are being created in the municipal court and I do not believe that shows much regard for economy.

F. L. FAIRBANK—For the last two months I've been paying my own expenses in my court because we haven't got our salaries. When I get that I'll talk to my creditors and maybe things will be different.

Opposes Salary Cuts.

THEODORE F. EHLER—When this matter first came up I stated that I was against any pay cut and I am still of the same opinion. I earn the money the city pays me.

MATTHEW D. HARTIGAN—In my last term I was getting $1,000 less than other judges because I was elected before the pay was increased from $9,000 to $10,000. I don't think that it is right that I be forced now to contribute.

WILLIAM R. FETZER — I contributed to charity all that I could afford. I'm against cutting the pay of judges, clerks, and bailiffs. It would hurt the efficiency of the courts.

THOMAS A. GREEN — If all the judge contribute, I will. But we have eleven police captains down at the central police building just sitting on the bench. And now I see that we are going to have nine police inspectors.

JOHN F. O'CONNELL — Inasmuch as the judges of the Municipal court are judges of courts of record, any action taken in regard to reduction in their salary should be uniform for all judges in all courts.

JOHN F. HAAS—I'm against cutting the salaries of judges, clerks, and bailiffs. I sat in the Renters' court from December to April, hearing 21,695 cases, and I contributed more then than a year's cut in salary would amount to.

FRANCIS BORELLI—Judges sacrifice a good deal to be on the bench because of the fees they would be earning in private practice. When I got my latest tax bill, I found my taxes increased 33 per cent.

Referring to these judges' stand, Mayor Cermak said:

"All offices under the control of Democrats are making sacrifices and retrenchments. It is no more than right that the courts headed by Democrats follow the lead of other branches. Judge Sonsteby tells me that the judges refuse to go along with our program. Well, if they persist, I will have something further to say."

MOVIE STAR PLANS TO WED FOURTH TIME

VIRGINIA BRUCE.

JOHN GILBERT.

Awaits Final Decree

Los Angeles, May 25.—(AP)—Blond Virginia Bruce may become the fourth wife of John Gilbert, screen lover, when his divorce from Ina Claire, film and stage beauty, is made final next Aug. 15.

The engagement of the veteran actor and his leading lady was learned of in the film colony today. The couple tentatively set the wedding date for immediately after the recording of the Gilbert-Claire divorce.

Miss Bruce, a newcomer to films, and Gilbert, fell in love while working on a recent picture. They began a new picture today, "Down Stairs," an original story by Gilbert, and upon its completion the actor hopes to become a film director.

The announcement was somewhat of a surprise. Hollywood had believed Lupe Velez, fiery Mexican actress, with whom he was seen frequently in New York during a recent visit there, was the favorite in Gilbert's heart. The actor, besides Miss Claire, has had two other wives. Olivia Burwell, an extra girl, was his first wife, and Leatrice Joy, former film star, his second.

Fire Razes 1,000 Homes and Shops in Town in India

PESHAWAR, India, May 25.—(AP)—A thousand houses and shops in Charsadda were destroyed by fire today. Soldiers and firemen labored many hours before conquering the flames. In addition to the great heat they had to combat a violent dust storm which came up while the fire was in progress.

1,000 Attend Chicago Rally of Socialists

The first campaign rally and banquet of the Socialist party, following its convention in Milwaukee, was held last night at the Steuben club with an attendance of 1,000. National delegates, national candidates, state and local candidates, and members gathered for the occasion. Norman Thomas of New York and James Maurer of Philadelphia, nominees for President and Vice President, were among the speakers. Dr. R. B. Green of Chicago was in charge of solicitation of funds. More than $1,000 in campaign contributions was received.

Mexican State Cuts Number of Priests from 150 to 34

MEXICO CITY, May 25.—(AP)—The legislature at Toluca today passed a law fixing the number of priests in the state of Mexico at 34. The previous law allowed 150 priests. The state of Mexico surrounds the federal district, in which Mexico City is located.

ALDERMEN O. K. A CITY BUDGET OF $52,000,000

Amount Is $11,000,000 Lower Than in 1931.

By unanimous vote the finance committee of the city council early this morning recommended to the council for passage a corporate fund budget for this year which totals approximately $52,000,000. It will be submitted to the council on June 3 and must be passed by June 15.

Meanwhile the committee's staff will tabulate the economies that the aldermen voted for yesterday and in previous sessions. Although the final figure will not be known for several days, the experts who have assisted the committee and kept rough calculations as the budgeting progressed predicted that the total will not be much in excess of $52,000,000.

$11,000,000 Cut from 1931.

At that figure the budget will be $11,000,000 less than the corporate fund appropriations of last year, a reduction of 17 per cent. That figure also is $2,094,353 less than the estimate of revenues. For doing something that other finance committees haven't done for years—keeping appropriations below the estimate of revenues—the aldermen patted each other on the back as they left the meeting room in the Foreman National Bank building.

Also finally approved by the committee were the water, vehicle, and bond budgets. The water appropriations of $20,418,795 are $1,676,193 less than last year's. Vehicle tax appropriations are approximately $5,500,000, as compared to $5,607,000 for 1931. No total was available for the bond budget, in which the aldermen appropriated the residue of various nearly depleted bond funds.

Plan Bond Issue Referendum.

For a referendum at the November election the committee decided to submit a bond issue for $2,000,000 to pay public benefits for a number of street widenings. This will relieve the corporate fund to that extent.

In building the budgets the aldermen had the aid of recommendations prepared by County Assessor Jacobs for Mayor Cermak's advisory committee. While many of the Jacobs proposals for economy were either rejected or deferred, a number were accepted.

The aldermen and Jacobs tackled the major saving in the budget from different angles. Jacobs proposed to abolish between 2,800 and 2,900 positions. The committee decided to keep the same number of employés as of this date, but to dock them 78 days' pay.

"But there are a number of positions that I am going to eliminate," the aldermen were informed by Mayor Cermak, who has been in constant attendance at the meetings. "I haven't the list ready now, but it will be submitted to the council before action is taken."

Besides docking the employés the committee agreed that department heads will not be permitted to fill vacancies without council order; set up a bureau of central purchasing, and started on the reorganization of the police department by providing for nine supervisory captains or police inspectors.

The committee voted to consolidate several minor departments, but rejected for the present the recommendation of Mr. Jacobs for the establishment of a department of regulatory inspections, in which nine bureaus and departments would have been combined. It also put off until after June 15 consideration of the Jacobs recommendation for a reclassification of civil service positions.

Application of the regulations of saloon days to Chicago's speakeasies and night clubs was proposed, in effect, by Mayor Cermak, during the afternoon session.

Mayor Cermak suggested to the aldermen that the license fee of $100 a year which the city now charges soft drink parlors be raised, and that a 1 a. m. closing hour be fixed for such places and for night clubs. He recommended no specific sum for the new license fee, but said that he understood that Cicero has a $500 a year fee for soft drink parlors.

It has been estimated that Chicago has 15,000 speakeasies, the majority of them operating in the guise of soft drink parlors. Application to them of the $500 fee charged in Cicero would bring the city $7,500,000 a year, more than it ever collected from the saloons in the preprohibition era.

BLACKMER PAYS UP TEAPOT DOME FINE, BUT STILL IS EXILE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—Harry M. Blackmer, ex-patriate Denver oil man, today settled his civil score with Uncle Sam. His lawyers handed over to the clerk of the District Supreme court a check for $60,000 in payment of two fines imposed upon him for his refusal to appear before the court as a witness in the Teapot Dome oil trial.

H. M. BLACKMER.

His tax troubles with the government — $3,669,784 worth—have also been settled, it was learned today, partly by payment in full and partly by compromise.

He cannot, however, return to this country immune from prosecution, despite the settlement of his civil difficulties. He remains under a criminal indictment imposed by the federal court in Colorado for fraud to evade the income tax laws.

Blackmer, who fled this country rather than testify in the Fall and Doheny oil trials, paid his back income taxes last Wednesday, according to the treasury department.

DRYS TO SWOOP ON HOOVER OVER DAMP PLATFORM

Will Threaten to Bolt at Convention.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.] — Disclosure that President Hoover is engaged in drafting a Republican national platform plank squinting in the direction of the re-submission of the 18th amendment to the states has precipitated a state of war in the Republican party.

The heads of the dry organizations, who have dictated Republican policies on prohibition for a decade or more, are up in arms over the threatened reverse for their cause. A meeting of the national board of prohibition strategy has been called for next week to consider the crisis, particularly ways and means of getting the President back on the dry reservation.

A dozen or more prohibition leaders in various parts of the country telegraphed today to dry Republican leaders here saying that they are coming to Washington the end of this week for a showdown with the President.

Charge Pledge to Drys.

Some of them asserted in their telegrams that Mr. Hoover definitely committed himself to an uncompromising dry plank in an interview several months ago and that they intend to hold him to his pledge.

Some of the professional drys were mouthing threats to organize a bolt of dry delegations from the Chicago convention and the formation of third party with Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Ida.] as their nominee if the President persists in flouting the amalgamated prohibition organizations.

The same day that brought forth these threats, however, recorded the clinching of the President's renomination. With the 49 Texas delegates instructed for him the President now has 621 instructed delegates, 43 more than a majority of the convention.

Scott to Nominate Hoover.

Another interesting development of the day was the selection of a Roman Catholic to make the speech in the Chicago convention presenting Mr. Hoover for renomination. He is Joseph Scott of Los Angeles, a member of the California delegation. He is a nationally known Catholic leader whom Pope Pius XI. created a knight commander of the Order of St. Gregory in 1928. Pope Benedict created him a knight of the order in 1920 for work in the war, in which he served as special commander for the Knights of Columbus. In 1918 he won the Laetare medal awarded by Notre Dame university for "public service and nation-wide platform campaign to eliminate religious prejudice."

The selection of a Roman Catholic for this service to the President is designed to counteract Catholic prejudice against Mr. Hoover growing out of Republican fostering of the religious issue against Al Smith in the 1928 election. Mr. Scott himself has incurred the enmity of many of his co-religionists by his devotion to Mr. Hoover.

Butler May Be Chairman.

The President is now deeply immersed in plans for the convention and for his election campaign. He has approved the choice of Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa for temporary chairman and party keynoter and of Representative Bertrand Snell of New York for permanent chairman. He has three names under consideration for chairman of the resolutions committee which will draft the platform. It is reported he will offer the national chairmanship to former Senator William M. Butler of Massachusetts, who was national chairman under the Coolidge régime. Mr. Butler recently forsook the dry and embraced the wet cause.

The political matter claiming the most attention by the President is the prohibition plank. It transpired today that instead of being indifferent to the character of the plank to be adopted, as has been represented by some of his intimates, Mr. Hoover has been cogitating this question for weeks. He has been sounding the views of all elements of the party on the extent of the concession that it is deemed advisable to make to the wets and has been trying his hand at the phraseology of a declaration which would satisfy wet Republicans without sacrificing the support of any large number of drys.

The President has been torn between advisers on the one hand contending that it would be politically suicidal for the party to alienate the drys who would either form a third party or stay away from the polls and advisers on the other hand insisting that a refusal to declare for resubmission of prohibition will drive wet Republicans to support of the Democratic ticket with consequent loss of the big wet eastern states.

WILKERSON HEARINGS ARE DELAYED UNTIL HE CAN BE PRESENT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—Further senate consideration of the promotion of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson of Chicago to the Circuit Court of Appeals was indefinitely postponed today. The senate subcommittee before which the elevation of the judge who sentenced Al Capone to the penitentiary is now pending probably will not resume its hearings until next fall.

JAMES H. WILKERSON.

The delay came as the result of the receipt today by Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho], subcommittee chairman, of a letter from Judge Wilkerson in which the jurist replied to a suggestion that he appear in person by explaining that he would be kept in Chicago for several weeks by the Illinois Bell Telephone rate case, which is now on trial in his court.

Judge Wilkerson's letter, in turn, was the result of a telegram recently sent him at the request of Senator Thomas J. Walsh [radical Dem., Mont.], who has said that he would prefer to have Judge Wilkerson come to Washington to explain personally concerning the surface lines receivership and other matters which have been testified to during the hearings.

HOOVER'S MOIST PLANK FAILS TO SATISFY WETS

Repeal Still Is Paramount Convention Issue.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Preparation of a damp plank by President Hoover for the Republican national convention, June 14, as announced in Washington dispatches, seemed to evoke little surprise yesterday among liberal leaders. The reaction was that it will not change the status of prohibition as the paramount issue in the convention, nor head off a battle for a plank that will be wet instead of moist.

National committeemen from midwest states who have passed through Chicago recently have held that the prospects are for a declaration on the liquor issue, and that the convention will come out for the submission by congress of repeal or amendment of the 18th amendment to conventions in the states. The committeemen pointed to the surge of anti-prohibition sentiment as demonstrated in recent primaries and conventions.

Ripe for Repeal Plank.

Weeks ago they were declaring, privately, that when the delegates assemble they will be ripe for a repeal plank. The pressure of electing state and county tickets is regarded as one of the great potential factors in determining the wetness of the prohibition plank.

The liberal forces are preparing for a great battle, and in case the resolutions committee turns down a plank advocating action would bring the liquor question directly up to the states by 1933, they have planned a minority report and a fight on the floor of the convention. They regard it as possible that the convention may override the presidential nominee if he advances a plank that is merely dampish.

A view of the militant anti-prohibitionists was set forth by Col. Ira L. Reeves, midwest director of the Crusaders.

"In my opinion," he said, "the President is wet only in direct proportion to the amount of pressure brought to bear upon him by the party leaders. Republican leaders have pointed out consistently that the President's persistent dry stand means the wrecking of the party at the coming election, and have called his attention to the fact that should he be returned to the White House for another four years he not only will have to ease over into the damp column, but take a definite wet stand.

"I do not believe that Mr. Hoover is sincerely in favor of any action toward repealing the 18th amendment or the Volstead act, and that he is prompted solely by political exigencies to cast even a coy glance at the introduction of a resubmission of the 18th amendment plank in the Republican platform."

Find Sentiment Changing.

Two items to which the politicians attached significance as indicative of the sentiment that may prevail among the national delegates when they meet next month were the vote cast for 2.75 beer by Congressman Will R. Wood of bone dry Indiana, one of the most consistent drys in congress, and the declaration of Senator Hiram Johnson of California that congress should stay in session until it votes to resubmit the prohibition question to the states.

Among the Democrats the gossip was that Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, who has been designated as keynoter for the Democratic convention which meets June 27, is being besought by some groups to retire as a candidate for that post. Barkley was the choice of the Roosevelt forces for the place when the national committee met here several weeks ago.

Lately some of the Democratic national leaders have been remarking that in the senate finance committee he voted for a tariff on coal, and made a speech on the floor defending his action.

In the middle west the Democrats have been whooping it up against the Hawley-Smoot tariff, and in recent campaigns the prairies have resounded with cries of "the Grundyized tariff." The expectation has been that it would figure loudly in the campaigning next fall and the Democrats are wondering how Barkley, after supporting the coal tariff, can do much of a job of socking the tariff as a keynoter.

The Illinois delegates to the national convention are to meet at Springfield June 2 on call of Thomas F. Donovan of Joliet, state chairman and nominee for lieutenant governor. The purpose is to get acquainted, according to the party chiefs. Mayor A. J. Cermak is slated to be next national committeeman, but his election is not expected to come until the convention.

BUTTER AND EGG TRADERS FAVOR END OF DRY LAW

Despite the contention of drys that liberalization of the prohibition law would curtail consumption of dairy products, butter and egg traders affiliated with the Chicago Mercantile exchange voted overwhelmingly for repeal of the eighteenth amendment in a poll yesterday.

Only traders on the floor voted, no ballots being distributed to absent or out of town members. A preliminary count indicated that 93 per cent of the ballots were for repeal.

Dry traders contended the vote was misleading, claiming that they, in accordance with the dry strategy throughout the country, had refused to participate in any straw balloting on the liquor question.

The strong sentiment for repeal surprised the entire membership. For years those associated with the dairy trade have been dinned with the argument that return of beer would cut down consumption of milk, the claim being that thousands of office workers who now take a glass of milk at lunch would turn to beer if that beverage could be obtained at the old quality and price.

Arrest Owner of Store Where Schoolboys Smoke

Lionel Scott, owner of a candy store at 3838 Marquette avenue, directly across the street from the Bowen High school, was arraigned before Municipal Judge Donald S. McKinlay yesterday, charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors. The charge is brought under a little used statute forbidding store keepers to allow minors to smoke on their premises. The case was continued until Monday.

WIFE TESTIFIES AMOROUS MATE UPSET HOSPITAL

Watches Scene with Nurse from Hiding Place.

Amorous advances by James L. Baldwin, head of a package carrier company, to nurses in the Frances Willard hospital, where his wife is president of the board of directors, were described yesterday in the separate maintenance suit of Mrs. Mary Baldwin, Oak Park clubwoman. The hearing was before Judge Joseph Sabath in the Superior court.

Baldwin will contend that he was the victim of a frameup by his wife and hospital employés, it was indicated by the questions his attorney, Charles Lamborn, asked on cross-examination. One of Mrs. Baldwin's witnesses was Dr. Otis Walter, who attended Baldwin when he was a patient in the hospital. He testified that on July 6, 1931, the day Baldwin left the hospital, Baldwin told him:

"My wife put a flapper in my room and I fell for her."

Denies Any Frameup.

Dr. Walter denied there was any frameup when Attorney Lamborn asked him. The "flapper" to whom Baldwin referred was Miss Earleen Allen, 202 Perry street, Elgin, a registered nurse. She was assigned to Baldwin's case for an hour and 45 minutes on last July 4, she testified. After that Mrs. Baldwin, who had been peeking around the door of an adjoining bathroom, excused her from the case.

"Mr. Baldwin pulled me over when I started to give him a bath and bit me on the neck," Miss Allen testified. A more detailed account of the incident was related by Mrs. Baldwin.

Her husband was almost completely recovered at the time, Mrs. Baldwin said, from an operation performed a month before. She visited him in the evening and was urged by him to go find herself a bridge game, she said. Instead, she hid in the bathroom.

"His nurse, Miss Allen, came in and started to give him a sponge bath," she testified. "He told her, 'It's wonderful to have a young hand rub you. You know, I don't care for Mrs. Baldwin.'

"With that he reached up, put his arm around her, pulled her down and bit her neck. Miss Allen told him, 'Mr. Baldwin, I'm going to have to report you to the superintendent.'

"Mr. Baldwin, who was lying there in bed without a stitch on, told her, 'I am Mr. Baldwin. You can't start a scandal in this hospital. My wife is president.'

"The nurse then told Mr. Baldwin to finish his own bath and she looked out the window. He groaned.

"Miss Allen turned and asked him what was the matter. He said, 'I just can't help it, when a pretty girl is around me.'"

Kisses Nurse Again.

"Say, isn't there some way of stopping this?" pleaded Judge Sabath, blushing. "Can't we get these people back together?"

Attorneys told him there was no chance of a reconciliation. "Well, go on, then," he said in resigned tones.

"My husband gave the nurse some money and told her to go out for some chewing gum, and to look about for me," Mrs. Baldwin continued. "He said he was afraid I was sneaking on him. When she came back he said, 'Come over to the bed and look out the window at the fireworks. As soon as she sat down he kissed her. 'I'd like to buy you a wrist watch and some silk stockings for these beautiful legs,' he told her.

"I'd seen enough. I walked into the room and asked my husband, 'Is this your Christianity?' He denied everything, but I asked the girl if it wasn't true, and she said, 'Yes; I want to leave this case.'"

Mrs. Baldwin testified that her husband's first nurse reported to the night supervisor four days after his operation that "things had happened" in his room. She was relieved and a male nurse suggested for Baldwin, but he threatened to tear off his bandages unless he could have a woman nurse, his wife testified.

JUDGE ASSAILS A WITNESS AT PASCHEN TRIAL

The trial of Chris Paschen, former building commissioner, charged with evading the payment of $114,000 in income taxes for 1927 and 1928, before Federal Judge Barnes, lapsed into the doldrums yesterday with a constant stream of Paschen company employés trooping into the courtroom to testify they worked for Paschen in 1927 and 1928, and to recall, to the best of their ability, how much money they received in those years.

On cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney Samuel Clawson and Judge Barnes it was brought out that while the memory of most of the employés was so accurate they could remember to odd cents how much they earned in the years in question they had no memory of the money earned in other years.

With the jury out Judge Barnes said of one witness, "I am certain the last witness perjured himself." He sustained objections of the prosecution against testimony as to exact sums unless the "books and slips of paper" with which they had refreshed their memory were offered as evidence. Most of the witnesses admitted they had recently refreshed their memory and compared their figures with those in the Paschen office.

TORNADO KILLS 3 IN NEBRASKA; SEVERAL HURT

Trenton, Neb., May 25.—(AP)—Three persons were killed, eight were injured seriously, and several others were hurt less seriously late today in a tornado and heavy wind and rain storm which struck southwestern Nebraska.

The dead are Mr. and Mrs. John Newport of near Cornell and Mrs. Ward Carey of near Hershey.

The injured are the five Newport children, ranging in age from 6 to 15 years; a Mr. Feasel and two daughters of near Hendley.

Mrs. Newport died as the tornado picked up her home and carried it to a field some distance away. Newport was injured fatally at the same time and died several hours later. He walked or crawled to his wife and died beside her.

The tornado's swath was about half a mile wide and badly damaged several homes in Cornell.

STATE ORDERS 12-YEAR TRACK CASE CONCLUDED

The case in which the Lincoln park commissioners are petitioning the Illinois commerce commission for an order to compel the Chicago Surface lines to remove tracks from Lake Shore drive between Chicago avenue and Ohio street must be concluded by June 3, Chairman G. Gale Gilbert of the commission ruled yesterday. The case has been pending twelve years.

"We are going to see that this case is concluded while at least some of the gentlemen now trying it are still living," Chairman Gilbert observed, overruling a request of counsel for another continuance.

"Cross-examination of the park board's witnesses must be concluded tomorrow. Counsel for the city will have next Tuesday and Wednesday to compete their evidence. The Surface lines will complete their case next Thursday and the park board will end the presentation of evidence on the following Friday."

FRANK K. REILLY, BOOK PUBLISHER, IS FOUND DEAD

Heart Trouble, Depression Blamed for Suicide.

Frank Kennicott Reilly, 69 years old, president of Reilly & Lee, publishers, was found dead yesterday afternoon in the butler's pantry of his home at 999 Lake Shore drive. He had been shot in the head. He left a note which made it clear that it was a case of suicide.

Friends said Mr. Reilly had been suffering from heart disease for several years. He was not financially troubled, they added, but was depressed by general financial conditions.

"Father" of Chicago Authors.

Mr. Reilly entered the book publishing field 32 years ago and was looked upon as the "father" of many of Chicago's successful authors. Among those whose first works he published were Harold Bell Wright, novelist, and Frank L. Baum, creator of the Wizard of Oz tales.

Mr. Reilly was born at the Grove, in Cook county, March 19, 1863, the son of Dr. Frank W. Reilly, who for years was assistant health commissioner for Chicago and who previously had been managing editor of the Chicago Morning News and secretary of the state board of health. The son, Frank, was educated in Chicago schools, and started work for the Chicago North Western railroad in 1878 where he remained until 1885, and after that was for a number of years connected with Edward E. Ayer in the lumber business.

Head of Company Since 1913.

A decade later Mr. Reilly entered the publishing field with the Werner company as a department manager. Later he was manager of the George M. Hill company, publishers. He became a member of the Madison Book company in 1902, and secretary and treasurer of the Reilly & Britton company two years later. He became president of the company in 1913 and remained as its head when the firm name was changed to Reilly & Lee in 1920.

Mr. Reilly was a member of the Chicago Athletic association, the Art institute, the Chicago Horticultural society, the Forty club, the Lake Shore Athletic association, and the Izaak Walton league. Mr. Reilly was married twice, his first wife, Cora Powers Reilly, dying in 1910. Two years later he married his second wife, who survives him.

PERU HOLDS ITS BEER PARADE; EMPTY KEGS ROLLED OUT FOR FETE

Peru, Ill., May 25.—(AP)—This pre-prohibition brewing center of 25,000 population rolled out its huge stock of empty beer kegs today and paraded in protest to prohibition.

The event was the "beer day" sponsored by the Peru Retail Merchants' association and was climaxed tonight by a long parade of floats, automobiles, and marchers who carried placards demanding the return of beer.

Beer kegs posted with anti-prohibition signs lined the curbs and clerks in many of the stores wore white aprons such as are worn by bartenders.

SENATE REJECTS BEER TAX; WETS GAIN RECRUITS

2 More Than Supported Tydings Proposal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—The senate today turned down the plea of Senator Bingham [Rep., Conn.] to bring back beer, not for refreshment, but for revenue.

By a vote of 36 to 55 the drys rejected the Bingham amendment to the pending billion dollar tax bill, and thereby lost a chance to erase from that bill a number of nuisance taxes and substitute 375 million dollars which, it is estimated, would have come to the federal treasury from the proposed 2 cent per pint tax on legal beer of 2.75 per cent alcoholic content by weight [3.2 per cent by volume].

Although they lost both the beer and the tax, the wets rejoiced today for they polled two votes more than they did May 18 on the Tydings beer amendment. Furthermore, today's results wrote into the wet column for the first time the names of three senators: Johnson [Rep., Cal.], who has never indicated a wet preference before, and Hebert [Rep., R. I.], and Schall [radical Rep., Minn.], who have indicated wet preference on previous Volsted modification amendments but who on those votes were paired and therefore unable to vote.

Really 31 Wet Senators.

Today's vote, together with two votes on May 18, now gives the wets a list of thirty senators who, on at least one occasion, have cast a wet vote this session. This roll call shows 17 Republicans and 13 Democrats, some of whom were paired or absent today.

The wet strength really goes to 31, for Senator Shipstead [Farm-Labor, Minn.], a known wet, has been paired and unable to vote.

Today's bickering over beer narrowed into a lively debate between Senator Bingham, Republican wet leader, and Senator Borah [radical Rep., Idaho], known as the "constitutional" dry. But the Idaho senator did not confine his objections to questions of constitutionality. His first reply to Senator Bingham's argument began:

"I believe the senator is a little overenthusiastic about what his amendment will do. It has been contended that a tax on beer will settle the farm question, practically settle the unemployment question, and make this revenue bill a simple and satisfactory thing. I'm not so sure."

Borah Quotes a Brewer.

As proof of his doubt of the benefits that beer would bring to the farmer and his barley acreage, Mr. Borah read some remarks made at a congressional hearing in 1917 by Brewer Pabst.

"I'm sure of these figures," Mr. Borah remarked dryly, "for Pabst is to the beer world what Shakespeare is to the world of poetry."

Mr. Borah looked up from his book and growled: "Furthermore, I'm not willing for my government to do business like Capone."

"Temporarily," prodded Mr. Bingham.

"He'll be there until after the Republican convention," Mr. Borah shot back and went to his next argument, that the return of beer would not diminish the desire for hard liquor.

Both Making Same Point.

Senator Borah argued that to produce the 375 millions of revenue Senator Bingham's beer would have to be sold "in the most meager homes."

But Senator Bingham said such homes were already buying or brewing illegal beer.

As the senator from Connecticut read statistics showing the increase of drunkenness in the prohibition United States the senator from Idaho cut in:

"But I don't think they got drunk on beer."

"That's exactly the point I've been trying to make," Mr. Bingham shouted back.

Up in the gallery, especially up in the ladies' gallery, there was a burst of applause, little giggles of laughter.

When Senator Borah, after explaining that he didn't drink, didn't know a thing about drinks, asked scornfully, "Does the senator think that people will change their present beer for 2.75 slop?" Senator Bingham was soft and sweet as he asked: "Where does the senator get the ability to tell the difference between 'that beer' and 'this slop'?"

Keep "Nuisance" Taxes.

Senator Bingham declared he believed 375 million a conservative estimate of the revenue legal beer would bring to the revenue bill. That amount, he declared, would permit elimination from the tax bill of the tax on radios and phonographs, on telephones and telegrams, would permit the halving of the automobile tax and would limit the tax on checks to checks above $5. Largest items of all, it would do away with the need of raising first class postal rates and from increasing second class rates.

COUNTY BOARD ASKS CONGRESS TO CUT EXPENSES

The county commissioners yesterday adopted a petition for an immediate reduction in taxes and drastic cuts in federal governmental expenditures and dispatched the petition to congress. The action followed that of the city in demanding a 20 per cent slash in federal administrative expenditures. The petition was introduced before the board by Mrs. Edward J. Fleming.

With only one dissenting vote the commissioners also adopted the 1932 forest preserve bulget of $8,075,938 and at the same time reduced the 1931 forest preserve levy, which has not yet been spread upon the tax books. The economies effected for 1932 are 26 per cent of the 1931 budget, which amounted to $10,988,682. The 1931 reduction lowers the levy from 9 cents to 8 cents on each $100 of valuation.

RITCHIE ASSAILS HOOVER RELIEF PLAN AS 'FOLLY'

Puts U. S. in Competition with Own Citizens.

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—Albert C. Ritchie, governor of Maryland and a contender for the Democratic nomination for President, tonight rejected as "folly" some of the proposals looking to unemployment relief and economic revival. "They would have the country," he said in an address, "rush headlong and unseeing into the radical, if not Socialistic panaceas which are being proposed with all earnestness in high places."

He urged that the federal government concentrate on restoring confidence in its own integrity as a primary condition for a business revival. The responsibility, he declared, rests for the present chiefly with congress.

Gov. Ritchie said the experiment of the federal administration with the farm board and the billion of dollars distributed a year ago among world war veterans had failed to fulfill the expectation that they would restore purchasing power and quicken business. He added that the release during the last six weeks by the federal reserve board of some 600 million dollars of currency had failed to ease the credit situation.

"U. S. Channels in Private Seas."

"Mindful of these ventures of our ship of state into experimental seas, I am frank to say that I do not believe much, if anything, can be accomplished by pumping some hundreds of millions of dollars through governmental channels into private industry, as has been suggested by President Hoover," Gov. Ritchie said. "On the contrary I am convinced that such a course might do irreparable harm to our whole economic system in the years to come."

Gov. Ritchie said the government could not lend money to private industry without in effect becoming its partner, with the alternative, in the event of default, that the government must either assume the loss or take over the business as a competitor with its own citizens in the same line of business.

Leads to Discriminations.

"Nor," he added, "can the government finance the operation of one industry without putting all the competitors of that industry to great disadvantage. When the government throws its resources behind one group of citizens it inevitably handicaps other groups of citizens who are in the same field of activity. Then as an almost inevitable next step come discriminations and political favoritism in doling out the government aid."

Embarking on such a program by the federal government, Gov. Ritchie said, would mean that a long step toward communism will have been taken.

Wiping out the national deficit and properly balancing the budget, Gov. Ritchie held to be the chief contribution congress could make at this time toward economic revival.

Scramble Under Way to Get In on Federal Relief Billions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.]—A nation-wide scramble to get in on the proposed split of a two billion dollar federal relief melon was under way today. Senate Democrats also added another bill to the long list of measures and programs providing billions for new public work construction, the financing of nonfederal self-liquidating profit making projects, and direct loans to states for the relief of destitute persons.

ROBT. F. WAGNER. [Fotograms.]

Today's measure was introduced by Senator Robert F. Wagner [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of a Democratic steering subcommittee appointed to formulate a definite relief program. It is indorsed by several other senators, including Joseph T. Robinson [Ark.], Democratic leader. It provides one billion 500 millions for the nonfederal so-called self-liquidating projects, 500 millions for federal public works, and 300 millions for direct loans to states.

Press Pet Schemes.

Hardly had the measure been introduced when it became known that congressional and local adherents of all sorts of projects for new public buildings, river and harbor improvements, and public roads are already actively making every effort to secure a place on the federal program for their pet construction schemes. At the request of congressmen, the chief of engineers today forwarded to congress a list of projects on which work could be started at once costing 500 millions.

At the same time champions of nonfederal construction projects, whose total cost would run above a billion dollars also increased their activity in order to make certain that whatever relief legislation is passed will be so formulated as to take care of their specific projects. One senator, it was said in an authoritative quarter, has a list of projects whose cost would run above a billion dollars.

May Designate Projects.

It was said that an effort is to be made to write the specific federal projects on which money is to be spent directly into the federal relief bills during hearings shortly to be held. An attempt is now under way to have Speaker John Garner [Dem., Tex.] include a long list of specific projects in the two billion one hundred million dollar bill he proposes to introduce tomorrow.

Indications at the White House today were that the administration will not present a specific relief bill but will attempt to revamp the major Democratic bills so they will meet with President Hoover's approval.

The bill introduced by Senator Wagner today was the product of several days of work by the Democratic special relief committee. It was indorsed by Senators Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.], Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.], and Robert J. Bulkley [Dem., O.].

In detail, the bill provides as follows:

"First. Three hundred million dollars is made available, under the existing borrowing power of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, for making advances to the states for relief to the destitute upon certification by the governor of the state that there is need for such assistance. The amount advanced to any state for this purpose is to be deducted over a period of years from future federal aid highway grants to that state.

"Second. One billion five hundred million dollars is made available to the Reconstruction Finance corporation under authorization for additional borrowing, all but $40,000,000 of which is to be devoted to finance the following undertakings which must be self-liquidating in character: [a] Construction of revenue producing projects initiated by states, municipalities, and public corporations; [b] housing and slump clearance projects undertaken by limited dividend corporations; [c] construction by private corporations of tunnels, docks, viaducts, waterworks, and similar projects devoted to the public use which are self-liquidating.

Forty Million for Farms.

"The remaining $40,000,000 is to be made available by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to the secretary of agriculture to aid in financing agricultural exports.

"Third. Five hundred million dollars is made available for the construction of previously authorized federal permanent improvements. This construction is to be financed by the 35 year bond issue and sinking fund, the bonds to be issued as needed to pay for the projects as they progress.

Favors Thirty Hour Week.

The bill seeks to distribute the work among many workers by stipulating that federal construction contracts and Reconstruction Finance corporation loans shall, wherever practicable, be conditioned upon a thirty hour week, except for persons in administrative and executive positions.

Senator Wagner defended the public works program to which President Hoover has objected. It would permit projects to be started immediately, he said. They would be under control of congress; there would be no delay in securing loans from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

As for the necessary bond issue, he asserted it would not be necessary to raise the entire half billion dollars at once, and that by taking over 195 million dollars' worth of projects provided for in current appropriations the immediate tax load would be lightened; the carrying charges, he said, would total only a small portion of that amount.

Would Include Waterways.

A move to include rivers and harbors construction projects in whatever emergency relief program is brought before congress at this session was made today by Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill.].

With the express intention of calling the rivers and harbors improvement work to the attention of Speaker Garner, whose 2 billion dollar relief program is now being whipped into shape by the legislative drafting service, Mr. Hull introduced into the Record a letter received by him from Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, stating that nearly 500 million dollars worth of waterway projects are "entirely justifiable" at the present time.

Responding, the senate voted 18 to 52 to defeat the Vandenberg amendment. Responding again, it voted to adopt the finance committee's 2 per cent rate on automobile accessories instead of the house bill's 1 per cent. Responding still a third time, it restored the house tax on motor boats and so added $500,000 to the bill.

The other special taxes followed and that spirit began to waver. Motions and amendments of motions trod on the heels of requests for unanimous consent and motions to strike out entirely.

Senators rustled through their copies of the bill and couldn't find the place. They wanted to know what sort of copies these were anyway. The galleries tittered. Vice President Curtis fumed and explained that the clerk was reading from the official copy.

"What's this, then?" shouted Senator Ellison D. Smith [Dem., S. C.] and slammed his unofficial copy on his desk.

A growing conviction that the revenue bill eventually will contain a sales tax or a higher income tax schedule or perhaps both grew still more as senators who are proud to refer to themselves as "the greatest deliberative body in the world" ended their day's session in a tangled welter of special excise taxes on chewing gum and jewelry, furs and toilet articles.

Each mounting degree of dissatisfaction with the myriad of excise and special taxes was taken as a promise of growing strength for the sales tax, on the one hand, or for

U. S. MARINES KILL 17 NICARAGUAN REBELS IN CLASH

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 25.—(AP)—United States marines serving with the Nicaraguan National Guard reported today the killing of seventeen followers of Augusto Sandino, insurgent leader, in two attacks by air and land.

While marine flyers bombed the insurgent band near the Neptune mine in the department of Prinzapolka Monday, a guard patrol commanded by Corp. Earl Gray attacked the insurgents on the ground.

Corp. Gray's detachment and the rebel troops under Pedro Altamirano, one of Gen. Sandino's lieutenants, had fought for a half hour before the marine airmen began bombing the rebel group. The guard detachment was unscathed.

BOARD OF TRADE OUSTS FEDERAL GRAIN AGENCY

Two Veteran Updike Co. Officials Suspended.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Trading privileges on the Chicago Board of Trade were taken from the Updike Grain company and two officials of the firm, owned by the government financed Farmers' National Grain corporation, were suspended by the exchange's board of directors last night, effective June 11.

The action was taken following hearings over a period of two months in which the directors said they established that the Updike company's officers had falsified statements of ownership to the exchange.

Exchange Veterans Suspended.

Fred J. Thatcher, president of the company, was suspended for five years, and J. F. Fiorentine, secretary-treasurer and trader for the company, was suspended for two years. Thatcher has been an exchange member 32 years and Fiorentine 25 years.

"The two officers were guilty of violating certain rules of the exchange," the directors said in a statement, "by making false affidavits to the effect that they were owners of stock in the Updike company when in reality this stock had been transferred and sold to the Farmers National Grain corporation."

Cite Breaches of Rules.

These stock ownership statements, submited under rules of the board of trade, were made on June 1, 1931, and Dec. 31, 1931. Proven false, the directors reported, the misstatements alone constituted grounds for suspension.

It was further charged that telegrams in which the Updike Grain company was not directly interested were permitted to be transmitted for the benefit of the farmers' corporation over the Updike leased wires, contrary to the rules of the exchange.

"George S. Milnor, president of the federal farm board's stabilization corporation and general manager of the Farmers' National Grain corporation, appeared as one of the counsel in defense of the officers of the Updike company," the exchange announcement said. "It developed that one of the officers of the Updike company was obtaining all the brokerages on orders which he executed from the Farmers' National, in lieu of salary. This testimony was undisputed."

Execute Large Orders.

Milnor declined to comment on the exchange decision last night. John R. Mauff, former secretary of the board of trade, assisted in defending the Updike officials. The company was purchased by the farmers' sales agency from Nelson B. Updike of Omaha over a year ago and has been executing large volumes of federally financed grain operations since.

The two Updike officials declared they had nothing to say on the exchange decision, adding that any possible court appeal or other action rests with Milnor. Courts have ruled in previous appeals from board of trade verdicts that the exchange has full powers.

Last night's action had no direct connection with a recent denial of the application for admittance to the board of trade's clearing house of the Farmers' National Grain corporation.

Hyde Delays Decision.

Following that denial, Clarence E. Huff, head of the farm agency financed and managed by the farm board, called upon Secretary of Agriculture A. M. Hyde to revoke the exchange's license. Secretary Hyde has indicated that his answer to the request would be delayed pending the exchange's final decision, given last night.

Without a membership in the clearing house, the farm board's agencies will be obliged to clear trades through other agencies, adding thousands of dollars a year to the expense of governmentally financed grain operations.

Officers of the farmers' grain sales agency have indicated recently that the exchange, by barring its membership to the clearing house, has opened the way for "an open fight between farmers who demand the right to market their grain coöperatively and the forces that seek to prevent them from doing so."

WORK CONDITIONS HOLD UP SURFACE LINES WAGE CUT

Settlement of the wage problem involving 12,000 Surface Lines employés yesterday appeared to hinge directly on the question of working conditions. If satisfactory arrangements can be retained in the matter of sick and accident benefits, overtime, layovers between runs, and other matters relating to street railroading the final agreement, it was indicated, will call for a 10 per cent wage reduction.

Guy A. Richardson, president, and C. H. Evenson, superintendent of transportation, have represented the Surface Lines at the conferences. The employés have been represented by William Quinlan, president of the car men's union; Joseph Kehoe, executive secretary, and William Taber. The present contract expires on May 31.

BANDITS KIDNAP FAMILY TO LOOT BANK OF $9,769

Cashier, Wife, Son and Guest Carried Away.

Little Rock, Ark., May 25.—[Special.]—Authorities throughout southeastern Arkansas and Mississippi are searching for two bandits who robbed the Bank of Portland, Portland, Ark., of $9,769 this morning and kidnaped Frank P. Harvey, the cashier, his wife and son, and a woman guest in his home. Several hours later the cashier and his family were released near Vicksburg, Miss.

Harvey was aroused shortly after 8 o'clock this morning by the bandits, who took possession of his home. Harvey, his wife, their 13 year old son, and Mrs. Ella Vann, their guest, were forced into the bandits' car and were driven to the bank.

Forced to Open Vault.

There Harvey, menaced with revolvers and shotguns, was forced to open the vault. After the currency had been scooped up the cashier was hurried back into the automobile and driven off.

Harvey and his wife, in his own car, with one of the bandits and young Harvey and Mrs. Vann in the other car were taken for a wild 150 mile ride. Near Vicksburg the bandits released their captives and continued their flight. The bandits left Harvey's car, in which he and his family returned home.

Negro Sees Abduction.

A Negro, who was passing the Harvey home in Portland this morning, witnessed the abduction.

The robbery was discovered when officials of the bank opened up for business. The vault had been ransacked and papers and boxes strewn about the floor.

REVEAL PHONE DEPRECIATION 50 YRS. IN ADVANCE

Company Method Shown at Rate Hearing.

Evidence that the rates of the Illinois Bell Telephone company are computed, in part, on depreciation fifty years in advance of the actual investment and that in so doing the company is allocating money now which it will not need for half a century, was developed yesterday in the phone rate litigation before Federal Judge Wilkerson.

The testimony was given by John R. Turner, inventory and cost engineer for the Bell company, during cross-examination by Benjamin F. Goldstein, special counsel for the city. The suit involves the refund of more than $20,000,000 to users of certain types of coin box services, who held that service since 1923. The telephone company is seeking to make permanent a temporary injunction restraining the Illinois commerce commission from enforcing its 1923 order lowering the rates for these services.

Merrimac Exchange Cited.

Much of the testimony bearing on the depreciation costs concerned a specific building, the Merrimac central office of the company, 5604 Belden avenue.

Attorney Goldstein drew from the witness that the initial construction of the building cost $378,000. Replacements and increases of equipment, through successive years, would add: $152,000 in 1931; $645,000 in 1944; $95,000 in 1954; $100,000 in 1964; $62,000 in 1974, and the attorney brought out that in 1984 the company would destroy the buildings and additions, which the company estimated would have a net value in 1984 of $1,176,880.

The lawyer then made the point that beginning in 1926 a start was made in accumulating money to repay this $1,176,880 in 1984.

Goldstein contended that in calculating depreciation costs, the Illinois Bell Telephone company failed to take into account the fact that moneys it gets from subscribers for this purpose and which it will not use for 50 years, will earn interest or income.

Phone Attorney Explains.

"The purpose that we have in mind," said Mr. Turner, "in computing the depreciation rate for central office equipment is to determine a rate which throughout the life of the office, applied to varying investments, will restore the amount of investment we have in the equipment, plus any salvage that we may obtain. The purpose of that is to get a rate, a similar rate that may be used throughout the over-all experience, so that we do not burden our expenses, along toward the end of the life of an office, as compared to the amount that we had set up in the early part of the experience."

Q. [Mr. Goldstein] You start off in the case of the Merrimac office with $378,000, and you expect to increase the investment up to 1944 to $3,000,000, and beginning with 1926, you establish a rate which will, by 1914, repay you not only the $378,000, but the balance to make up the $2,000,000. Is that correct. A. Yest, to restore the entire investment in the central office throughout its over-all life.

Fire in Forest Park Flat Building Routs 6 Families

Six families in Forest Park were driven to the street last night when a fire broke out in a six apartment building at 216 Des Plaines avenue. Alma Lowe, 48, who lives in the apartment, was overcome by smoke. She was taken to the Oak Park hospital. The damage was estimated at $2,000. The fire is believed to have started from crossed electric wires.

MAYOR CHARGES $1,015,391 EXCESS SCHOOL PROFITS

Reveals Report After Myers Is Re-elected.

are terrazzo with an asphalt tile field. Classrooms are unattractive. Cafeteria has wood flooring showing signs of improper workmanship. Fittings in service rooms are of galvanized iron."

Cost Twice as Much.

The Kelvyn school cost approximately twice as much as the school outside the city. In comparing cost items the cubic content of the Kelvyn has been reduced to make the comparison identical. A few items are:

Kind of work—	Kelvyn Pk. school.	Suburban school.
Glass	$ 7,490	$ 2,188
Heating	141,257	42,897
Electric wiring	87,750	7,292
Painting	13,746	6,505

The original Kelvyn Park school was erected in 1918, but the addition which is criticized is said to have been finished in 1928. This school is credited with 2,100 pupils and 58 teachers. The Wright Junior High school was finished in 1931 and has about 1,600 pupils.

"Those two schools illustrate the sort of spending which the Solid Six desire to continue," commented the mayor. "It is the sort of thing to which I am opposed, and I believe that the four trustees whom I appointed share my view on wasteful expenditures."

Four Votes for Carr.

Three of these four, Mrs. W. S. Hefferan, Orville J. Taylor and Ernst Buehler, voted for Robert F. Carr for president yesterday. Mr. Carr is the other Cermak appointee. He was also supported by William D. McJunkin, a holdover trustee. The vote was Myers, 6; Carr, 4.

Trustee Carr was not an active candidate. He did not want the position, in fact when he accepted the trusteeship he did not believe his health would permit him to serve more than a few months. However, he has remained a year.

Trustee McJunkin could have gained five votes as a candidate for economy, if Mrs. W. S. Hefferan had voted for him. She is a Cermak appointee, but is said to have refused to vote for McJunkin, charging that his desire to cut the cost of the schools went too far to suit her. Blatchford is said to have half way promised to vote for McJunkin, but changed his mind.

Hemingway Wanted It.

On the other side Trustee James A. Hemingway had five votes. It was pleaded in his favor that this is his last year and that he wanted to top off his service on the board. But, it is reported, President Myers refused to vote for Hemingway. To get Hemingway to vote for Myers he was elected vice president.

In the contest for the presidency there was considerable angling for Trustee John A. English's vote. However, he stuck with the holdover crowd.

Last summer when Gov. Emmerson's tax conference charged, after an investigation, that there had been $500,000 excess profits in the cost of the Parker Junior High school, the trustees were inclined to treat it lightly. Mayor Cermak said last night, "It will be hard to laugh this one off."

"A Matter for Grand Jury."

Trustee English said that he did not know anything about the mayor's charge. Then he added: "Any one can make a charge, but there's such a thing as proving it. If this is true, it's matter for the grand jury. Let the mayor go ahead."

Trustee Savage, the dominating influence among the hold-over trustees, replied:

"All I've got to say about Tony Baloney is that I wasn't even on the board of education when these schools were built. I don't know what he's talking about.

"The Dever school board built 32 schools on which we had to spend $7,000,000 to keep the walls from falling in. I don't charge those members with grafting though. I say that the contractors and architects were mistaken.

"If Cermak would stop grafting and padding pay rolls in the city hall we would have enough money to pay the school teachers. He's trying to use the board of education for political purposes. We elected Mr. Myers solely to prevent a Tammany Hall in Chicago."

During the debate at the school board meeting on a resolution by Trustee Caldwell, pledging the board not to shorten the school term and not to make any further salary reductions, Mr. Caldwell said:

"The mayor could save some graft if he were to discharge about 2,500 unneeded employés he now has on the city pay roll."

Trustee Buehler pointed out that the measure would prevent any further action in the way of cutting salaries to fit the 1932 budget to the revenue that can be expected. He contended that if expenditures were cut the city council probably would pass the 1932 tax levy ordinance and cash for overdue salaries could be obtained from the banks.

Despite his plea the resolution was adopted.

FISHER'S SPECIAL JURY MAY BEGIN GAMBLING PROBE

Members Ordered to Report on June 7.

Gambling throughout Cook county may be the subject of a special grand jury investigation, it was predicted yesterday when Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court revived the special jury which he appointed at the time of the "grand jury war" with Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg, just preceding the primary.

Gambling has already raised a controversy between Mayor Cermak and State's Attorney Swanson. The mayor contends that the state's attorney is making improper use of the city police assigned to his offices in sending them out on the raids which the prosecutor has been carrying on for two weeks.

Swanson May Lose Roche.

As a sidelight on that situation, it was reported yesterday that the state's attorney may soon lose his chief investigator, Pat Roche, to the Chicago police force. Roche has taken no part in the gambling raids. They were started soon after command of the state's attorney's police was transferred from Roche to Lieut. John Leonard, with the announcement that such an arrangement would give Roche more time for important investigation.

In drawing up the 1932 city budget Mayor Cermak recommended to the council finance committee that the job of police department attorney, paying $5,000 a year, be eliminated and that in its place an appropriation be made for a chief investigator in the department at $6,000 a year. The committee has concurred informally with the mayor's suggestion and Roche is said to be slated for the job.

Judge Talks to Jury.

Judge Fisher spoke briefly to his special grand jury yesterday and ordered its members to return to his courtroom June 7 for instructions. He said that he would probably appoint a special prosecutor to work with the grand jury at that time.

The judge's instruction to the jury, it was rumored, will contain a charge to investigate gambling, not only in Chicago, but in the country town districts, where thousands of slot machines are reported to have made their appearance in recent months.

The revival of the special grand jury led to expressions of doubt as to whether its actions would be valid. The law provides that in a special grand jury action where the state's attorney is disqualified by interest or is unable to act, that the attorney general shall be the prosecutor. State's Attorney Swanson is the Republican candidate to succeed himself.

Believes Carlstrom Disqualified.

Judge Fisher was asked whether he intended asking Attorney General Carlstrom, who since he lost the nomination for governor is not engaged in any political campaign, to conduct the investigation. He replied that the attorney general's position had been stated when the petition for a special grand jury was first presented to Judge Feinberg. At that time Mr. Carlstrom was a candidate for office, and Judge Fisher indicated that it is his belief that that fact disqualifies him at present.

Judge Fisher appointed his grand jury after 18 Circuit judges had held that Judge Feinberg was without power to appoint one because he was not assigned to the Criminal court. This ruling was upheld by the Illinois Supreme court, which held the Feinberg jury invalid. The argument was advanced yesterday that if Judge Feinberg had no power to appoint a grand jury, he had no power to accept a petition for the appointment of one, and that since Judge Fisher appointed his jury in response to the same petition his jury might also be illegal.

JACOBS BELIEVES MORTGAGES WILL ESCAPE TAXATION

Indicates These Intangibles Won't Be Assessed.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Assessor J. L. Jacobs indicated yesterday that he does not intend to tax mortgages at the rate established for real estate, railroads, and other tangible property. In several suits it has been urged that mortgages be placed upon the tax rolls. In the Lillian Cisar case it was claimed that the mortgages held in Cook county totaled $4,365,651,816, which is more than the aggregate assessed value of all the property on the county tax rolls at the peak of prosperity.

The attitude of Assessor Jacobs was expressed in reply to a direct question whether he will assess mortgages

"We presented a bill at the special session of the legislature prohibiting double taxation," he said. "It passed the senate but was pigeon-holed in the revenue committee of the house. This bill would have prohibited an assessment on a mortgage where a tax had been paid on the property it covered."

Loan Millions on Farms.

"It is said that many millions of Chicago money has been loaned on farms throughout the middle west," it was suggested to Mr. Jacobs. "These mortgages are held in Chicago. Will not the taxing of mortgages drive an enormous amount of business out of Chicago?"

"I appreciate that taxing mortgages is a serious matter," replied Mr. Jacobs. "The lawyers are hoping that the state Supreme court, in its formal opinion in the Cisar case, will give some instructions or other indications of what it thinks should be done. That would be helpful.

"I have written to every assessor in the state asking the practice in each county on the assessing of mortgages. The replies show that the amount assessed is negligible. Bear in mind I desire a fair and equitable assessment. At the same time I don't want to injure business because it is the one big need of the country at present."

Discuss Taxing Bank Accounts.

The effect of a tax on income from mortgages was discussed at length, as well as a tax on bank deposits. A tax on savings accounts, it was agreed, presents the most striking example of how the taxing of intangibles would operate.

If such savings should be taxed—which Assessor Jacobs has intimated will not be done—the tax in some instances would be more than the interest paid by the bank.

The tax assessment now in the making is for the tax year of 1931. Assume that a person started a savings account of $10 a month, on May 1, 1930. On April 1, 1931, the depositor would have $120 in the bank, subject to taxes.

Under the assessment ratio of 37 per cent the depositor would be taxed on $44.40. At an average rate of $6.15 per $100 of assessed value, the tax would be $2.73. The interest on the $120 would be approximately $1.80. So the owner of the savings account would actually pay 93 cents more than his income from the $120 just for the purpose of having a savings account.

Taxes Eat Up Interest.

If the policy of taxing savings were continued for the tax year of 1932 and the depositor continued to save at the rate of $10 a month, then an owner of the account would get $5.40 in interest and have $5.46 in taxes to pay. If the depositor had to pay car fare to make his monthly deposit his taxes and far fare would total $6.30. Under such conditions there would be few new savings accounts started.

On last Dec. 31 there was $469,514,000 in the savings accounts of the clearing house banks. Assuming that these accounts had been in the bank for a year the interest earned would total $14,085,420 on April 1, 1931.

If the savings accounts are assessed the $469,514,000 would be reduced by the assessment factor of 37 per cent to $173,720,180. At an average rate of $6.15 per $100 of assessed value, these savings account owners would be taxed $10,827,900. Of the $14,085,420 of interest earned on their savings they would have only $3,247,500 left for themselves, or 24.16 per cent of their earnings.

On commercial accounts, where the interest rate is one-half of 1 per cent, the tax assessment would be much more burdensome. The tax burden on mortgages would be so heavy that investors would not care for them.

Arabs and Jews Riot in Aden; 69 Hurt; Loot Shops

ADEN, Arabia, May 25.—(AP)—Sixty-nine persons were injured today in communal rioting after Arabs attacked Jewish inhabitants of the crater district of Aden, whom they accused of defiling a mosque. Jewish shops were looted and the attackers threw stones and bottles at the occupants.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success right in this city. So why waste time on external treatments or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

FATE OF CENSOR BOARD UPSETS WOMEN'S CLUBS

Protest Council Plan to Abolish Group.

Club women and others who have aided the motion picture censor board through twenty-two stormy years, learned yesterday that their protege may be left out in the cold, as far as the city council's 1932 budget is concerned.

The finance committee of the council voted unanimously yesterday to abolish the civil service board of motion picture censors and recommended that policemen do the work. Thus, based on the 1931 appropriation, the city would save close to $33,703, chiefly salaries at $2,040 to $2,880 a year of eight board members, and $110.55 weekly to each of two movie operators.

Chairman Is Surprised.

Mis Effie D. Sigler, chairman of the board since 1926, said the action came "as a surprise to us all." She said she didn't know a thing about it "until we read it in the newspapers."

"We were just as shocked as any one could be," Miss Sigler continued. "You can understand how we'd feel about it. We've done our best here and worked terribly hard from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., seeing every picture. Censoring is a controversial question, but our consciences are clear."

Questions Police Ability.

Mrs. Arthur F. Planck, chairman of the motion picture committee of the Chicago Woman's club, also was "shocked." "The women's clubs are going to be very unhappy about all this," she said.

"Why don't they eliminate some of the policemen," Mrs. Planck went on. "Just any one can't censor motion pictures. People have to have a certain amount of education. It was a self-supporting board, too."

Mrs. Hannah Solomon, a member of the Woman's club committee since its beginning, called the action of the finance committee "outrageous" and "incredible."

Ex-Star Upholds Action.

In the motion picture censor board camp was one member who upheld the finance committee's action. Miss Frances James, a former motion picture star, and appointed to the board by Mayor Cermak, said the board cost the city a lot of money and even though she might be out of a job she was "still satisfied it is the best way."

"The council is doing a marvelous job in saving the taxpapers' money. If the club women elect them to save money, then they ought to be satisfied with the results," she declared.

"As for paying its own way, if you want to get technical, you can say that the motion picture industry pays our salaries in fees. If we weren't there, those fees would go to the city treasury. Other departments bring in revenue and aren't thought of as self-supporting.

"I think the police would make good censors. The police have at least seen life, and therefore would be more fit to pass judgment on a film."

U. S. Officials in Chicago Discuss Their Problems

The monthly meeting of the Federal Building association, composed of heads of the various departments representing the United States government in Chicago, was held last night in the administration building of the Century of Progress. Following a dinner a general discussion of problems affecting administration was held.

TOWER OF LONDON BECOMES KEY TO AERIAL DEFENSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 25.—The ancient Tower of London is to be the key of the London anti-aircraft defense, it was learned today. Within a few months the tower, now controlled by the infantry, will be turned over to the air force under command of an air vice marshal who will outrank the commander in chief of the army in the London district.

During the war guns posted on this tower scored more hits on Zeppelins and airplanes than all others in London near the Thames river, which invaders used as a guide.

Two companies of royal engineers also will be stationed in the tower. Further improvement in the London air defense is the building of gun emplacements in Victoria gardens on the Thames beside the house of lords and in the Temple and Gray's Inn gardens.

DIES AFTER DRINKING POISON.

Michael Kalocyck, 64 years old, 2844 North Rockwell street, died yesterday as a result of drinking poison five days ago in an attempt to commit suicide.

BRIDE HURLS SELF TO FIERY DEATH ON WEDDING NIGHT

MADRAS, India, May 25.—(AP)—A young bride who preferred death to marriage threw herself on a blazing funeral pyre on her wedding night, it was learned today. The tragedy occurred at Masulipatam.

Considerable opposition among the Hindus has arisen recently over the strict religious laws governing the lives of married women.

An illustrative incident was the subterfuge adopted recently by a prominent Hindu of marrying his daughter to a cow. Thus he protected her from early marriage and the beast could be killed when the girl herself had decided she was ready for matrimony.

A Hindu woman or girl upon marriage must immediately go into purdah (absolute seclusion).

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE HOOVER-SMITH DEBATE.

President Hoover's letter to the American Society of Civil Engineers presents his argument for federal investment in reproductive as against nonreproductive public works. Former Gov. Smith has not been convinced by the President's argument. He calls it hair-splitting. In Mr. Smith's view, the problem of relieving the distress of millions of Americans "transcends all technicalities." Any scheme which will put men to work is a good scheme, whatever may be the need or the lack of need for the thing they are building.

When the President drew the distinction between the reproductive and the nonreproductive he gave an illustration which shows clearly what he has in mind. The Pennsylvania railroad has obtained a loan from the government's Reconstruction Finance corporation with which to continue the work of electrifying its line from New York to Washington, a project which has been fully planned and upon which much work has already been done. Because of the difficulty of obtaining credit the project was in danger of being dropped. Sound business and engineering judgment is that the electrification will earn a return on what it costs. The repayment of the money which the government advances for completion of the work is pledged by the railroad and the cost should, therefore, never become a charge on the taxpayers.

As much cannot be said for Gov. Smith's proposals to build any sort of public works for which the need may be slight or nonexistent and which will earn no direct return. The only way these projects can be financed is through direct taxation as the work proceeds or through bond issues which must be paid off later by taxation. In either case they constitute a threat of higher taxation now or in the future and to that extent will serve further to discourage other enterprise which is already frightened by the load of federal taxation.

Mr. Hoover is beginning to see that the confiscation of productive capital to be dissipated on useless public works cannot remedy the panic. He has not said so, but it is clear to his countrymen that the panic was brought on, to no small extent, precisely because of the reckless waste of the wealth of the country on useless government services including, notoriously, useless public works. If public extravagance explains the condition in which we find ourselves today it is difficult to believe that more waste will fail to drive us deeper into despair.

Mr. Smith and other political leaders have not yet grasped that relationship. It is curious that Mr. Smith and Mr. Hoover each sees half of a program of genuine reconstruction. Mr. Hoover has thought through the problem of public works. Mr. Smith has thought through the problem of new taxation. He perceives that there is a large revenue to be obtained from taxing liquor, the manufacture and sale of which today is the only untaxed industry in the United States. A great part of the distrust, bred of fear of higher taxes, which has been evident in this country since congress convened would disappear if congress would legalize beer and tax it, thereby freeing other industries from some part of their burden of overhead costs. Mr. Hoover blinds himself deliberately to that possibility of restoring confidence here and abroad in the government's ability and willingness to balance its budget.

JUSTICE TO VETERANS.

National Commander Stevens of the American Legion, addressing a massmeeting of members of that organization, expressed an indignation which will seem to most nonveterans and even to many veterans, if not wholly unjustified, at least misdirected. It implies an attitude in congress and the government which the treatment of the veterans' just claims does not generally verify. If the rate on veterans' loans is too high, that is a matter which can and will be corrected upon a proper showing; also well advised relief to avoid loss of insurance may be counted upon if conditions call for it. As to reduction of compensation, that is a more difficult question, but we do not think there is reason in the past or present attitude of congress toward the veterans for fear that just protest will be ignored.

We fully share Mr. Stevens' objection to making the disabled veteran a special object of retrenchment while other expenditures of the government go on without proper cuts, while many unnecessary or even improper services of the federal government are maintained. In fact, a reduction of justified compensation of veterans should be the last to be adopted. But drastic retrenchment in public expenditure is a vital necessity to the welfare of the nation, including most certainly that of ex-service men and their dependents.

But veteran relief of one kind and another has now reached an extent and complexity and a gravity from the viewpoint of public expenditure which calls for a thorough and authoritative review. We do not think there is any reason for the fear Commander Stevens seems to feel that there is any disposition in the public or the government to ignore or underestimate the claims or legitimate needs of the veterans he specifies, the "disabled service men," who "stood with one foot on the firng step of the trench," that "went over beside you and me and perhaps fired the shot that saved our lives." But this appeal is far from covering the field of actual benefits now provided ex-service men and much less the difficult questions of efficient and economical administration, and should not confuse their consideration. Improper relief or wasteful expenditure will work injustice even to the veterans whose need is real and whose claims upon the nation are just. It depletes the funds otherwise available to such men and it weakens the sentiment upon which they may otherwise depend for fair and liberal aid.

There is no reluctance to give that aid anywhere in the country today, but there is reluctance, and it is growing, to submit, especially at this time of universal sacrifice, to unfair demands, covered by generalities which do not apply to increasing classes of beneficiaries. Veteran relief should not be permitted to be exploited by racketeers or the gratitude of the nation for actual service and real sacrifice to be abused by individuals selfishly and unwarrantedly seeking benefits at public expense.

A TEXAS BLOW-UP.

Virginia began to rumble against the noble experiment a few months ago to the astonishment of some who thought that Bishop Cannon had extinguished state rights and individual liberty in his dominion. Even with this preparation for Dixie phenomena the explosion of Morris Sheppard's party in Texas was an unexpected blow-up. Mr. Sheppard's work on the eighteenth amendment had given the big state the reputation of being the home of federal prohibition, at least if Ohio, the home of the Anti-Saloon league, would waive the distinction, which, in the last few elections, it seems entirely willing to do.

The Democratic party convention in Texas voted for the resubmission of the eighteenth amendment. That's not much, to be sure, but it's a great deal more in Texas than it would be in many of the other states. Probably when the south cracks on prohibition it will crack high, wide and handsome.

Reliable report has it that President Hoover also is turning toward the resubmission of the amendment as the most promising way of meeting the consequences of political turmoil. He is said to be working over the phrasing of a plank in the Republican platform which will rededicate the constitution to the will of the people by recommending another vote on the amendment.

This would recognize merely an elementary principle. It is not the theory of the American government that the people shall be denied the right to repeal a law when they cease to have use for it or confidence in it. Many prohibitionists now feel that they must concede something to the normal requirements of the American scheme. It isn't much, but they have not, hitherto, been inclined to concede anything. When they do it will be in confidence that the great folly of inserting police law in the constitution will almost automatically protect itself.

There is little doubt that a national statute of prohibition, the Volstead act or any other, submitted to popular vote would be repealed within the next few years, if there were a way or necessity for the repeal of an act by the vote of the majority of the states. But thirteen states can stop repeal of an amendment and the liberal concessions of the prohibitionists rest upon that fact. The concession is intended as a pacifier.

CRIMINALS AND REFORMATORIES.

Judge Mary Bartelme of the Juvenile court will not be accused by reasonable folk of any disposition toward harsh judgment upon youthful offenders. It is sound sense and great knowledge of conditions which supports her remarks upon the case of the 15 year old criminal who escaped from the St. Charles School for Boys the other day. "Boys of that age," she says, "who persistently defy the law and fail to show encouraging responses to the influences of the St. Charles school should be bound over to the grand jury and tried in the Criminal court and when convicted sent to the Pontiac reformatory." The managing officer of the St. Charles school says it is no place for such as Gallichio, a persistent and probably incurable criminal. But the state's attorney's office points out that under an existing statute the age limit for Pontiac is 16 to 26 and Gallichio is under the limit. The several statutes dealing with juvenile delinquency seem to be in need of an overhauling.

In any case Gallichio is going to be a threat to the community which ought not to be ignored. The reformatory possibilities of Pontiac offer little promise in his case and it is to be hoped that doubts will be resolved in favor of the protection of the public from his future probable development. It is a perverted humanitarianism that gambles with the safety of innocent victims on the prospects of a repeated offender's reformation. Sentimentalism over youth when youth rates a high percentage of our worst crime has had too much to do with our criminal administration. Old or young, the habitual criminal should have stricter treatment at the hands of the law.

WHY THE RUSH!

[New York Sun.]

Two psychologists of the University of Iowa announce that it is possible greatly to accelerate the normal mental development of children. One of them suggests that a day may come when educational processes will have been so speeded that youngsters will be entering high school at the age of 6. Why anybody should wish to rush children that young into high school is not explained.

Now and then an infant prodigy comes along to amaze everybody by mental achievements unusual in one of his years. If the prodigy doesn't bore folk, his parents or teachers are almost certain to do so. It takes a rare soul to be modest and discreet as the guardian of an unusually forward child. What commonly happens is that the responsible preceptor adopts something of the manner of a professional animal trainer in putting his charge through its paces. The world supposes that when an animal does astonishing things it is because the trainer is remarkably clever; it suspects that a similar reason may explain many triumphs of precocious humanity.

Before the professors at Iowa or anywhere else can expect the public to get excited over high school admissions at the age of 6 they will have to make it clear that there is reason for the hurry. Life is admittedly short, but it is not so short as all that.

PROS AND CONS OF BEVERAGES.

COCOA, chocolate, milk, buttermilk, tea, coffee, and water are in competition as table beverages. The more important advantages and disadvantages of each of these rank about as indicated below.

Water has no food value. We drink it because our bodies need it to dissolve our foods, on the one hand, and the tissue wastes on the other. The need of it is so fundamental that nature provides us with a special sensation devised to drive us to the water hole. It is thirst. We take it with our meals to assist in moistening our foods, that we may the better swallow them; and also that the stomach may the more easily grind and mix them and digest and pass them on. The best water is that which is neutral as to taste and medium as to temperature.

Tea and coffee, when unmixed with sugar and cream, are not much more than water holding in solution some stimulant and a little oils and tannic acid. The stimulant in coffee is caffein. Research has shown that an average healthy adult can take habitually about two average sized cups of medium strength coffee in a day without harm. Nevertheless, caffein is a drug with definite powers for good as a medicine when it is needed, and just as definite powers for harm when it is taken when not needed, or when it is wrongly used in any way.

The average person who drinks coffee flavors it with sugar and cream. These are foods and coffee mixed with them has definite food value. When the drink which the French call café au lait, or milk with enough coffee and sugar to flavor, is dunked with bread the combination makes a meal containing a pretty good allowance of calories.

When persons complain of indigestion caused by coffee it is the aromatic oil that is the basis of their complaint. Over against the claim that coffee causes indigestion is the testimony of those who think coffee aids digestion. The latter claim is well founded when it applies to the small cup of black coffee taken without sugar or cream at the end of a meal, particularly if the diner has eaten rather too heavily.

Tea is not much more than water flavored with aromatics, containing a drug called theine and some tannins. It has no food value. The drug theine is almost identical with caffein, having the same advantages and disadvantages, the same uses and subject to the same abuses. When persons complain of indigestion due to tea drinking they have reference to the effects of tannins. When the beverage is served with cream and sugar it acquires food values in proportion to the quantities of these ingredients used. When it is served with lemon rather than with cream it gains some of the antiscorbutic properties of the fruit, but it loses those calories that milk or cream would have supplied.

As is the case with coffee, tea is less apt to be harmful when taken at mealtime. The people who take afternoon tea are wise if they eat as they drink, eating more food and drinking less tea than is the custom. If they would limit their beverage to plain warm water, or warm water flavored with very little tea, they would be on safer ground.

CRACKING JAWS.

Mrs. E. A. B. writes: I am 35 years old. For the last few years my jaws crack every time I chew. I have never had this trouble before. It does not hurt, but it is very annoying.

REPLY.

This is a mild arthritis. You will probably find that other joints are affected. The probability is that the jaw joint trouble will do no more harm than it is now causing.

SALT LAKE A GOOD PLACE.

W. C. H. writes: What are the effects of climate upon a sinus condition? It seems to be the general belief that a high altitude and low humidity climate is good for sinus. I am trying to find such a place where there are commercial opportunities for myself—advertising or selling. I have in mind Salt Lake City, where the elevation is said to be around 4,000 feet, against Chicago's 600 feet, and a humidity of 82, as against Chicago's 74.

REPLY.

The climate cure for sinus trouble is about the best we have. The climate at Salt Lake City is a good one.

BAD FOR PEDESTRIANS.

Chicago, May 22.—[Friend of the People.]—Is there not some law prohibiting trucks running over sidewalks into prairies and empty lots? A butcher shop in our neighborhood continually has trucks running across the sidewalk into the empty lot opposite their building and the mud which is carried on to the sidewalk makes it very inconvenient for pedestrians. M. P.

Report is made that proprietor of the market and a meat truck driver were both notified to desist from the practice complained of. Assurance was given there would be no further cause for complaint. Location will be kept under observation.

CONGRESS has picked out two nines which are going to play a game of baseball at Washington with all the other senators and representatives looking on and rooting. The idea should be encouraged. It would be fine if the members of congress would play football, too, and polo, tennis, pingpong, croquet, archery, golf, chess, checkers, bridge, penny ante, ring-around-the-rosy, blind man's buff, marbles, jackstones, or anything else that would keep them out in the open and away from the capitol. SHEBA CAME TO SOLOMON.

Sheba came to Solomon,—
In silks and perfumes rare,
A scepter in her dainty hand
And jewels in her hair.

Sheba came to Solomon
To where he sat in state,
Power and wealth proclaiming him
The greatest of the great.

Sheba came to Solomon—
He looked into her face,
And straightway power vanished,
And wealth, and rank, and place.

Sheba came to Solomon—
The skies were blue above,
And she was just a woman,
And he, a man—in love!

And that is most encouraging
To think about today,
What though your love be haughty
And very far away!

If Sheba could be woman,
And Solomon be man,
Forgetting all their wealth and rank,
The lesser lovers can

Forget what lies between them,
And know but love. Altho——
When Sheba came to Solomon
'Twas many years ago!

MARJORIE F. W.

WELL, WELL, WE'RE GETTING ON! Mr. Hoover is reported as favoring a plank in the G. O. P. platform calling for a submission of the prohibition mess to the several states. The question now before us is as to whether prohibition is still a noble experiment or just noble or just an experiment.

MAX THE BOOTLEGGER was quite sad yesterday over the news from Washington that the administration is said to be in favor of submitting the question of prohibition to the states. "What good does it do," asked Max, plaintively, "fer a guy to work hard and build up a nice business getting the real stuff fer the publik an' then fer them birds down in Washington to come out with a scheme to put the skids under all us boys? Here I take big risks an' everything an' git the best likker that anybody wants an' the government goes to work to knock out my business an' put me on tha bum. Gosh, hain't them guys got no principle?" It is, indeed, a tough world.

MAYOR JIMMIE WALKER appeared on the witness stand before the Hofstadter investigating committee and gave a most delightful performance which has set New York roaring with merriment. James answered the very personal questions asked by Samuel Seabury with wise cracks, speeches, anecdotes, witty wheezes, and happy reminiscences. However, he did not attempt to sing any of his songs or do soft shoe dancing, but, of course, his testimony is not ended yet. If Jimmie stays on the stand another day New York will simply arise en masse and insist on his being the Democratic nominee for the presidency.

OR MAYBE AFTER THE TRIAL is over Mr. Seabury might be persuaded to go on a vaudeville tour with Jimmie—Walker and Seabury, the Comedy Twins. Mr. Seabury, from the answers James made to his questions yesterday, seems a natural born feeder—that's the actor who gives the star performer the chance of saying smart things by asking him questions. Mr. Seabury seems to be a natural born feeder; every question he asked gave Jimmie a chance for dazzling repartee. We do hope that Walker and Seabury play Chicago if they can be persuaded to go into vaudeville. It would be a great show and play to packed houses, although it might be a trifle wearing on Mr. Seabury.

LONDON HAS INTRODUCED penguin eggs from the antarctic and is selling them daily by the thousand in place of hens' eggs, while Russia is encouraging the production of rabbits for a new meat supply. It might be that some day we would be willing to eat a couple of soft boiled penguin eggs, but we've got to be very hungry before we eat rabbits. Patiently enduring as we do the army of bureaucrats at Washington and all the taxes that the government, the state, the city, the township heap upon us, and bearing with sweet serenity the savage tyranny of the dry minority, makes us feel so much like a rabbit we just couldn't eat one. Why, we'd be a cannibal.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

What is the importance of Ibsen?

[This question will be repeated and answered in this space tomorrow.]

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION:

In which one of the fine arts does the greatest contrast appear between modern developments and the attainments of the classical period?

ANSWER:

Music has probably made the greatest advances. It is true we know little about Greek music, but even if we assume that it was highly artistic, it could not have compared with ours. Modern music is virtually a creation of the last three centuries. This is due partly to the development of many new musical instruments, and even more to the exploration of the fields not only of melodies, but of harmonies and combinations of harmonies.

NATIONAL CONVENTIONS

DEMOCRATIC—1912.

Baltimore, Md., July 3.—The Democratic national convention, after eight days of warlike sessions, and after forty-six ballots, nominated Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey for President. The final ballot gave Wilson 990 votes and Champ Clark of Missouri 84 votes. Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana was nominated for Vice President.

The first ballot taken on June 29 resulted: Clark, 440½; Wilson, 324; Harmon, 143; Underwood, 117, with the rest of the votes scattered. On the tenth ballot Clark received his largest vote of 556, while Wilson received 350½ and Underwood 117½. From that time Clark steadily lost strength until the final ballot, which gave Wilson the winning votes.

It is to Illinois and to Roger Sullivan, chairman of its delegation, that Mr. Wilson owes his victory. When it became apparent that the side to which Mr. Sullivan would throw his 58 votes would win the Illinois delegation in caucus determined to stick by Mr. Clark until Mr. Wilson received a majority of the votes. On the forty-third ballot Mr. Sullivan announced forty votes for Wilson and eighteen votes for Clark, whereupon Chairman Ollie James of Kentucky announced that, under the unit rule, Illinois cast its fifty-eight votes for Wilson. Then other states joined in the stampede.

The naming of Wilson is a tremendous personal victory for William J. Bryan, not so much in the matter of the nominee as his accomplishment of the downfall of the reactionary forces represented in the convention by Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany boss, and Thomas F. Ryan and August Belmont, the Wall street financiers.

The convention has been the most exciting and warlike in the history of the party. At times the delegates became unrestrained and fist fights and other personal encounters were frequent.

The French made three attempts to recapture Cumieres. Berlin says all the attacks failed.

EDUCATION IN A DEMOCRACY.

Iron River, Mich., May 23.—Thank you for your editorial on Democracy and Education appearing in your May 22 issue.

An inflexible school system that will not bend to fit the needs of the individual and the community in which he lives has been a contributing factor in the breakdown of our economic structure. Extravagance has not been the greatest of its faults, though we are coming to see that we are paying too high a price for the little our so-called educational plant is rendering in services to the community. Rather it is the system's insistence on mass production methods in education that causes most of the mischief.

Every child must be run through the same machine and ground out in precisely the same manner as his fellows. Pupils in Podunk are taught—they do not learn—the same things as those in the great metropolis, though the living conditions in the two places are widely divergent. No thought is given to meet the facts and train pupils to face life as they will have to live it after they leave the sheltered environment of the schools. To illustrate:

Recently, in an address before a local Parent-Teacher association, I criticized the teaching of domestic science in our own school system, pointing out that it did not fit our needs. We live in a mining and lumbering community, where the percentage of European peasantry, recently transplanted, is very large. The population, needless to say, is poor. During my talk I stressed the necessity for teaching our girls how to mend and patch properly and how to remodel old clothing before going on to instruct them in the making of new garments. My experience with domestics and numberless contacts with the families hereabouts have taught me that such instruction is a crying need. But the faculty here did not agree with me at all, at all. Such teaching, they told me, was impossible. It was old fashioned. No supervisor of domestic science would countenance such procedure. Etc., ad nauseam. In addition, I was informed that the pupils could not be interested in these dreary tasks.

In the last sentence we have an explanation of how our school system hinders rather than helps society. What is a dreary task and why? Unfortunately we have departed so radically from the simpler and more solid ways of living that homely work has become irksome, even when most necessary, and so is completely and disdainfully neglected. Any work with the hands can be made interesting if it is seen as a needed segment of the harmonious whole of living and there is a definite joy to be found in doing even the simplest and most routine job well, if it is so regarded. It might be a good idea for our teachers to inquire into this phenomenon. Possibly they could apply it personally to good advantage in their teaching. And, after having learned the lesson of doing well and joyously whatever comes to hand, pass this information on to their pupils. H. M. L.

TUITION CHARGE AT NORMAL.

Chicago, May 18.—Why not charge a nominal tuition fee to the students of Chicago Normal college instead of closing the school? The cost of maintenance would not be eliminated by closing because the building is shared with Parker Practice. Moreover, the students who are enrolled in the college have been subjected to an entrance examination given by the board of education, and, inasmuch as they have been admitted to the college on the strength of that examination, is it fair for the board to close the school before the students have completed the required course of training? Nor is the fact that there are not enough jobs for teachers a logical reason for closing, for can the presidents of universities guarantee jobs to the thousands of students who graduate annually and semi-annually from institutions of higher learning? The only fair way of settling the difficulty in so far as Normal college is concerned is to ask the enrolled student body to pay a tuition fee every semester. Mrs. B. R. D.

A PEDDLER'S REPLY.

Chicago, May 14.—I am referring to an article in your newspaper of our business men complaining about unfair competition from peddlers and wanting to have licenses raised on peddlers to three times what they are now. If the city votes that raise, why our city can close up and go to sleep for a long time, as it will drive all peddlers out of business. Don't business men understand that there will be from 20,000 to 50,000 more people on the county charities if peddlers go out of business? I myself am a peddler with a truck. I get along. I have a family of four children and a wife. If I have to pay more taxes I will have to give it up and live off charity, which I hate to do, and maybe 50,000 more people will do the same. Will our business men give me a job if they want me out of business? I will wait by the telephone for their rush calls to come right to work. CHARLES KORN.

ROOSEVELT ROAD "L" STATION.

Chicago, May 13. — It seems to the writer that something should be done to convince the Chicago Rapid Transit company that a new, clean station would be a good thing to put at Roosevelt road, if not for us Chicago people, then at least to give our out of town visitors that come in at the Illinois Central railroad station a different impression of Chicago. The air in the station is so foul that one would think the health department would close the place. This station will be the most used station when the World's Fair is opened next year, and what a sight it will be for the thousands that will use it if the elevated company does not wake up and either tear or burn the old shack down!

WALTER W. NIEHAUS.

A THREAT.

Chicago, May 20.—Perhaps those legislators who can't or won't see that the first step towards financial recovery must be a tremendous reduction of government expenses would have their intellects sharpened and their eyes opened by a popular hue and cry of 25 per cent reduction or no election contributions.

STATE URGED TO BUILD ROADS IN CITY AREAS ONLY

Advised to Drop Minor Rural Highways.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., May 25.—[Special.]—Grade separations, widening, and municipal pavements were described here today by the Chicago Motor club as the only types of expensive construction for the next biennium that can be justified economically with benefits to the motorists in proportion to the cost of the improvements.

The statement was made by George Barton, engineer for the club, before the governor's road commission, which is preparing the future highway program of Illinois for presentation to the legislature next year. The statement came on the heels of petitions, mainly from downstate, for 5,700 miles of additional rural roads which would cost $142,500,000 to build with concrete.

Elevated Highway Needed.

"An elevated highway for Chicago, costing $20,000,000, as has been seen from the Springfield viewpoint in the past," said Mr. Barton, "has been considered as too expensive for the state to build at a time when rural slabs were being laid in remote sections of the state for $25,000 to $30,000 per mile.

"Yet there is expert opinion that the elevated highway would be worth more than $20,000,000 to the motorists who pay the state's highway bill and there are opinions just as authoritative that 1,600 miles of slab has been laid in Illinois at a cost of $32,000,000 in excess of the benefits to the automobile owners of the state.

"This commission was directed by the 1931 legislature to map a highway program free from politics and sound economically. There will be no excuse for mistakes and crimes committed in the state bond issue systems compiled by politicians scrambling for pavements for their constituents.

"Before your report to the '33 legislature is completed you will have facts on the state's roads based on the only comprehensive traffic survey ever undertaken in Illinois.

Traffic Needs Evaluated.

"The survey will give you a measuring stick on the value of individual proposals, but already certain basic facts are obvious. The bond issue laws did not permit expenditures in the larger cities of the state. Those cities, with their heavy traffic paying revenue to the state, now require and deserve improvements from the state.

"The bond issue laws designated two lane, high type, expensive pavement for a mileage that has required the bulk of the state road revenue for fifteen years. On much of the mileage the traffic has not been heavy enough to justify more than an all weather surface costing only a fraction of the cost of slab. On other mileage, particularly in the metropolitan area, two lanes were insufficient width and the congestion at busy intersections interfered with efficient use of pavement. And the allocation of large expenditures on the bond issue system caused a neglect for a secondary system of cheaper roads.

Widening Progresses Rapidly.

"Widening has progressed in the metropolitan area in the last two years so that there are only a few more roads with traffic justifying additional pavement. A start has been made in building grade separations, although structures are not being placed where most needed. A start has been made on municipal construction with the $7,000,000 appropriation for this purpose in the highway department's $100,000,000 biennium budget passed in '31. A start has been made on the secondary roads with the 1 cent allotment to the counties from the gasoline tax.

"It is the duty of this commission, as viewed by the Chicago Motor club, to follow the traffic survey as a guide for a program based on sound economics allotting substantial sums for municipal improvements, continuing the construction of grade separations with increased progress, finishing the widening, and providing for cheap all weather surfaces on secondary roads. A most serious error would be to follow the mistakes of the bond issue system in tying up large sums for many years for expensive pavements in rural areas, as has been urged by various local delegations before this commission."

Darrow Home, Pleads Case of Hawaii Before Public

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

So much poppycock—the word is Clarence Darrow's—has been circulated about racial conditions in Hawaii that Mr. Darrow felt impelled, upon his return to Chicago yesterday, to tell something of his observations there.

There is no race problem in the islands, the veteran lawyer said. Law and order prevails there in at least the same degree that it does in American cities, he declared.

Heads Fight for Pardons.

Mr. Darrow also talked of his plans to gain a full pardon for the clients he defended in the celebrated Massie case, and he revealed that he has several avenues of strategy planned. He may petition Gov. Lawrence M. Judd of Hawaii for a pardon restoring the privileges of citizenship to Lieut. Thomas H. Massie; the lieutenant's mother-in-law, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and the two naval enlisted men, all of whom were tried for the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, the Hawaiian accused of raping Lieut. Massie's wife. It was Gov. Judd, who granted commutations of the sentences imposed upon the four defendants.

Mr. Darrow believes, however, that congress has authority to pass a law granting the same relief, and it may even be possible, the lawyer said, for the governor of Kentucky—the home state of Lieut. Massie—to grant a pardon.

Darrow Defends Hawaii.

But Mr. Darrow, while talking freely of the Massie case, seemed more interested yesterday in righting what he thought was an unjust impression of Hawaii gained by the American people. He said Honolulu is as safe for man or woman as any American city.

"Americans are inclined to put so much emphasis on racial prejudice," Mr. Darrow said. "In Honolulu it just doesn't exist. The judge in the Massie case [Charles S. Davis] is married to a woman half Hawaiian and half Chinese. Many of the leading "whites" in Honolulu have mixed blood, or are married to women of other races.

"Strangers in the island must be wary of expressing opposite opinions on racial matters to white men who live there, for it is quite likely the latter will be related to Hawaiians or members of another race.

Whites Convict Massie.

"The juror who was the very last to give in in signing the Massie guilty verdict was himself half Hawaiian and half Scotch, and he was married to a Hawaiian woman.

"I am telling you these things only to show that there is absolutely no friction between the races in Hawaii."

Any feeling which might exist on the islands is rather a class feeling, Mr. Darrow said. The whites own most of the property and the Hawaiians are the laboring class.

"I should make it plain that there can be no question about the facts shown in the trial of the Massie case," he said. "The rape occurred just as Mrs. Massie described it. But the Massie case should be viewed by the American public as an isolated incident. It doesn't contribute one whit toward a discussion of racial or political conditions, or of law and order in Honolulu."

Admits Navy Views Differ.

Mr. Darrow admitted that he does not reflect the viewpoint of the naval authorities, nor of the naval colony in Hawaii.

"They are fine fellows, but they have a navy point of view," he said. "If everything isn't all right, shoot, or put it under martial law, is their view. Many of them are in favor of putting Hawaii under the control of the army and navy, of taking away the islands' rights, or putting them under direct government by Washington.

"That's ridiculous. None of the people, whites or natives who live there, want any change in government. I am entirely satisfied that Hawaii should be left alone."

CURTIS WILL BE PROSECUTED FOR LINDBERGH HOAX

Charge to Be Given to Grand Jury Today.

New York, May 25.—[Special.]—With the decision today to prosecute John Hughes Curtis for his elaborate deception regarding his search for and contact with the kidnapers and murderers of the Lindbergh baby, two grand juries in New York and New Jersey will have before them all the information that has been gathered since the case first started three months ago.

JOHN H. CURTIS.

A misdemeanor charge against the Norfolk, Va., shipbuilder will be presented tomorrow to the Hunterdon county grand jury by Prosecutor A. W. Hauck, while on June 2 the Bronx county grand jury will resume its inquiry into the circumstances of the ransom payment of $50,000 made by Dr. John F. Condon, or Jafsie, as he has been commonly called throughout the case.

Attorney Issues Statement.

W. C. Pender, attorney for Curtis, issued a statement today in Norfolk in which he said there was little doubt that his client would be indicted for obstruction of justice from his examination of the evidence and exhibits the state intends to present to the grand jury. He said he had been assured that in event the grand jury returns a true bill he would be afforded ample time to prepare his defense.

"The trial will not be held in June at least," he declared. He declined to discuss his conversations with Curtis or indicate whether the shipbuilder commented on his own confession.

Another Clew Blows Up.

The tentative identification made by Dr. Condon of a rogues' gallery photograph as that of the man to whom he paid the ransom in the Bronx cemetery definitely collapsed today. An investigation revealed that the picture was that of a man named John Swenson, who "had no possible connection with the case," it was officially announced.

Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz, the two men commissioned by Col. Lindbergh to act as his agents in negotiations for the return of his child, will be questioned soon, it was learned today, by the New Jersey state police.

A narcotic suspect, arrested, was likewise cleared of complicity in the case, although wanted by authorities on drug charges. State police had nothing left to work upon but the finding of a coat hanging on a fence near a children's home at Camden. The coat contained notes asking "How is the baby?"

MASSIE ATTACK TRIAL POSTPONED BY PROSECUTION

HONOLULU, May 25.—(AP)—On motion of Prosecutor John C. Kelley the notorious Ala Moana assault case, in which Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie was complaining witness, was removed today from the trial calendar to be set at some future date. The second trial of the four youths of mixed races was to have started today. The jury disagreed in their first trial.

Although subpoenaed to appear in territorial Circuit court today to testify against the four, Mrs. Massie sailed a fortnight ago for the mainland. She is now in Kentucky, the home state of her husband, a navy lieutenant who recently was convicted of slaying one of the original five in the attack case.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 25. — (AP) — Today was Argentina's "Fourth of July" and it was the coldest day of the year.

The usual military display was omitted on this 122d anniversary of Argentine independence, but Buenos Aires teemed with men and officers of the army and navy, here to attend the funeral of former Dictator Jose Uriburu Friday.

BONUS ARMY IS STILL EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON

Supplied Trucks by Gov. Leslie of Indiana.

Washington, Ind., May 25.—[Special.]—Transportation was arranged tonight for the bonus army, whose present day slogan is "Washington or Bust," and at least the expeditionary force has reached here en route to Washington, D. C.

The ex-fighters, who intend to stage a demonstration at the national capital in favor of immediate payment of bonuses, have been promised a ride in style clear across the state of Indiana. Gov. Harry G. Leslie has ordered National Guard motor trucks to be put at the disposition of the 350 or 400 veterans who made their way here by commandeering freight trains, taking possession of railroad property, and on the latest lap by the courtesy of Sheriff Munie of St. Clair county, Illinois, who supplied trucks to get them through Illinois without further disturbance in that state.

The cross country travelers—most of the army was recruited on the Pacific coast—paraded through the streets of Washington this afternoon under the command of Walter W. Eaters.

Second Army Delayed.

East St. Louis, Ill., May 25.—[Special.] — The National Guard troops were started home this afternoon on orders of acting Gov. Fred Sterling when the second "army" of hitch hiking veterans on a bonus pilgrimage to Washington failed to show up. There were reports yesterday that from 300 to 800 bonus marchers were coming in during the night from Utah and other points west.

When Lieut. Col. Robert W. Davis, in command of the militia, conducted an investigation he found that exactly sixteen veterans had arrived and these crossed the river this morning and boarded an east bound Pennsylvania freight train.

Ohio to Provide Trucks.

Columbus, O., May 25.—[Special.]—Gov. George White announces he will provide the ex-soldiers transportation in the National Guard and highway department trucks through Ohio.

Phantom Battle Is Raging at Custer Training Camps

BY HUGH SEXTON.

Camp Custer, Battle Creek, Mich., May 25.—[Special.]—A phantom battle rages over the rolling countryside west of Camp Custer. The roads are choked with truck trains. The rumble of artillery hidden in the valleys rises and falls, punctuated by the sharp rattle of machine guns. Observation, bombardment and attack planes roar overhead in vast wings that darken the sky. Night falls and the lights and sounds of war haunt the quiet of the deserted fields. Cavalry emerges from the trees and gallops toward the front. Tanks clank slowly down the road.

All these are ghosts, except in the minds of 400 tired and harassed men grouped in tents spaced miles apart, who are pouring over thick sheafs of maps, reading an endless flow of messages, combat orders and communiques, and conversing tersely over field telephones. To them it is war, real war, the kind of war that is fought in the command posts of division, corps and armies.

The 400 tired and harassed men are regular army, National Guard and reserve officers from Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan. They are engaged in the most comprehensive command post maneuvers conducted in the United States since the war. The maneuver is being directed by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker of Chicago, commander of the Sixth corps area, and is the results of more than a year's preparation.

The war has been under way since Monday noon, day and night, and the participants are weary with lack of sleep, harassed by the uncertainty and delays between messages giving vital information of the enemy and their own troops. The war will continue until Friday noon without interruption, and with only brief naps for the 400 officers.

To round out the maneuver, at noon today the officers were switched from the defensive to the offensive. The director announced that the advance of the invading force had finally been checked by a series of tactics involving the use of cavalry to delay their drive while a line of infantry defense was formed. A secondary attack by the invaders was stopped by a secondary defense set up last midnight by the cavalry.

At noon today seven days elapsed, during which time reserve forces are presumed to have been brought into position, and for the duration of the maneuver the officers will be on the offensive. They will start a drive to recapture Chicago from the invaders.

AGAIN THE TRIBUNE IS First WITH THE COMPLETE FOREIGN NEWS!

Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam arrives in London after her successful trans-Atlantic flight.

WHEN Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam landed her plane at Londonderry, Ireland, it was Robert Sayers, Belfast correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, who interviewed her and obtained the most complete and authentic story of her history-making flight.

Five years before to the day it was a Chicago Tribune correspondent at Paris who was among the first to greet Lindbergh as he stepped out of his plane at Le Bourget Field.

Recently, when the premier of Japan fell the victim of assassins and Tokio was the scene of violent uprising, it was a Chicago Tribune man who cabled the first complete story of the amazing happenings.

When big news is breaking anywhere, at home or abroad, readers of the Chicago Tribune get the complete story first. Tribune readers, moreover, get the news written from the American viewpoint. Tribune foreign correspondents accept no "handouts" or second-hand versions prepared by the press bureaus of foreign governments.

Like Tribune reporters at home, they get on the job where the news is breaking when it is breaking.

DRYS' LEANING TO SMALL CASES CAUSES INQUIRY

Report Harney Asked Why Gangs Go Free.

Coincident with the return of 68 indictments before Federal Judge Barnes yesterday, 40 of them charging minor liquor violations, it was reported in the Federal building that a governmental agency has begun an investigation of why only "small time" violators are being indicted, and no progress made toward reaching the heads of the bootleg gangs.

Prohibition agents and their chief, Administrator M. L. Harney, have been subjects to this inquiry, it was said. Harney was reported to have appeared before the agency early in the week. On Monday night Harney made prohibition history in Chicago by personally leading a raid upon a north side bright spot. On Tuesday two well known loop speakeasies, one of respectable age and frequented by show people, were raided and all this activity had the investigation at the bottom, the reports claimed.

Known "Bosses" Unmolested.

Harney is said to have been asked why the "little fellows" in the racket are the constant subject of dry agents' attentions, while the known bosses of boosedom are seldom, if ever, even questioned. The administrator's reply, it was reported, was that he had only been in charge here a short time and is not thoroughly familiar with the situation.

A high government official is reported to have told the agency when he learned its complaint: "You're on the right track. Go ahead. There's no reason why these little violators should be the only ones brought in. Find out why the big fellows aren't caught. And you might also inquire as to the expense the government is put to in making these little booze cases. Some of them are extremely costly and bring in no evidence upon which an indictment could be based."

Eight Agents on One Case.

One story alleged to have been told the agency was that eight prohibition agents worked weeks on one case in which one agent bought 32 drinks before he was convinced that he had evidence that the beverage was liquor. Figuring the agents' salaries, the money they spent in purchasing liquor, and the overhead of the prohibition office, investigators were said to have learned that this case alone cost the government $2,000. And when a raid finally was made, no liquor was found in the place.

It was this sort of investigative work with no results, and the fact that the agents spend their time trapping small fry, that aroused the agency's ire. They had an additional spur, it was said, because of the widespread clamor for the reduction of governmental expenses.

"If one dry agent buys 32 drinks making one case," said a member of the agency, "consider what an enormous bill the 6,000 agents in the country must be presenting to the taxpayers."

DUBLIN, May 25.—(AP)—Cardinal Mundelein of Chicago today cabled his regrets to the lord mayor that he would be unable to attend the Eucharistic conference here this summer. The cardinal said he would have to remain away because of bad economic conditions at home, and because he deemed it unwise to be absent from Chicago during the Republican and Democratic conventions.

PLAN "NATIONAL PROTEST DAY" IN ECONOMY DRIVE

Mass Plea to U. S. Is Proposed.

A recommendaetion that all the business organizations of the country set a day on which to unite in sending messages to congress demanding economy in government and a balanced national budget through a fair tax measure will be acted upon by the national tax conference, which meets at the Hotel La Salle here on June 2 and 3.

George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, yesterday received a letter from D. N. Calkins, president of the Rochester, N. Y., chamber of commerce, advising such action, with the suggestion that the day be called Citizens' Protest day.

Wires to Washington.

"On that day let our citizens individually wire or write their congressmen and senators, the speaker of the house, the president of the senate, the chairman of the house ways and means committee, and the chairman of the senate finance committee demanding that they cut out further delay and petty politics, approve a program of economy in federal government, and balance the budget through fair tax measures," said Mr. Calkins.

Mr. Calkins stated that members of his own organization sent more than 600 individual letters and telegrams to New York congressmen, but said the protest would have been infinitely stronger had all the business men of the country participated in it.

Mr. Calkins in his letter congratulated the Chicago association for its "energetic and courageous leadership in the movement to secure economy."

Business Leaders to Attend.

A number of other letters have been received from business leaders, agreeing to participate in the national tax conference which will be held on the eve of the Republican and Democratic national conventions here to impress the politicians with the demands of the taxpayers for economy.

President Exhorts Body to Assert Freedom.

BY HUGH CURRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, May 25.—"This is not a treaty matter. It is outside of the treaty. It is a question of whether we are sovereign in our own domain or not. There is no question of severance from the British commonwealth. I hope no mistake will be made about that."

President Eamon de Valera emphasized these points in his defense of the free state government's bill to remove the oath of allegiance to the king from the constitution when it came up for second reading before the senate today.

Cites Other Dominions.

De Valera said that the main point is whether it is possible to remove the oath without interfering with the treaty of 1921, under which the free state was created. He pointed out that as a result of declarations in 1926 and 1930, the Irish Free State is on the same level as Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Britain.

"If Britain, Canada and Australia can remove the oath, the free state can," he asserted. He added that the last election proved that there is national objection to the oath and that its removal would be an act of wisdom.

Senator James Douglas, following de Valera, took the view that all citizens of the free state are against the oath because of the farcical way many members of the legislature have taken it. It would have been simpler, he said, for the government to have introduced in both houses a resolution favoring abolition of the oath, which would have been passed by both chambers. De Valera could then have negotiated with Britain with full authority to carry out the resolution, he said.

Warns of Dangers.

"Membership in the British commonwealth means a great deal to the free state," Douglas said. "It is a safeguard of our political freedom. Inside the commonwealth we can be assured of a friendly Great Britain. Outside, although theoretically independent, a hostile Britain could restrict our independence in many ways which she cannot do at present."

Senator Sean Milroy, who escaped with De Valera from the Lincoln prison in 1919, described the bill as an "act of piracy."

"Its authors want to scuttle the ship of the free state," he said, urging the house to throw out the bill and throw the pirates overboard.

The debate was adjourned until next Wednesday.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 25. — A dramatic avowal that he had been warned he was intended to be the victim of a plot was made today by the Rev. Harold F. Davidson, 62 year old rector of Stiffkey, who is on trial in the Anglican church consistory court on charges of immorality.

The Rev. Mr. Davidson in cross examination declared one part of the plot was that he would be asked by telephone to the house of a poor lady of title and when he had closed the door she would be standing unclothed before him, upon which he would be discovered by detectives.

Display Photograph in Court.

Another part of the plot, he said, was for him to be photographed in a compromising position with a girl This photograph was actually taken and was shown in court today. The rector said he had been told that a detective had paid $750 for the photograph, which showed him with an unclad girl.

The clergyman said the mother of the girl in the picture was a friend of his, and was present when the photograph was taken in her apartment. The mother asked him just before the opening of his trial to arrange for a picture of her daughter in a bathing suit for an advertisement, he said.

He said he was pushed into the picture. Either the shawl partly draped around the girl had slipped through his hand without his knowledge, he explained, or it was yanked from his hand by the photographer, who had first suggested that the girl be photographed unclad.

Holds Girl Blameless.

He declared later that the girl, a child of 14 or 15, could not be blamed in regard to the photograph, "nor could the poor fool of a person who allowed himself to be trapped into it."

He denied that the photograph was taken for publication abroad, stating that he is known in every country in the world and that it was an absurd and ridiculous suggestion.

Questioned concerning the incident where he is alleged to have kissed a dancing girl, Betty Beach, when was wearing only a nightgown, the rector declared that he might have put an arm on her shoulder, which is "an invariable automatic action," but that it was false to say that he put his arms around her and kissed her. He also denied that the girl did acrobatics in front of him.

Reveal Letter from Bishop.

Another stir was caused later when a letter was read in the court from the bishop of London advising The Rev. Mr. Davidson's solicitors that it would be "wiser not to bring the bishop into the case at all."

The letter said that the rector has "constantly pestered me for twenty years with begging appeals for the use of my photograph, for a purpose of which I do not approve."

To this the Rev. Mr. Davidson replied that he had left in the hands of the bishop the question of his resignation and that it was the courage the bishop gave him which decided him to fight the case.

"The bishop of London backed my decision to fight the case instead of resigning," the rector said.

"HUNCH" BY WIFE IS CORRECT; MATE WINS $1,000 PRIZE

G. H. CAMERON.

When George H. Cameron, 550 Clinton avenue, River Forest, left his home yesterday morning, he asserts, his wife told him that she had a "hunch" that they were going to receive money soon "from some one."

Before the morning was over Cameron received a $1,000 check with the information that he was the winner of the recent word building contest conducted by the Consolidated Cigar corporation, makers of Dutch Masters cigars. Morris Hillison, sales manager of the company, gave him the check.

There were 156,000 entries in the nation-wide contest. Cameron, employed in Maywood by the receiver for the Maywood State bank, submitted a list of 1,102 common English words made of the letters of the words "Dutch Masters."

ASK LAW TO HALT TEACHING BIRTH CONTROL TO POOR

Emmett Whealan, president of the county board, speaking yesterday before the state convention of the Knights of Columbus in Aurora, charged that charity workers are preaching birth control and teaching mothers race suicide.

"An effort has been made to place control of the dispensing of this relief, in many sections, in the hands of students of birth control and advocates of race suicide, and we find them giving discussions on the follies of a family, and giving hints, sometimes orders, with regard to the activities of the family," Whealan declared.

"I fear this is going to be one of the boomerangs of the present relief situation. I am sure that when the truth of the situation is known that Gov. Emmerson will take a hand in it. It certainly will become a matter of legislation and investigation, because it is a case of state funds and gasoline tax money used to further the interests of certain persons who have not relief as their object, but furtherance of hobbies and ideas."

James Donahoe of Chicago was elected deputy of the Illinois Knights of Columbus at the meeting. Other officers chosen are Michael J. Howlett, Chicago, secretary; M. J. Burns, East St. Louis, treasurer; J. R. Coryn, Moline, advocate, and Joseph A. Malandrone, Herrin, warden. The following were chosen as delegates to the national convention: V. Kearney and Francis Murphy, Chicago; Carl T. Lies, Aurora; Martin J. Gannon, Dixon; Peter Rossiter, Springfield; Patrick J. O'Neil, Gillespie, and Richard J. Neagle, Galesburg.

3 Arrested on Suspicion Confess Robbing Hotel

Three gunmen, who were arrested on suspicion early yesterday, confessed that they had robbed Thomas P. Adam, night clerk of the Carlton hotel, 1517 South Michigan avenue, of a watch and $24.55 late Tuesday night. They are Mate Gardenshire, 25 years old, 56 West Van Buren street; Charles Ivins, 22, of 2731 Lawrence avenue, and Carl Sims, 21, of 54 West Ontario street.

BRITAIN INSISTS THERE IS NO PACT TO REPAY DEBTS

Says Agreement Is Only for This Year.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 25.—A short lived sensation was caused today by a cryptic statement made in the house of commons last night by Walter E. Elliot, financial secretary of the treasury, who, in the absence of Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, is in charge of the finance bill in the house of commons.

Elliot, explaining why it is unnecessary to appropriate £14,000,000 (about $51,800,000 at present rate of exchange) for the sinking fund, said the British liabilities this year are not so great as had been expected. When asked by Col. J. C. Wedgwood, Laborite, how he knew this, Elliot replied:

"Because we have had a letter from the President of the United States to that effect."

Statement Is Explained.

Further questions were not allowed and the matter was dropped, but at least one London newspaper today made a mystery about a "new" letter from Hoover.

It was learned today that Elliot had merely referred to Hoover's statement at the time he granted the moratorium, which in effect was that Great Britain this year would be saved from producing £14,000,000, which represents the difference between what she receives from her creditors and what she pays the United States.

Another mare's nest was caused by a dispatch from Washington to the London Times, saying that the British ambassador had been instructed to sign a new agreement with the United States regarding war debt payments.

Merely Formal Signing.

This was explained in the house of commons today by Sir John Simon, foreign secretary, as merely the formal signing of an agreement arrived at when the Hoover moratorium was granted for the payment over a term of ten years of this year's debt installment.

The agreement, Sir John emphasized, has no reference to the resumption of payment of normal annuities on Dec. 15, for which Britain has made no provision in the present budget.

No attempt is being made here to conceal the fact that the British public does not expect to resume payments, but the politicians, who have been looking forward with the hopes of doing something at the Lausanne reparations conference, are now losing that hope and it is learned that there is a strong probability that the meeting may again be postponed.

Must Have U. S. Aid.

European political realists are facing the fact that the Lausanne conference can accomplish nothing "without the coöperation of the United States," which means without cancellation of European debts by the United states.

The same realists know that there is no chance of any such cancellation while the Republican and Democratic conventions are meeting and when the American presidential election is only six months away.

In the circumstance, they argue, why go through with a solemn farce and have another failure at Lausanne? It would be much better, they hold, to postpone the meeting until after the American election.

Italy Accepts 10 Year Plan.

ROME, May 25.—(AP)—The Italian government today instructed Ambassador De Martino at Washington, D. C., to accept the proposal of President Hoover allowing repayment to the United States within ten years of debt payments deferred by the moratorium ending June 30.

SEAWAY TREATY NEARLY FINISHED, BENNETT SAYS

Rebukes M. P. for Making Tariff an Issue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., May 25.—Premier Bennett's announcement to the house of commons today of a most satisfactory condition of Canadian-American St. Lawrence seaway negotiations was followed by a demand from Charles B. Howard, Sherbrooke, Que., Liberal, that three American anti-Canadian tariff items and the Chicago water diversion situation be "cleaned up" before Canada signs any treaty. Mr. Bennett intimated the seaways treaty would be signed this summer.

America's three year old tariff against Canadian milk and cream and the American senate's move to bar Canadian copper and lumber were the three tariff items cited by Howard as demanding Canadian governmental attention. Howard's reference to the Chicago diversion was that 8,500 cubic second feet of the lake water was being diverted "in spite of the judgment rendered even in Washington."

Bennett Retorts to Howard.

Premier Bennett's terse response to Howard was that in respect to the proposed American copper and lumber tariff, its final passage of the bill was "highly problematical." Howard's milk and cream tariff protest, Bennett said, might more appropriately have been made three years ago.

Regarding the Chicago diversion of lake water Bennett said:

"The interests of this country will be adequately safeguarded. I am bound to say the member's statements are hardly in accord with the facts."

James L. Ralston, former minister of national defense, urged the government to use the seaway as a lever for a better tariff deal. Premier Bennett replied that Canada would not seek to make the American tariff a seaways contingency. The old Liberal government, he said, had been turned down two years ago on such an advance to Washington.

Premier Blames Ontario.

Replying to a specific query from Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, Bennett said only issues which might be settled in ten days between the province of Ontario and the dominion government held up the treaty.

"The completion of the treaty," Bennett said, "will depend on satisfactory arrangement being made between Ontario and Canada. Negotiations between the United States and Canada are in a most satisfactory condition."

Premier Bennett tonight indicated a not unsympathetic attitude toward a possible Canadian-American reciprocity pact. He objected, he said, to a trade treaty which, after establishing trade channels, could be broken by one country with entire disregard to the hardships caused the other.

The house finished its business sessions at 11 o'clock tonight and formal adjournment ceremonies were arranged for 11 a. m. tomorrow. A November session to enact into law whatever intra-empire trade deals are passed at the imperial conference here in July is likely.

BLOWOUT UPSETS CAR; GIRL DIES.

Peoria, Ill., May 25.—(AP)—Miss Sue Ellen Bowman, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bowman of Toulon, died in a Peoria hospital last night of injuries received when the automobile in which she was riding turned over as a tire blew out.

Indiana Rapist Sentenced to 5 to 21 Years in Prison

Evansville, Ind., May 25.—[Special.]—Raymond Smith, 24, was sentenced to serve from 5 to 21 years in the state reformatory in Circuit court today after his conviction on a charge of raping a 14 year old girl, now a mother.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., May 25.—A personal investigation of New Zealand's "relief camps" for the unemployed, where thousands of men, ranging from bank clerks to dockhands are thrown together, reveals strange conditions. The camps were created by the government, which, after collecting taxes for jobless relief, has decreed that all unmarried men desiring to secure that relief must earn it with a pick and shovel.

Thousands of unwilling men have been drafted to live in these camps with the warning that if they reject the order of the government they will be deprived of any other form of relief.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent visited three of these "relief camps." One was at Akatarawa, 50 miles from Wellington, the capital. The second was at Ake Ake, a desolate spot, and the third in a remote area of the east coast.

Men Are Poorly Clad.

At the latter two camps I found men poorly clad. Some were without boots, others had no shirts. The local unemployment committee in charge of the relief work said that the men preferred to work this way. The men said they had no money to buy clothing. Their garments were ragged and stained. Few had suitable clothes for the heavy work which they were performing.

Ake Ake is small and desolate. In rainy weather it is a sea of mud. The east coast encampment is pitched at a barren spot, while the Akatarawa camp is situated near a small stream.

Here the men live in old bell tents which leak when it rains. Six men live in some tents, four in others; in one I found only two. They told me that their comrades, unable to stand the strain any longer, had broken camp and sacrificed all chances of future relief by returning to the city, but others came to take their places.

Some Found Ill.

Some of the inhabitants were ill. They complained against the hard work, which, many said, taxed their strength.

The maximum pay of these jobless workers is $2.50 a week. Several admitted they could never earn that much, complaining that the work was too hard. When the relief scheme was first formulated, trained tunnellers were paid $2.30. Later the rates were revised. The average rate of pay is now $1.25 to $1.50 a week.

Many of the men I saw had never handled a pick or shovel before. Yet they were moving earth, clay and rock, hacking away at sandstone and grundling it away in wheelbarrows.

Several of the laborers told me that they drew no pay at all for several months after their arrival.

Not Enough Blankets.

"And it cost me $30 to enter this camp," one man exclaimed. "I had to buy suitable clothes. My boots alone cost $6 and my blankets, $5. Then on top of it I had to pay my fare here."

Others complained that they did not have sufficient blankets to keep warm at night and that they were without funds to buy any.

There was one bright spot in all camps and that was the food. It was plain, but good. Nourishing meat and vegetables were served and there were stews and puddings, but no luxuries.

The government is expending $6.25 a week per man.

The sense of hopelessness among the men was the most striking feature of all.

"Stroking the Road."

"We have nothing to look forward to," one said. "The significance of making ditches, cutting small roads to dead ends and removing grass from the streets is lost upon us. It seems so futile."

The Maoris, who are cheerful and popular, have invented a phrase to cover their duties. It is "stroking the road."

SEIZED FOR ANNOYING CHILDREN.

Charles McGuire, 44 years old, a laborer rooming at 5116 Vincennes avenue, was arrested yesterday on charges of taking indecent liberties with little boys. The parents of two 8 year old boys made complaints against him.

GEN. SHIRAKAWA, JAP VICTOR IN BATTLE OF SHANGHAI, IS DEAD

SHANGHAI, May 26.—[Thursday.] (AP)—Gen. Yoshinori Shirakawa, commander in chief of the Japanese imperial forces here, who was wounded by a bomb on April 29, died today, Japanese military headquarters announced. The end came at 7:30 a. m. The commander three days ago suffered a relapse from the wounds, which were inflicted during exercises in Hongkey park. At that time he was erroneously reported to have died. Blood transfusions were given in rapid succession without avail.

Gen. Shirakawa was 62 years old and had risen from minor rank during the Russo-Japanese war to supreme war councilor of Japan. He was graduated from the Japanese military academy in 1890.

From 1922 to 1924 Gen. Shirakawa served as vice minister of war, and subsequently was promoted to a generalship commanding the Kwantung army from 1925 to 1927. In the latter year he was made war minister in the Tanaka cabinet. He held the portfolio until 1929, when he became supreme war councilor.

When the Japanese went into Shanghai early this year only bluejackets were intrusted with the campaign. They failed. Gen. Shirakawa personally took over the drive and pushed the Chinese back.

BANDITS SEIZE $4,000 IN RAID ON NORTH SIDE BANK

Four gunmen yesterday raided the Edgewater Trust and Savings bank, 5545 Broadway, and escaped with $4,000 afer forcing five employés, two of them women, to lie on the floor while the teller's cage was looted. The robbery of the bank took less than three minutes. Led by a talkative leader who carried a sawed off shotgun, the gang swept into the bank and ordered the employés to lie on the floor. Three of the men vaulted the desk rails and scooped money into a canvas bag while the leader stood guard.

After collecting the money, the gunmen raced to a sedan parked in front of the bank and sped away.

NEW JAPANESE CABINET OF BOTH PARTIES FORMED

Little Change Expected from Old Policies.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, May 26.—[Thursday.]—Admiral Makoto Saito completed a Japanese "combination" cabinet today to replace the government which retired upon the assassination of Premier Tsuyoshi Inukai. By a last minute change Gen. Sadao Araki, Nationalist leader, was retained in his former dominant post of minister of war.

Admiral Saito, who himself will temporarily be minister of foreign affairs, is expected to go to the palace with the members of his cabinet this afternoon to be installed.

The ousting of Gen. Araki as minister of war after Inukai's assassination, was hailed at that time as a great victory over the forces of Fascism in Japan. When Saito's cabinet was first announced, Gen. Senjuro Hayashi was announced as war minister. No explanation for the change was given.

Will Continue Old Policies.

It is expected the group will continue the foreign and financial policies which prevailed during the régime of the late Premier Inukai.

Korekiyo Takahashi, Seiyukai party mainstay, is retained as finance minister in the new cabinet. Ichiro Hatoyama remains as minister of education. Both held the same positions in the Inukai cabinet. Chuzo Mutsuchi, who was minister of communications, becomes minister of railways in the new government.

For the navy post Admiral Saito chose Admiral Keisuke Okada, who succeeds Admiral Mineo Osumi.

Other Ministers Listed.

Overseas affairs—Ryutaro Nagai.
Commerce and industry—Baron Kumachi Nakajima.
Justice—Matsukichi Koyama.
Agriculture and forestry—Funio Goto.
Communications—Hiroshi Minami.

Thus, Admiral Saito ended the cabinet crisis which has existed since the assassination of Inukai, which was followed immediately by the resignation of his cabinet. First demands of the Seiyukai majority party that a party cabinet be formed under leadership of Kisaburo Suzuki, were yielded to demands of the army and counsel of Prince Saionji, elder statesman, that a mixed cabinet be formed. Suzukai was home minister in the previous cabinet.

Retention of Takahashi as finance minister was freely attributed to mean continuation of policies on tariffs, foreign exchange and operations of the Bank of Japan.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, May 25.—Mario G. Menocal, former president of Cuba, who is accused of being a leader in a recent plot to overthrow the government, will leave for the United States by plane within the next forty-eight hours. He will go to New York via Miami, Fla. He is now in the Brazilian legation here, where he took refuge Monday when the government ordered his arerst. Machado will be accompanied to New York by Representative Martinez Fraga and a son of Menocal's brother, Pablo.

Octavio Averhoff, secretary of state, said tonight that the government had requested Castello Branco Clark, the Brazilian minister, to see that Menocal and other refugees in the legation leave Cuba immediately. Averhoff said the government will not molest Menocal but will accept the Brazilian interpretation of the "asylum treaty" of 1933. He added that the Cuban state department is now preparing passports and other necessary documents for Menocal and his aids.

U. S. Gives Consent.

Averhoff said the government will declare the refugees political exiles immediately after they abandon Cuba and that they will be unable to return here until President Machado revokes the orders for their arrest. The government, according to Averhoff's interpretation of the treaty, has a right to demand that the exiles be taken to a place not too near to Cuba. New York is acceptable, he said, but not Miami or Mexico.

The Brazilian minister announced that he had received the consent of the American government for Menocal and others to enter the United States.

Carlos Mendieta and Alberto Mendez Penate, two other leaders who were arrested in connection with the plot, arrived at the national penitentiary in the Isle of Pines tonight with 235 other conspirators.

Congress Backs Machado.

Among those arrested today was Dr. Lucilo de la Pena, prominent Havana lawyer and also a revolt leader in August, 1931.

Congress today unanimously placed itself at President Machado's disposal and pledged unconditional support to any measures he may recommend to protect national institutions against conspiracies, and especially communism. Machado announced that before Monday he will submit to congress a complete legislative program to eradicate communism. Rafael Gual Inclan, speaker of the house, tonight said:

"Cuba is traversing a chaotic situation unparelleled in history. The time has arrived when the Cubans must unite in a common effort to eradicate communism and end the national and international defamation campaign sponsored by Menocal and other conspirators."

KELLY-SPRINGFIELD

PLAN IMPRESSIVE MEMORIAL DAY PARADE BY VETS

For First Time, No G.A.R. Members Will March.

Marching orders for what promises to be one of the longest and most impressive Memorial parades Chicago has ever witnessed were issued yesterday from parade headquarters in the public library by Capt. William P. Wright, parade grand marshal. The parade, and attendant ceremonies in honor of the dead and living war veterans, will be held on Monday.

Heading the line of march, which will form in Michigan avenue at Chestnut street, will be Gov. Emmerson, attended by his military staff and an honorary police escort. Next in line will be Mayor Cermak and members of his cabinet.

In the third and most honored position, just behind the national colors, will be some fifty members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the survivors of the hosts who answered Lincoln's call in 1863.

Give Up Plan to March.

For the first time in the history of the event the G. A. R. veterans are giving up their cherished precedent of always having men march in the ranks. With the country experiencing some agitation on the part of pacifists, internationalists, and communists, the veterans suggested that they march the entire route on foot to demonstrate the spirit of the G. A. R.

But the steps of these survivors have grown increasingly feeble and when members of George H. Thomas post, largest of the nineteen remaining posts of the G. A. R., yielded to the invitation to ride in cars, the others fell in line.

Parade formation will begin at 1:30 p. m., and at 2 o'clock dozens of military bands and bugle corps in line will strike up martial music which will set the ranks of men and women marching south in Michigan avenue.

Many Groups to March.

In their order of rank following the G. A. R. will be marching companies representing the following organizations: Women's Relief corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., Daughters of Union Veterans, Sons of Union Veterans, United Spanish War Veterans and auxiliaries, Combat Medal Men's association, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Ladies auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Wounded and Disabled Veterans, American Legion posts, Polish Legion of American Veterans, American Legion auxiliary, Sons of American Legionnaires, and Gold Star Mothers.

At 9th street, Gov. Emmerson, Mayor Cermak, and other officials will leave the parade to enter a reviewing stand, to be erected at the monument to Gen. John A. Logan, Union commander whose famous order of May 5, 1868, laid the foundation for Memorial day.

The parade will go on to 11th street, thence west to Wabash avenue, where the companies will disband.

Prior to the parade the G. A. R. Memorial association, with the aid of other patriotic organizations, will place flags and wreaths on the graves of every veteran in 87 cemeteries in and near the city.

CONGRESS PAYS HONOR TO ITS NINETEEN DEAD

Washington, D. C., May 25.—[Special.] — The seventy-second congress set aside its legislative duties for two hours today to pay tribute to the memory of its dead.

The services were dignified and simple, with relatives of the deceased seated in one section of the house chamber, where the ceremony took place.

In solemn voice from the rostrum covered with flowers the clerk called the roll of the dead—three senators and sixteen representatives who died since last the congress met:

Representatives—Henry Allen Cooper of Wisconsin, James B. Aswell of Louisiana, Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, Matthew V. O'Malley of New York, Charles A. Mooney of Ohio, George S. Graham of Pennsylvania, Charles G. Edwards of Georgia, Bird J. Vincent of Michigan, Samuel C. Major of Missouri, Ernest R. Ackerman of New Jersey, Fletcher Hale of New Hampshire, Harry M. Wurzbach of Texas, Percy E. Quin of Mississippi, Samuel Rutherford of Georgia, Albert H. Vestal of Indiana, and Edward M. Beers of Pennsylvania.

Representative Scott Leavitt of Colorado and Representative William B. Bankhead of Alabama delivered short eulogies. There were two vocal solos, the chaplain pronounced a benediction, and the ceremonies came to a close.

WOMAN AUTO DRIVER FREED IN DEATH OF CHILD

A Lake county coroner's jury investigating the death of Laverne Haag, 11 years old, 5839 School street, who was killed on Rand road two miles north of Wauconda on Tuesday freed the driver, Mrs. Leland Aris, 2023 Pensacola avenue, yesterday, but added in the accidental verdict: "If the motorist had been driving her car under proper control she would have seen the child in time to avoid the accident."

Mrs. Aris testified that she had not seen the girl until too late to avoid striking her. Two other witnesses said that Mrs. Aris was driving rapidly in the middle of the highway when the child was run down.

There were no automobile fatalities in Cook county yesterday and the toll for the year remained at 432.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Disillusioned

THREE COURTS TO SPEED BANK FAILURE CASES

Judge Fisher Acts to Clear Calendar.

Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher of the Criminal court announced yesterday he is arranging to have three courts hear cases arising out of bank failures exclusively, and that three judges will remain on this assignment until all bank cases ready for trial have been heard.

Indictments against more than 50 ex-bankers are pending, and Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers had made several appeals for an opportunity to dispose of them.

Yesterday Judge Fisher called Mr. Ayers into conference. It was then decided to arrange for the immediate hearings. Last fall it was agreed that two judges would be assigned to bank cases, but owing to elections and campaign issues the cases were all postponed.

Pay Bain Chain Taxes Today.

Irwin T. Gilruth, receiver for the closed chain of banks of which John Bain was the head, announced yesterday he will pay $60,000 to the county treasurer today for the 1930 taxes on the properties and assets of the banks.

State Auditor Nelson announced the closing of the Citizens State bank of Chicago, 3229 Lincoln avenue, yesterday at the request of its board of directors. The bank's capital was listed at $750,000, with a surplus of $750,000 and deposits of $2,200,000, but it is reported to have paid out $2,000,000 to depositors in recent months.

Auditor Nelson yesterday approved the 40 per cent settlement with the Foreman bank interests on their stockholders' liability to the South Side Savings Bank and Trust company, the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank, and the North-Western Trust and Savings bank. The law firm of Brown, Fox & Blumberg, which negotiated this settlement, obtained $661,000 for the three closed banks and Mr. Nelson said this was a creditable achievement.

Point to Saving in Fees.

Attorneys Brown, Fox & Blumberg issued a statement showing that of the $132,000 expense in making this settlement their aggregate of fees was only $36,059. The reasonableness of their fees was approved by a committee of prominent lawyers, as well as the courts, and it was shown that one of the depositors' committees gave hearty approval to the amount of the fee.

Statements were furnished showing the great volume of work in reaching the settlement and explaining that the fees also were in payment for services rendered against 572 other defendants.

BROR G. DAHLBERG AND AIDS SUED BY 2 STOCKHOLDERS

Charges that Bror G. Dahlberg, president of the Celotex company, C. G. Rhodes and A. Foy, respectively secretary-treasurer and controller of the same concern, and other executives had diverted several millions of dollars to other businesses and were concealing $3,000,000 in profits which should be distributed to stockholders, were made in a suit filed in the Superior court yesterday.

The plaintiffs are Christ Larsen and his wife, Caroline, who hold 50 shares of common stock of the company. They asked a receiver for the concern on the ground that Dahlberg and the others are not competent. They demand an accounting and the return of all funds.

The bill charged that the Celotex company employed many clerks from 1925 to 1929 who tended only to the business of Dahlberg, the Southern Sugar company, the South Coast company, the Dahlberg Corporation of America, Dahlberg & Co., and the Bromar corporation, all of which are independent of the Celotex company. The money paid these persons belongs to the Celotex stockholders, the bill charged. The executives diverted $2,000,000 to the South Coast company, and loaned without interest another $400,000 to the Southern Sugar company, the bill alleged.

KILLS HERSELF TO AVOID GOING TO A RECEPTION

An aversion to meeting people, so strong that she preferred death to attendance at a public reception, was the cause assigned for the suicide yesterday of Miss Kittie G. Smith, 67 years old, of Highland Park.

Miss Smith kept house for her brother, Jesse Lowe Smith, school superintendent, and their mother, Mrs. Bridget Anna Smith, 90 years old.

She was formerly a music teacher. Last night citizens of Highland Park were to have held a reception for Mr. Smith at the Elm Place school, in honor of his 30 years' service as superintendent of school district 107 in Highland Park. Miss Smith was expected to attend.

Mr. Smith was aroused at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, and heard his sister moving about. He asked her what was wrong, and she replied that she was troubled with indigestion and was going to the kitchen for some soda.

At 7 o'clock a special policeman found her body, fully clothed, lying in eighteen inches of water off the beach near the Smith home at 324 Vine street. A coroner's jury convened later in the day by Coroner John L. Taylor of Lake county, found that Miss Smith had committed suicide while mentally irresponsible due to depressive melancholia.

U. OF MINNESOTA SLICES MILLION FROM EXPENSES

Minneapolis, Minn., May 25.—[Special.]—The University of Minnesota is planning measures that will cut one million dollars in its expenditures during the present and next biennium. This was announced today when the board of regents replied to Gov. Floyd Olson's proposal for reduction of state expenditures. Only a part of this reduction will be a saving in taxes, since the university's income has numerous other sources.

In his reply President Lotus D. Coffman declared that the action of the regents was the expression of their desire to coöperate with the governor and legislature "in reducing taxes and at the same time maintaining the university on a basis that will enable it to contribute its strength to the better education of youth."

"Dear Sirs: This is my fifth bottle of Kruschen Salts and I sure will say it's wonderful. When I started to take I was 164 lbs. Now, thanks to your Salts, I'm down to 129 lbs. Good Luck to you in the New Year. Sincerely, Mrs. Clara Christensen. Belmar, N. J., January 22, 1932."

All over the world Kruschen Salts is appealing to girls and women who strive for an attractive, free from fat figure that cannot fail to win admiration.

Here's the recipe that banishes fat and brings into blossom all that natural attractiveness that every woman possesses and does it SAFELY and HARMLESSLY.

In the morning take one half teaspoon of Kruschen Salts in a glass of hot water before breakfast—cut down on pastry and fatty meats—go light on potatoes.

"It's the little daily dose that takes off the fat" and brings that Kruschen feeling of energetic health and activity that is reflected in bright eyes, clear skin, cheerful vivacity and charming figure.

But be sure for your health's sake that you get Kruschen. A bottle that lasts 4 weeks costs you little. You can always get Kruschen at your druggist and money back if not satisfied with results after first bottle.

POLICE DRIVE THINS RANKS OF NIGHT PARKERS

The police drive against all night parking has resulted in a marked decrease in the number of cars left standing in the street all night, it was indicated yesterday by the reports of police assigned to distribute warnings to violators.

On Monday morning, the day the drive started, 5,586 warnings were left attached to automobiles. Tuesday morning the number dropped to 3,295, and yesterday 2,672 violators were given warning tags. A summons to appear in the "cafeteria" traffic court and pay a $2 fine is not issued until the automobile owner is caught in a second violation.

There were 853 of these summonses distributed in the early hours yesterday, as compared with 509 on Tuesday morning. Only a few of the violators appeared Tuesday to pay their fines, and yesterday the collections from the drive were only $4—two violators.

The Chicago Motor club has taken no active stand against the anti-parking drive, but it may later, it was indicated yesterday by Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the club.

"If enforcement of the anti-parking ordinance becomes oppressive, the club will attack the constitutionality of the measure," Mr. Braun said.

The Automobile Parkers' Protective association, which Attorney W. W. O'Brien organized to oppose the parking restrictions, reported that more than 150 motorists have forwarded copies of the first warning which had been left on their cars, as qualifications for membership in the association.

Attorney O'Brien advises the members to wait until they receive a summons to court, and then, instead of paying their $2 fine in the "cafeteria" branch, to demand a jury trial.

Clark, who is employed as a delivery boy by a loop department store, was arrested on Monday when he enticed the 8 year old daughter of South Park Policeman Patrick McMahon, 7814 Euclid avenue, into a hallway.

When questioned by Capt. William E. Russell and Detective Dennis O'Brien of the Grand Crossing station, he admitted nine other such offenses. Although he has been held since his arrest and taken to a showup in the detective bureau, police were unable to obtain any more identifications.

RED WHO SHOT FIVE IN RIOT GETS TWO YEARS

Steve Chuch, 28 years old, who is alleged to have wounded five persons during a communist disturbance in Michigan avenue north of the link bridge on March 12, was sentenced to two years in the Bridewell yesterday by Judge Walter T. Stanton in the Criminal court. A sentence of one year was imposed on each of two charges of assault with a deadly weapon, the terms to run consecutively.

Three policemen, a woman, and a boy were shot during the riot. Lincoln Park Policemen Ray Eddie and Frank Breslin, two of the wounded, identified Chuck as their assailant. Chuck testified that he had drawn the revolver to protect himself after police started to club paraders protesting against Japanese activities in China. Police said they did not use force until the shots were fired.

Book Business Is Subject of Good Satire

"A Whip for the Woman," by Ralph Straus. [Farrar & Rinehart.]

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

RECENTLY there appeared on my desk, already groaning with books which absolutely, positively, must be reviewed instanter, a book called "A Whip for the Woman" which was, I had been informed, the best lampooning of the book racket that had ever been written. Being at the moment more like the poor ancient mariner AFTER he had shot the albatross [what with that groaning desk shrieking at me night and day for relief], I said to myself, says I, "If I read anything funny about writing or publishing or reviewing books at this moment I shall burst either into uncontrollable weeping or into a murderous rage."

RALPH STRAUS.

The one will ruin my eyesight—and I shall never get through reading those hundreds of spring books and the other will lead me into hurling the whole deskful of them out of the fourteenth floor window onto the doomed heads of passersby, and the other will give me a superb case of acute indigestion, a popularly accepted curse of the critical fraternity.

To save myself—as I hoped—for a long and noble future dedicated to the business of saving the public from unnecessary eyestrain and indigestion in the perusal of worthless printing, I put aside "A Whip for the Woman."

Amusing from Cover to Cover.

And then the other day I picked it up to move it from one pile to another of unread volumes, and, feeling especially sturdy, I opened it—and, believe me, I read it straight through from cover to cover for my own delectation and amusement. When I had finished the only phrase I could think of was "kidded by experts."

There is more expert kidding in "A Whip for the Woman" than in anything I have ever read about the business of writing, publishing and reviewing books. Anybody who is interested in any one of those noble callings should own it and read it [in that order]. A few years ago a young man in the publishing business wrote a book called "Best Seller" [under the pseudonym of N. O. Youmans], which gave us all stitches in the side, but "A Whip for the Woman" is keen satire where that was farce.

Mr. Straus is a sort of all round knight of the typewriter—author of many novels, publisher, and literary critic, and he writes about all three of those vocations.

First the author of a first novel speaks. You follow him through all the trials of composition, the trials of having his manuscript refused, the trials of having it accepted, the trials of his relations with a low form of human life known as a publisher, the trials of seeing nothing in the newspapers about his masterpiece, the trials of becoming, by a fluke, talked of overnight, the trials of being a public figure, the trials of making an American lecture tour—all of which trials are counterbalanced only by the presence—along in his career—of a literary agent whom he considers a philanthropist, and an increasing bank account.

Lecture Tour Screamingly Funny.

The part about the author's American tour is screamingly funny. He describes a great New York "tea party" in which he mentions by name all of the figures usually present [including the literary editor of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who "made the trip especially to meet" him]. And he says in discussing his lectures—he always gives the same one no matter what his subject, he confesses: "The day after you say that American women are intellectual you sell 2,500 copies of 'A Whip for the Woman'; the day after you say that American women are the moral hope of the world you sell 3,500 copies; the day after you say that American women are passionate tigresses you sell 10,000 copies."

In the second section of the book the author dwells on the trials of bringing a new book by an unknown author to the attention of the great public, the trials of a publisher's relations with a low form of human life known as the author and the lowest form of human life known as the literary agent, with practically no counterbalances whatever to the tortures of the publisher's lot.

It is all done in the most broad but at the same time subtle satire.

Mr. Straus, by the way pronounces his first name Ralph—I mean, being a Britisher, Ralph doesn't spell Ralph, but Rayfe. I know because one day last summer when I was having luncheon with Frank Swinnerton at the Ivy in London, an impressive looking gentleman dashed by with "Hello, Frank," and Frank said, "That's Rayfe Straus," and, when I looked blank I was duly initiated into the niceties of the English pronunciation.

Smart Styles Offer Comfort for Summer

BY RHEA SEEGER.

STREET clothes, summer suits, week-end costumes, or anything else that you need for your summer enjoyment are now on display a trifle ahead of real summer heat but just in time for the shopping expeditions by clever clothes hounds who know the best and newest things are the first to go.

Whether you dash madly to the country every week-end or stay serenely in town the first second of sultriness will probably find you deep in a frenzied search for something to slip into that is cool and crisp and well ventilated. There are a lot of ideas for summer coolness . . . the coolest and most daring designs use cotton mesh material lavishly and with some grand and glorious results. New dresses are dreams of airy delight when fashioned of meshed cotton with plenty of wide and open holes. Knitted weaves are the best looking things you have ever seen . . . the colors are positively cool enough to drink—creamy tans, chalk white, mint greens, ice cream soda pinks, and dusky yellows.

Sheer fabrics are going to be headliners . . . for you can find these lovely cool things in all colors, including good street outfits in brown and dark blue and black . . . white is used generously for cool clean contrast . . . new dark green shades with lines, dots, spots, and flowered prints in white, is a startling new combination for street wear.

Giddy gadabouts are already clamoring for new spectator sports costumes . . . those grand outfits that can be donned practically at dawning and doffed at the end of a hectic day after hours of wear and numerous visits to every kind of smart excitement. You'll see them everywhere . . . stalking around in the gallery that follows a visiting golf wizz . . . cheering two or more perspiring tennis players . . . watching a dark horse gallop into the money and just decorating clubhouse verandas. Such ensembles are the most popular and practical clothes the summer shopper can buy.

Constant Care of Complexion Is Beauty Rule

Daily Cleansing an Important Item.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The question asked is whether 'tis better to use a wash rag, a complexion brush, or the hands when washing the face.

The object of any of the named implements in connection with face washing is to get the maximum cleanliness out of the face washing operation. The truth is, however, that the most important feature of the cleansing with soap is to get the soap into the face and out again.

Some women prepare for the soaping rite by working up a good lather in the palm of the hands and massaging this into the skin, using the hands to splash the soapy water over the face time and again. But this seems the least desirable of the three methods named.

The wash rag—a clean one for every face cleansing—is advocated by many of our skin specialists above the brush method. But the complexion brush is advocated just as stanchly for the blemishes and coarsened skin. It's hard to rout blackheads without the aid of a brush. In case of blackheads it is sometimes advisable to use the wash rag and brush, to dip the wash rag in fairly hot water to open the pores and then to use the soaped brush for the actual cleansing work.

Where the skin is in normal, healthy condition the clean wash rag is good. It is more manageable than the brush; less apt to wet the hair. There is nothing against using clean hands for the performance either, if one can get at the nose corners properly, for here is where blackheads become exaggerated if the dark nostril corners are not scrubbed carefully.

More important, however, than what article to use is eliminating all soap residue from the face after the washing. For this the hands are the best implements, not the soapy wash rag nor the soapy brush. The face must be rinsed in warm water first, then lukewarm and then the more cold you can splash on, the better for the skin, its texture and coloring.

Where there is an acne condition the most scrupulous care must be observed toward wash rag and brush. A clean, clean cloth each time without fail! The brush should be put under the faucet and rinsed off with plenty of water and then hung up to dry in the sun, where possible.

Senior High Schools Will Hold Music Festival Tonight

The fifth annual Chicago Senior High School Music Festival will be held tonight at 8:15 o'clock in Orchestra hall. The massed orchestra and massed chorus are composed of students from every high school in the city. The concert, which will be given under the direction of Dr. J. Lewis Browne, supervisor of music in the public schools, and Oscar W. Anderson, in charge of instrumentalists, will feature as guest artists Elsa Harthan Arendt, soprano, and Arthur Kraft, tenor. Jane Anderson will play the piano and Le Roy Wetzel will be at the organ. William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools, will speak.

Among the numbers to be sung by the unaccompanied chorus during the first half of the program will be two compositions of Dr. Browne, "Till Stars and Night Depart" and "Come with Me to Romany."

Sketched in Chicago Shops

Jacket Frocks for a Stylish Holiday

The sketches show five new spectator sports costumes which are brilliant inspirations for the perhaps-hard-to-please summer shoppers . . . those who heed the old axiom that the best clothes are the first to go and get their outfits early. . . . These newest of the dashing clothes for summer have coats and plenty of color contrast and are just different enough to get excited about. . . . These ensembles are among the many just received by Chicago shops for those fashion-wise persons who will be prepared against any sultriness on the holiday week-end whether they dash off to the country or remain in town. . . . Such clothes will be "just the thing" whether you spend your time in a golf gallery, watch the horses gallop, or merely decorate a clubhouse.

Skeleton Exhibit Depicts Evolution at Field Museum

An exhibit of skeletons designed to show the layman the step by step progress of evolution has been prepared at the Field Museum of Natural History, Director Stephen C. Simms announced yesterday. Beginning with skeletons of lemurs, lowest in the order of primates, the exhibit ends with a skeleton of a modern Caucasian type of man.

Changes which occur in the scale of evolution are readily followed by noting the differences in structures of the skeletons, Director Simms said. The modifications indicate the adaptation of the body to changes in natural conditions and habits, museum authorities pointed out.

Close agreement in structure between man and the great apes is regarded as one of the evidences of common origin, Edmond N. Gueret, assistant curator in charge of vertebrate skeletons, said. He added that it is clear that man did not descend from any of the present day apes but from a jointly ancestral stock now extinct.

Daughters of Zion Raise $10,000 for Infant Home

More than $10,000 was raised yesterday at a luncheon of the Daughters of Zion to care for 200 babies in the Infant Home and Day nursery, 2754 Hirsch boulevard, which the organization maintains. The home provides a permanent home for 100 babies, while another 100 are left there during the day by working mothers. Mrs. Edwin Romberg, president of the organization, presided.

Save Symphony as Groups Sign New Contracts

BY EDWARD MOORE.

THE Chicago Symphony orchestra survives. Its coming season is assured.

After weeks of negotiations between Henry E. Voegeli, manager of the orchestra, and James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians, a basis of settlement was reached yesterday noon and an agreement signed for next season.

Under its terms there will be 100 concerts instead of 126 during the 1932-'33 season of twenty-eight weeks, the orchestra will consist of eighty-seven men instead of ninety-seven, and the minimum wage scale will be $75 a week instead of $90. In addition the rehearsal periods, heretofore figured on a basis of forty hours for every four weeks, will be reduced to thirty-six.

The settlement was entirely amicable. The Orchestral association of Chicago had presented a proposal under which its estimated deficit for next season would amount to $40,000. After due consideration the Federation of Musicians accepted it in all its terms. Both parties to the agreement stated that they were actuated by loyalty to the citizens of Chicago and the needs of the orchestra, and both joined in an appeal to the public to support the orchestra up to its complete capacity in the seasons to come.

In spite of the fact that the members of the orchestra will accept a lower scale than that of last season, the rate of payment per concert has not been reduced, in fact has been slightly increased, in view of the lessened number of concerts and rehearsal hours. As it stands now, the players will receive about $1 a concert per man more than they did under the former agreement.

"The association proposed the terms of the new agreement after having given careful consideration to the two major considerations," said Mr. Voegeli, "first, the reducing of losses to a point where it seemed reasonably feasible to finance, and, second, the needs of the members of the orchestra. The deficit for the season just ended was about $80,000, and by the new agreement this can be reduced next season to approximately $40,000, provided season ticket holders continue in their loyal support and provided further that there be no greater losses than already experienced in sources of revenue other than ticket sales.

"It is not now planned to reduce the number of concerts in the three symphony series—Tuesday afternoons, Thursday evenings, and Friday afternoons, nor the series in Milwaukee. These require a total of seventy-eight performances. It will, however, be necessary to curtail the other concert activities of the orchestra from forty-eight to twenty-two. Just where the cuts will be made has not been determined."

After stating that the main purpose of the federation was to help to keep the orchestra going, and that with the return of prosperity the question of minimum scale or number of men to be employed would no longer trouble the trustees of the association, Mr. Petrillo added:

"The Chicago Federation of Musicians and the Orchestral association have reached a place where they are united in their determination to save and perpetuate the Chicago Symphony orchestra. But, in the furtherance of this altruistic purpose, they must have the loyal coöperation of the Chicago music loving public. No symphony orchestra can exist unless it has sufficient funds to maintain it, and it is through the box office at Orchestra hall that these funds must come."

Set November Date for Two Debut Parties

Senior, Litsinger Teas on Same Afternoon.

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWO girls are scheduled to make their debuts next fall on Nov. 4, Miss Mary Senior and Miss Eleanor Litsinger, but debut dates, like everything else these days, are subject to change, and so I would not be surprised if one or both were switched before the season starts.

According to present plans, however, Mrs. John L. Senior will give a tea to introduce her daughter, Mary, on Friday, Nov. 4, at her residence, 229 Lake Shore drive, and Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger will be a tea hostess the same day at her residence, 1400 State parkway, to present her daughter, Eleanor.

Both girls are to have dinner dances later in the winter, probably during the Christmas holidays, but neither Mrs. Senior nor Mrs. Litsinger has set definite dates for the dances. Miss Senior is being graduated from the Concord academy at Concord, Mass., next month and Miss Litsinger is finishing at the French school in New York tomorrow.

The Senior family is planning to spend the summer in Lake Forest as usual, but so far Mrs. Senior has not found a house in which to spend the summer. The Litsingers have moved out to their Lake Forest place for the season, although they keep their town house open all summer, too.

Luncheon of Needlework Guild.

About 300 women, representing the 18 Illinois branches of the Needlework Guild of America and organizations to which the guild contributes, attended the first Illinois state luncheon conference yesterday at the Ambassador East. Mrs. Ethel Richardson Dunham, president, presided at the speakers' table, at which the guests included Mrs. Truman H. Newberry of Detroit, honorary vice president of the national guild and principal speaker of the conference; Mrs. Kimmsey Smith, Mrs. Shailer Mathews, Mrs. Cornelius M. Trowbridge, and Mrs. Murry Nelson.

The guild, which makes, collects, and distributes new garments to charitable organizations, has branches all over the world. This year the Illinois division is going to concentrate on forming new sections to increase its good work. The annual contribution of two or more new articles of wearing apparel or household linen or, if preferred, a donation of money, constitutes membership.

Among the members at yesterday's conference were Mrs. Charles H. Ackert, Mrs. William E. Casselberry, Mrs. Cyrus Hall McCormick, Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. Charles Garfield King, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mrs. George A. Ranney, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. Phelps B. Hoyt, Mrs. William J. Chalmers, and Mrs. Harry H. Shearson.

Sale of Society for Shut-Ins.

The Vocational Society for Shut-Ins is having a sale this week in a store in the "900" North Michigan avenue building and, judging by what I saw going on there yesterday, I should say it is a most successful sale, for there seemed to be buyers galore and every table in the rear half of the store was occupied by luncheon parties.

The society receives part of the proceeds of the luncheons that are served in the shop each day by a restaurant in the building and all the women who are interested in that particular society are making it a point to entertain at luncheon or tea there often during the week.

Mrs. Burgweger Dewes is president of the society.

The Scribblers, that select band of feminine writers, both professional and amateur, which meets once a months during the winter for amusing and delightful programs, will meet today at the Lake Forest residence of Mrs. J. Andrews King for luncheon and the annual "field day."

This is the day the Alumnae Association of the University School for Girls is giving a party for Miss Anna Haire, the principal and founder, to mark the 35th "birthday" of the school. The party is to be given this afternoon at 4 o'clock at Miss Henrietta Countiss' residence at 1524 Lake Shore drive, and the entertainment will consist of tableaux and lantern slides of alumnae of the school when they were pupils. Mrs. Robert M. Curtis, president of the association, is in charge of arrangements.

Miss Elizabeth Chase will be hostess at a small dinner tonight at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase of Lake Forest, for Mrs. Noble B. Judah, with whom Miss Chase went to England for the hunting last winter. Miss Chase preceded Mrs. Judah home, the latter having returned about ten days ago. Mr. and Mrs. Chase and their daughter have no plans for the summer other than to enjoy Lake Forest and Chicago, but Mrs. Polly Chase Boyden and her children are to have a house at Truro near Provincetown for the season.

Gigli Will Be Burnhams' Guest.

Beniamino Gigli, the golden voiced tenor who created such a stir recently when he deserted the Metropolitan Opera company, will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Burnham at a buffet supper party at their residence on Saturday night following the closing concert of the Chicago-North Shore music festival. Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn and Dick Sternburg will have dinner with the Burnhams and their daughter, Cheri, that evening and be their box guests at the concert.

Miss Mary MacCaughey is looking forward to serving as a courier for the Frontier Nursing society next fall in the Kentucky mountains. She has been notified that her application for the thrilling job has been accepted, although the society hasn't stated yet just when she may begin her two months' period of playing the part of messenger, guide, and good Samaritan on horseback. Katherine Trowbridge, you'll remember, was the first Chicago girl to become a courier.

At present Miss MacCaughey is visiting Miss Sarah Davis in Pitts-

Sudden Love

By ELISABETH SANXAY HOLDING

SYNOPSIS.

Esmee Sully spends her forlorn young life between the office, where she is an inefficient typist, and a dismal home. Mrs. Sully loves her three children blindly, but doesn't know how to take care of their spiritual or physical needs. Cynthia, the oldest, has been deserted by her husband. Lew, a year older than Esmee, has gotten into serious trouble. Esmee can barely remember the days before her father's death when they had had a cheerful home. Jimmy Consadine forces Lew to introduce him to Esmee. Lew warns Esmee she'll make trouble unless she keeps away from Jimmy. She is fascinated by Jimmy's grand manner, but finds him an unmanageable lover. Lew gets in a jam and asks Esmee to get him money. She's afraid to ask Jimmy. She meets Arthur Twining at the home of a former woman employer. He is attentive to Esmee, impressed by her beauty and guilelessness. In her anguish she tells him her troubles and he offers to help. Arthur's roommate is Michael Marriott, a dissipated young playwright, imbued with the futility of life. When Esmee meets him it's love at first sight. Esmee understands his need of her is real. Jimmy finds the money which Twining has loaned Esmee in her possession and threatens trouble. Esmee has a dinner engagement with Michael. Jimmy meets her as she leaves her office, and she promises to drive with him to the country the following Sunday. When Esmee gets to Michael's apartment she is met by Twining and a Mrs. Cowley, but no Michael.

INSTALLMENT X.

AN IMAGE OF GRIEF.

"Miss Sully!" called the other girl. "Want to come in here for some final touches?"

It was a bedroom. Michael's room . . . ?

The other girl was moving about, very much at home, in and out of the tiled bathroom. And, as she went to the mirror, Esmee saw on the chest of drawers a photograph in a silver frame, a photograph of Mrs. Cowley.

"Is it Mr. Twining's picture?" she thought. "Or Michael's?"

She was bitterly aware of her worn gloves, her cheap silk stockings, her shabby purse. She was abashed by the wildness of her soft cloud of hair. And, above all, she was conscious of her sorry background. She remembered Jimmy's horrible words about her family. She thought of her father and mother, of Lew, and of Jimmy. It seemed to her that she had no right to be here, that if Twining and Mrs. Cowley knew from what world she had come, they would be aghast. Even her feeling that Michael would understand anything was leaving her. How could these sheltered, secure people, who lived in this tranquillity, understand or imagine the Sully's home.

Why were they so sorry for her?

They continued to be almost excessively kind to her. Outside the house a smart little roadster was standing, evidently belonging to Mrs. Cowley.

"I'll drive," said Twining.

"No, you won't," said Mrs. Cowley. "It always makes you mutter. And certainly traffic policemen would do more for me than for you."

"You're an outrageous driver," Twining told her. "You're always looking for an unfair advantage."

But they were fond of each other. That was obvious. Mrs. Cowley took the wheel and Twining and Esmee sat in back, together. He said nothing at all. She glanced at him as they passed a street light, and saw his blue eyes staring blankly before him. In his soft hat, his dark blue suit, he looked, she thought, more than ever like a policeman, doing his duty resolutely, and a little unhappy about it.

Presently he reached for her hand, and she was glad to feel the firm clasp of his fingers.

"All right?" he asked, bending his head.

"All right," she answered, and wanted to cry because he was so kind.

The whole evening had a strange and dreamlike quality. The car stopped before what looked like a private house in the Fifties. Twining rang the bell, and a man admitted them, bowing.

"Good evening, sir! Good evening, ladies!"

"Mr. Marriott here?"

"No, sir. Not yet."

"We'll begin without him," said Mrs. Cowley, and they went up a broad staircase to an elegant little dining room. Most of the people there were in evening dress. There was an atmosphere here that was new to Esmee.

Twining ordered dinner, but she ate almost nothing. There was sheer sorrow in her heart, because Michael was not here, because this was his world, and she had no place in it. She belonged with the Sullys. And with Jimmy. She had promised to go out with Jimmy on Sunday and she knew very well that she was going to have trouble with him, serious trouble.

"You'd better have a glass of wine," said Twining with solicitude.

"But she'll have to eat something with it," said Mrs. Cowley. "She doesn't like the coarse, masculine food you've ordered. Get cold tongue and chicken for her, Arthur."

Their kindness began to alarm her. Were they so sorry for her? Why? Could they see, written on her brow, some wretched destiny? Or did they know that something had happened to Michael and were keeping it from her? Her face grew paler.

"I'm—awfully sorry—Mr. Marriott couldn't wait," she said. "I—I hope he's all right . . ."

"O, he's all right!" Twining assured her.

Mrs. Cowley leaned across the table.

"Will you come to us this week-end?" she said. "Out in Greenwich. Michael will be there, you know."

"I——" Esmee began, and stopped.

"Perhaps he can drive you out on Saturday afternoon. Or you can come with Arthur, on the train. It's going to be a rather stodgy week-end—nobody else there, but I hope you won't mind. You'll come, won't you?"

No. She was going with Jimmy—God knew where.

"I wish I could!" she said. "Only—I'm afraid——"

"Try!" said Mrs. Cowley. "Ring me up, tomorrow, and tell me?"

"I wish I could . . ." said Esmee again.

She felt obliged to eat that tongue and chicken, and as she sipped the wine, color began to rise in her soft cheeks, warmth came back to her heart. Here, in this bright place, with these singularly kind people, she began to hope that perhaps she could make some compromise. Perhaps she could put Jimmy off until next week, and go to this girl's house, where she would see Michael. Perhaps everything wasn't so terrible . . . she thought.

"If I told Mr. Twining, perhaps he could help Lew . . ."

Impossible. Unthinkable to tell him that her brother was to be arrested for theft; unthinkable to let the shadow of that other dark world fall upon this.

For the first time this evening she remembered that Twining had lent her fifty dollars. All for nothing. It had not helped Lew.

"And how can I ever pay him back?" she thought. "I'm sure he's particular about things like that. He'd just despise me. . . . If I don't get new gloves I can pay him back two dollars . . .

At that rate it would take her six months to repay him.

"Now!" said Twining. "The dessert problem—dieting, Claire?"

"I don't need to diet," said she. "I'm the spiritual type; Esmee would like a chocolate frappe, wouldn't you?"

The unexpected use of her name, something in her voice, her smile, vividly recalled Michael. He had planned a dinner for her. He had entreated her not to desert him, and now he must believe that she had.

"I really didn't mean to be so late," she said.

"Forty-five minutes isn't late," said Mrs. Cowley. "Lateness only begins after an hour. Michael's much too impatient and imperious. He'll be sorry when he hears that you did come."

They were all going downstairs then. Twining holding Esmee by the arm, as if she were an invalid. They all got into the roadster, and Mrs. Cowley asked Esmee where she lived. She dreaded for them to see even the outside of that house, but it could not be avoided.

When she got out, she looked up, saw the light shining in the sitting room. Her mother would be waiting there, to kiss her, to ask if she had had a good time.

"You'll call me tomorrow then?" said Mrs. Cowley. "And tell me you're coming for the week-end. We're in the telephone book, you know. Good night!"

"Good night!" Esmee answered.

And entered the house, climbed the stairs where all the stale, ugly odors of the house seemed to linger. Jimmy had promised that Lew would be home tonight, but there was no joy now in the thought of seeing him. She was almost afraid to think of looking into Lew's face, to see his secret smile . . .

She rang the bell; some one pushed back a chair in the sitting room. And the door was opened by Marriott.

"Michael!" she cried.

"Hush, darling!" he said in a whisper. "They're all asleep."

They went into the sitting room, and he closed the door. They stood facing each other and he saw in her eyes a dawning pain that grew and grew.

"I know," he said. "I'm drunk."

With a sort of groan he turned away, sat down on the sofa.

"You didn't come," he said. "First I thought something had happened to you. . . . And then I thought you'd just forgotten. And you were the only thing. . . . I rang up Helen Morelli and got your address. . . . I thought I'd try to find you. . . .

Transient Superiority.

Glen Sheffer Exhibit Wins High Praise

Color, Texture and Figures Are Excellent.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

An exhibit of brilliant paintings, rich in color and romantic in theme, is the house warming staged by Glen C. Sheffer, Palette and Chisel club member, who for the last three years has been covering the world pretty thoroughly in the search for picture material, in his studio gallery, 1138 Lake Shore drive. The exhibition has just opened, but already it has aroused a great deal of appreciative comment. Mr. Sheffer is an incurable optimist and romanticist and his paintings strike a very welcome note.

After the first flush of enthusiasm for his color and texture subsides, the excellence of his figure work is called on the tapis. By many discriminating persons Mr. Sheffer is considered the finest figure painter in Chicago, one or two stretch the encomium so far as to make it cover the United States. One does not have to be that stirred to realize the brilliance of this part of his painting. It is exceptionally fine, whether you consider the serious nude in "The Club Studio" or the whimsical, fragrant, semi-nude in "Dolores."

Although the chief charm of the exhibit is discovered in the various portraits and figure studies, yet the landscapes and romantic pictures are not to be overlooked. A group of New England landscapes has many points of interest and pleasure for those who rejoice in a love of trees, fields and hills. Certain other paintings, such as "Champlain Monument, Quebec" and "Il Campanile, Capri," call you to distant corners and stir the wanderlust in your veins. They are vigorously and beautifully painted.

The little portraits, heads principally, are of interest. Mr. Sheffer gets a good likeness and makes an attractive picture. First and last though the exhibit rests its case on the worth of its warm, rich color and its exquisite moments such as "Golden-glow," "The Dance," "Riposo" and "In Boudoir." The girlish figures against their exotic and intriguing backgrounds are fascinating.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Needs Baby Clothes.

"My husband has been out of work for a long time and I am expecting a baby in a couple of weeks. I wonder if you could get me some baby clothes, as I have none. I know I am asking rather late, but I have been hoping that things would change and we would be able to get these things ourselves. I will be very thankful for anything you can do for me.

Can you imagine what the state of this woman's mind is like? Her infant is expected in less than three weeks and she has been able to make no preparation for it. Please come to her assistance with the much needed articles, won't you?

Writer Busy on Movie for Orphan Annie

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 25.—[Special.]—Jane Murfin, one of Radio Pictures' ace scenarists, is busily at work transferring the adventures of Little Orphan Annie from the comic strip to scrip for the movies. Orphan Annie will shortly widen her activities by appearing as a featured actress [personified by Mitzi Green] under the Radio-RKO deal as a result of a contract negotiated by Al Loewenthal of Chicago, representing Harold Gray, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE cartoonist, creator of Little Annie, and the film company.

Joseph Cawthorne and Edna May Oliver have been cast for featured parts in the film comedy based on Annie's adventures. The film will be Mitzi's first starring vehicle under her new contract with the studio.

Last Sunday was the first day since their marriage that Kenneth Mackenna, actor and director, was unable to take Kay Francis yachting in their sailing craft. He couldn't take Kay out because she had a Sunday call to work all day with the "One Way Passage" company at Long Beach aboard a Honolulu liner which had been chartered by the film company for use as an exterior location.

Thinking the steamer was going to cruise about, Mackenna went down to the harbor, took out his yacht, and spent all day skipping about off Long Beach looking for the film troupe's boat.

At dusk, disgruntled at not finding the steamer with Kay aboard, Mackenna put in at Long Beach and found the boat still lashed to the dock. It never had gotten to sea at all.

Mackenna hailed the schooner and called to his wife and their friend, Bill Powell, who is playing opposite Miss Francis in the picture, to come down to the smaller boat and have some refreshments.

"We can't let her get on to that boat; it isn't safe," the manager for the company said.

They finally explained to the film man that Miss Francis had been sailing about on that little boat every Sunday for nearly two years, and she and Powell finally got their refreshments.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Paramount studios today arranged an exchange of leading men to support female stars at the two studios, Paramount lending Fredric March to play with Norma Shearer in "Smiling Through" at Norma's studio, and M-G-M lending Clark Gable to be co-featured with Miriam Hopkins in "No Bed of Her Own" at Paramount.

Clarence Muse, colored composer, singer, and featured actor, has collaborated with David Arlen, a Hollywood publicity man, in writing a book called "Way Down South," which is about the Negro show business of the south. Muse is the chap who composed "When It's Sleepy Time Down South." Arlen, his white collaborator, has worked extensively in film enterprises.

Set November Date for Two Debut Parties

burgh. From there the two girls will go on to an alumnae reunion at the Ogontz school. They will return to Pittsburgh after the school affair and in about three weeks Miss MacCaughey will bring Miss Davis back to Chicago to be her house guest here for a while.

Miss MacCaughey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey, have gone down to their residence at Winter Park, Fla., which has just been vacated by the winter time tenants and plan to remain in the south until July. Their older daughter, Mrs. Harry A. Allen, and her husband have come in from Kenilworth to be with Mrs. MacCaughey's mother, Mrs. Frank J. Tuttle, in the MacCaughey apartment at 232 East Walton place until Miss Mary returns from the east.

Miss Doris Bokum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norris H. Bokum of 1430 Lake Shore drive, will return from the Finch school in New York the end of the week. Miss Bokum has another year in school so she will not be a debutante for at least another year.

The Bokums are planning to go to Nantucket for most of the summer. Among other Chicago girls at the Finch school this year were Miss Mary Kay Downs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Downs of the Drake, Miss Caryl Bloomingston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Bloomingston of 1209 Astor street, and Miss Thelma Jensen of the Windermere hotel, who is the only Chicagoan in the graduating class. The commencement exercises are being held today.

Young Palmers Visit Parents.

Young Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer are in Chicago with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer of 1301 Astor street, after having been in Sarasota, Fla., since their marriage in Boston on Feb. 6. The bride formerly was Miss Rosa Saltonstall Movius of Boston. After a brief visit with Mr. and Mrs. Palmer and a bit of "settling" their own apartment at 1260 Astor street—although they do not plan to stay there at all just now—young Mr. Palmer and his bride will go east to spend the summer there, returning to Chicago in the autumn.

Cecil Howard, who arrived in Chicago a short time ago on business connected with the Leiter estate, will return to his apartment at the Webster hotel this week-end from New York, where he went to see his mother, the countess of Suffolk (Daisy Leiter) off for England yesterday on the Berengaria.

Mrs. Allen Wilson and her baby son and his nurse are sailing next Wednesday on the Aquitania to spend the summer with her sister, Mrs. Oliver Bryson, and Maj. Bryson in London.

At Lake Geneva for Holiday.

Mrs. William Wrigley Jr., who returned recently from the west, is taking a small party of friends and relatives to her Lake Geneva residence for the Memorial day week-end. She will not go to the lake to stay until late in June, however. Her guests this week-end will be her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Offield, and their daughter, Betty; Miss Ann Elizabeth Walsh and her fiancé, Johnson Couch: Dr. and Mrs. Mark W. Trude, and Jarvis Hunt Jr.

Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen is expected to arrive in Lake Forest the end of this week or early next week from the Bowen ranch at Castle Hot Springs, Ariz. She is motoring home, Mr. Bowen having returned several weeks ago.

Mrs. Joseph B. Long is leaving about July 1 to spend the summer in and around New York. Mrs. Long is planning to take an apartment in New York next winter, but she is not moving her furniture east, so it is safe to predict that Chicago still will be home to this attractive widow, who will be greatly missed locally next season.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Taylor are leaving Friday night to spend the week-end with Mr. Taylor's sister, Mrs. James W. Bodley, in Memphis.

Mr. and Mrs. William Shippen Jenks, who went west in March with their debutante nieces, Helen and Marietta Gillette, to visit the girls' parents, the Edwin Fraser Gillettes in Pasadena, will return to Chicago in mid-June. They will tarry here for just a short time before going to Lake Beulah, Wis., where they spend every summer at the estate they share with Mr. and Mrs. Gillette.

Miss Elizabeth Telling will arrive at home today from a year's trip to the East Indies and Siam, where she made drawings and water colors of all sorts of interesting people, including babies, royal personages, and even the crown princess of Japan, who was on the steamer which took Miss Telling to the far east.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Janet O'Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John William O'Leary of Lake Forest, to Rufus Choate Brown III. of Oshkosh, Wis., on Tuesday evening, June 14, at 8:30 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church of Lake Forest, the Rev. George Roberts officiating. Following the ceremony there will be a small reception at "Robinwood," the O'Learys' residence. Members of the bridal party will be at "Robinwood" for the week-end preceding the wedding.

WOMAN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

Here is a delightful variation of the two piece dress, and it is certainly pretty. The blouse ends almost at the normal waistline, while the pointed hipline of the skirt gives the figure a lengthened line. The inverted skirt plaits add width to the skirt without destroying the straight line. Printed and plain silk crêpe will make up attractively.

The pattern, 2711, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¼ yards of 39 inch material for the blouse, with 2¼ yards of 39 inch material for the skirt.

Singer, Who Is Also a Football Coach, Pleases at Recital

Charles Kerns Rogers, baritone, and football coach of Lake Forest, demonstrated the first of these two talents in a song recital at Kimball hall last evening. His voice has the physical basis of athletic training, being sturdy, resonant, and carrying, and upon this excellent foundation he has superimposed the education of some well learned vocal numbers. Songs by Beethoven, Handel, and Schumann and the baritone aria from Gounod's "Faust" made up his first group. Later he appeared in Russian songs, Negro spirituals, and other works by English speaking composers, and was well liked in all.

He was assisted by Henry Jackson, pianist, who has developed facility to the point of brilliancy. Technically he was fully at ease in the fireworks of the Pabst transcription of the waltz from Tschaikowsky's opera, "Eugen Onegin," and artistically he appeared capable of coping with something considerable better. For this piece, with all its showy display, seldom gets beyond the shoals of music or into its depths. E. M.

Reception Marks 90th Anniversary of Trinity Church

Trinity Episcopal church, 26th street and Michigan boulevard, last night celebrated its 90th anniversary. It is the second oldest Episcopal church in the city. The celebration of the anniversary which began last Sunday with special services, culminated last night in an "old timers'" reception when many persons representing some of Chicago's well known families greeted former rectors.

Among the pastors of Trinity of the past who were present were Dr. Zebarney Phillips, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, Washington, D. C., and chaplain of the United States senate, and the Very Rev. Frederick C. Grant, president of the Western Theological seminary, Evanston.

Capt. W. P. Wright, veteran of the civil war, commander of the Loyal Legion and a vestryman of Trinity church for more than a half century, was among those present.

Today let's talk potatoes.

And if that suggestion makes some readers sighfully consider their waistlines and raise dismayed eyebrows—let me tell them a secret! When the diner with the generous figure turns down potatoes as fattening, and lunches on sandwiches instead, he is woefully fooling himself. For weight for weight, there are just three times as many calories in bread as in potatoes!

This once lowly tuber has other claims, too, which make it deserving of family appreciation and a good many weekly boosts from the housewife. Besides giving us an excellent source of easily digested carbohydrates or energy foods, it is high in alkaline salts, fair in vitamins A and B, fair in iron and protein, and high in vitamin C, the factor which protects against rheumatism and infection, and insures growth and dental health. And as for serving potatoes, they offer possibilities from soups to desserts—from one end of the meal to the other—and they're all the more interesting because the more one experiments, the more attractive new numbers turn up.

But one word of warning before we talk recipes. To all appearance, a potato is as much a potato after cooking as before—and distinctly more edible. But when a chemist and a test tube get together with a cooked and a raw potato we discover a few things. Notably, that from 30 to 50 per cent of the food value of a potato may be lost by careless cooking, the loss being the greatest in the protein and mineral content. These important elements, of course, escape into water which is usually thrown out. If we use potato water for breads, soups, or creamed dishes, all well and good. If we do not, we should cook potatoes with their jackets on and then peel before mashing or creaming. Steaming or baking potatoes retains the most of the valuable food value. Peeling, slicing, and boiling in much water wastes the most.

Since these mealy Irish friends are mild in flavor, a variety of interesting seasonings may be added to give the proper zest. Onion, a touch of garlic, a variety of herbs, curry powder, tomato, meat flavors—all are starting places for further variations. Occasionally try a few mint leaves crushed in the potato cooking water.

Mashed potatoes are sometimes a problem if a cup or two are left over from one day to the next. Here are a few suggestions which should help out:

POTATO OMELET.

4 eggs, separated
¼ cup rich milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1½ cup mashed potato
2 tablespoons fat
¼ cup chopped pimento

Beat the egg yolks, milk and seasonings into the mashed potatoes. Add the pimento. Beat the whites of eggs stiff and fold into the potato mixture. Turn into a hot frying pan in which the fat has been melted. When puffy and cooked, spread half with chopped, pan fried parsley, and fold. Serve at once.

POTATO PEANUT LOAF.

2 cups hot mashed potatoes
¾ cup peanut butter
2 eggs, well beaten
1 teaspoon salt
¾ cup milk or tomato juice
Pepper to taste
2 teaspoons melted fat.

Blend all the ingredients and beat well. Turn into a baking dish and bake in a shallow pan of water in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] about 35 minutes. Serve with either cream sauce or tomato sauce as desired.

Croquettes? Try them some time made from mashed potatoes mixed with equal parts of mashed baked beans and made extra good with a dash of spiced catsup. Hot deep fat, of course, for the frying.

A foreign twist to the potato problem gives us sautéd mashed potato slices. Take the left over potato, beat it up while warm with a flavoring of grated cheese, a beaten egg and enough hot milk to make the mass workable but not wet. Season with salt, pepper, and onion juice, and pack evenly into a loaf pan. The next day, take out the stiffened potato loaf, slice in half inch pieces and pan fry to a crusty golden brown. Garnish with parsley and serve.

One last tip. I have two recipes, one for potato chocolate cake and the other for potato muffins, which I think simply scrumptious. Would you like them? They're yours for the asking.

Tomato Plants and Cabbages Get Start Now

BY PAUL POTTER.

Tomato and cabbage plants should be getting their start in the vegetable garden at this season. Truck gardeners on farms just outside Chicago already have them "hardened" to outside weather after the start in hotbeds or cold frames.

The favorite tomato variety in this locality is the Ponderosa. The Copenhagen market and flat Dutch cabbage varieties are most popular of the cabbages. The tomatoes should be set 3 to 4 feet apart each way, and cabbages 2 to 3 feet apart.

Some gardeners build stakes about their tomato plants, while others build a latice work down each row, with supports crosswise on each side of the plants.

Not all authorities agree that it pays to train and prune tomatoes. The most common practice is to limit the vine to a single stem or tie to a stake, the shoots starting in leaf axils being removed and only the terminals permitted to grow.

In recent experiments at the University of Illinois, both the early and total yield of tomatoes were reduced with staking and pruning. On a commercial scale, where extra labor and materials are cost factors the yield of tomatoes is somewhat more costly, the experiments show.

But in the home garden, the advantages of pruning and staking outweigh these other factors. More convenient harvesting, cleaner fruit, and greater convenience in spraying and dusting to control insects are obtained. As a rule, after the plant vine is tied to the stake in its one stem growth, the terminal bud is removed when the stem reaches the top of the support.

Accessories for Evening Exhibit Restrained Chic

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—If you have faithfully followed these columns, you will know that the accompanying sketch is the finale of the correct accessories story. These evening accessories, like their morning and afternoon predecessors, have the same quality of restrained smartness, which gives them their super-chic.

The little capelet of fur has become a practical and attractive member of the smart Parisienne's wardrobe. It is just the sort of wrap one needs to throw about her shoulders when dining out of doors, if the summer evening becomes a little chilly.

The most exciting of these capelets is the one pictured today, from Augustabernard. In white ermine, it is very short, coming just below the bosom. It does not meet in the back, but is held on by wide ermine ties, which are the ends of the round, turned down collar. It can be worn just the opposite way, and tied in front, of course, but it is much smarter this way.

Evening gloves may be any length from wrist to elbow and still be smart, although the chic Parisienne is wearing an eight button length antelope glove, with tiny tucks at the sides, like the ones in the sketch, from Alexandrine. Gloves should match the color of the accompanying gown.

Purse and shoes match in fabric and color. The small purse sketched is from Worth. It is in white crêpe de chine, and has a tiny Buddha figure for its fastening. Sandals that are not too open, but with very high heels, are fashion's favorites for evening.

Plan Simple Food for Your Child's Party

And Let Him Help You Prepare It.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Question: "What do you think is a good way to manage the refreshments for a little children's party?"

Answer—The best thing to do is to make the "refreshments" a simple meal. These late afternoon party treats of ice cream and cake, or cold sandwiches and cold milk and cake are usually upsetting, especially as they're eaten unde rexcitement. Also they spoil the next meal.

What is better is to have a simple luncheon or early supper of warm, nourishing food, with decorations and favors supplying the festivity. Then you have no upset stomachs and heavy eyes and morning-after dispositions.

Some interesting detailed suggestions came to me from Miss Miriam Brubaker, director of the nursery school of the National College of Education, which are so in line with my own experience that I will quote her, word for word:

"The celebration will mean much more to your child if he has a share in the making of favors and refreshments. Animal cookie cutters which he is allowed to use will add to his pleasure, and the cookies he has helped bake are twic as good as any the bakery could produce. Perhaps he can help make the sandwiches, or cocoa, or beat the eggs for the cake.

"He would love to cut the top out of a pumpkin and hollow it out and use it as a container in which to set a bowl of flowers for the centerpiece on the table. Individual holders for the birthday size candles can be made by gluing a spool on a milk bottle top. With a little supervision the young host or hostess can paint these simple little favors.

"Another simple type of favor is a marshmallow man whose body is a whole marshmallow, his legs half marshmallows put on toothpicks, his shoes nice, fat raisins, his neck and arms raisins on toothpicks and his head a piece of marshmallow. Melted chocolate put on with a meat skewer or nut pick makes a very good face.

"For a Christmas party one can make jolly little Santa Clauses by using a red apple for the body, a marshmallow for his head, red gumdrops for his arms stuck on with toothpicks. His hat may be a red gumdrop or a cone shaped piece of paper decorated with a band of cotton batten, and a bit of cotton makes his whiskers.

"Funny animals may be made from vegetables—a potato pig with toothpick legs, clove eyes, paper ears, and a curly tail of waxed string is one of the dozen that would delight host and guests.

"There is no end to the possibilities for favors and table decorations for various types of parties if mothers will but use their ingenuity and keep in mind using simple things in a childlike way."

Beware of False Pride; It Can Ruin Romance

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Suppose you had been keeping steady company with a man for three years and you were both in love. He recently lost every dollar he had. You had a couple of thousand saved. He plans to leave and try to recoup his fortune in a distant state.

You want to marry him and try your luck with him. You feel that if he goes away now it might be goodbye forever. Would you try to persuade the man into marriage in his present financial state? You and he are both in the mid-twenties. And you cannot bear the idea of a separation, you are so much in love.

The girl whose problem is presented above says her pride keeps her from urging immediate marriage. With her faith in the man and her encouragement, she knows he must make good.

Wouldn't you be tempted to still the voice of pride and take your chances with the man? There are times in the life of a woman when pride is the least desirable of assets. Since marriage means more to her than it does to the man, letting pride intercept her chance of happiness seems the height of folly.

Where two people are engaged and marriage has been talked over, the girl is always granted the privilege of speaking her part. And the part of a girl in love and engaged is to stand by her man pretty much as would be expected of her were she married to him.

I'd vote for taking the gambler's chance, and down with pride. Anyway, your life will not be spent regretting the "hunch" you felt you should have taken.

I'll wager more romances have been ruined in the name of pride than have been helped by it. Women, all bound up with prejudices and unyielding codes, miss out on a lot of human contacts. Those women about whom people wonder how they escaped marriage or let marriage escape them nine cases out of ten could report a tale of "pride" interfering. In the more adult experience with life they live to learn that yielding to wholesome emotions is a far more profitable virtue in woman than holding rigidly to form.

Ethel Barrymore in City on Trip to West Coast

Ethel Barrymore yesterday paused in Chicago en route to the coast with her two young sons, Sam and John. The actress said that she was going to take a three months' rest after finishing 43 weeks in "School for Scandal." She was visited in her drawing room at the Union station by her daughter, Ethel Barrymore Colt, appearing in a revue in Chicago. Miss Barrymore said she would consider a proposal to co-star in a moving picture with her brothers, Lionel and John, while resting on the coast.

GRIMES SHUTS OUT OLD CARDINAL MATES, 3-0

OSKY! WOWSKY! RUSSIANS DROP HOE FOR MASHIE

Boatmen Tune Up for Volga Regatta.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—Two armies of Russian athletes, numbering 175,000 all told, marched in Moscow and Leningrad in a demonstration which apparently marks a new phase of the communist experiment. Only a little while ago the Russians, planning their own Olympic games, were partial to the more useful forms of muscular activity, such as plowing and digging and pushing the wheelbarrow, and the idea was held forth that a Russian super-laborer might swing the pick-ax or the grub-hoe just as beautifully as an American super-athlete might brandish the mashie or the 36 ounce ball bat.

In fact, the Rusisans looked upon the sporting forms of other countries as too frivolous to be worthy of a serious people, feeling that any time a Russian spent his energy running he ought to be going somewhere and that any time he took a divot he ought to plant a little wheat or a few sprigs of parsley in the hole.

How are They on Whiskers?

Now the Russians are marching in great hordes, attired in the conventional running pants and rowing shorts and all such costumes as are affected by the non-utilitarian athletes of the effete nations of the world. This suggests that the Russians are softening up and hints of a distant day when the students and the old grads of dear old Kovno Tech may be yelling oskywow-wow for their football team, in the annual big game against the hated hosts of Odessa A. and M.

The Russians tried to tamper with the fine old human conviction that any physical effort which has a useful productive purpose is work whereas the same degree of labor put forth kicking a ball or throwing the 56 pound weight is enjoyable exercise. The experiment was bound to fail and now they are holding big parades of athletes carrying not the flail, but the tennis racket.

What! No Pro-Amateurs?

It is difficult to see, however, how the Russians can reach a really high state of athletic development unless they rearrange their economic system, which does not permit the citizens to have any money. Unless the citizens have money they cannot have any amateur problem, and the history of athletics in the sporting nations of the earth proves that you cannot have an athletic program worth the name unless you have your professional amateurs. There will be no incentive for Ivar or Serge to run the verst in record time unless he can do a little something for himself in the way of expenses, and, of course, Olga and the rest of the girls, when they become proficient in tennis, will wish to leave the jute mill or the lumber camp and spend their time, with their mamas, all expenses paid, at the pleasure resorts of the Black sea.

And, naturally, they will wish to write special articles to be sold on a fifty-fifty royalty basis by the syndicate department of the Pravda. But, if they do become famous authors in the customary manner of distinguished athletes of both genders, their profits will eventually convict them of capitalistic practices and then it will be up to the soviet to take them out and shoot them for conduct inimical to the state. This would be cruel and unusual punishment even for professional amateurs.

They Ought to Have Customers.

I am wondering also how the Russians can ever hope to have a highly developed athletic program unless they also have customers, and how a people who have nothing to use for money can become customers. Experience has shown that gate receipts and public enthusiasm about sport govern one another and vice versa.

The Madison Square Garden corporation is crowding the theory a bit in demanding $23 for ringside seats at the impending Sharkey-Schmeling prizefight, but all promoters of sport events, both professional and amateur, acknowledge that the people appreciate these affairs in proportion to the price of the admission. That is why it is difficult to obtain tickets for the world series games in the U. S. A. although world series games frequently are artistically inferior to ordinary major league games which are played before many thousands of vacant seats.

Athletes Say Work Is Harmful.

The original Russian theory would have been a good one if it had worked. Under that theory every man was an athlete of some kind, whether at chopping down trees, carrying the hod or rowing the No. 6 oar in a boat on the Volga, and at the end of each day's sport he had a record of something done. But it is recognized by all superathletes and trainers that laborious toil is injurious because it tends to develop the wrong muscles for sport, and it is similarly admitted that conventional sport is bad for working people because it tends to alienate the athlete from productive labor in the spiritual sense.

This explains why there was such mournful comment about a year ago when Jim Thorpe, the old superathlete of the Carlisle Indians, was discovered laboring with a pick and shovel in an excavation for a building in California. This does seem to have been Thorpe's natural metier, but the very thought of so great an athlete reduced

MECHANIC DIES AS CAR HURDLES SPEEDWAY WALL

Harry Cox Killed; Driver Bennefield Hurt.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 25.—(AP)—Harry Cox, 28 years old, of Indianapolis, mechanic riding with Benny Benefield, 25 years old, of Indianapolis, was killed late today when the car in which they were practicing for the 500 mile race here Monday, lost a wheel on the first turn, plunged over the outer wall and struck a tree.

Both men were thrown clear of the car. Cox apparently was killed instantly.

The race car was the same one in which Joe Caccia and his mechanic were killed while practicing for the race here last year. It had been rebuilt for Benefield to drive.

First Serious Mishap of Year.

Benefield and Cox were just starting a circuit of the motor speedway track when the accident occurred. They were traveling at low speed.

As the car emerged from the first turn, it lost the left front wheel. The little speedster swerved into the lower retaining wall, then skidded to the top of the curving brick surface and plunged over the outer wall. It struck the top of one tree and crumpled against the trunk of another.

Several hours after today's accident hospital physicians reported Benefield was suffering a possible concussion of the brain, and that x-ray pictures will have to be taken before the seriousness of his injury can be determined.

Mrs. J. W. Stevens, sitting on the porch of a house within the Speedway grounds, said she saw the racer hurtle over the edge of the track. She said both driver and mechanic were tossed clear of the wreckage before the car struck the tree and fell to the ground, 18 feet below.

Chet Miller Qualifies.

The only car to qualify as a starter in the race today was that driven by Chet Miller of Detroit, who turned the ten mile speed test at 111.053 miles per hour. He was the 29th driver to meet the qualification requirements. The starting field is limited to 40.

Juan Gaudino of Buenos Aires, Argentina, the only foreign driver entered for the race, who has made several changes in his car since bringing it to the Speedway, was still uncertain when he would attempt to qualify. He said he would wait until the last minute if necessary to get the car to its best performance.

BASS DEFEATS DUBLINSKY IN LAST 2 ROUNDS

Philadelphia, Pa., May 25.—(AP)—Benny Bass, former featherweight and junior lightweight king, won a 10 round decision tonight over Harry Dublinsky, Chicago lightweight, to open the outdoor boxing season.

Britons Wreck Yankees' Hope of Golf Title

MUIRFIELD, Scotland, May 25.—(AP)—Another American quest for the British amateur golf championship failed today as the three survivors of an original force of eleven were defeated in the third round.

David Martin, California champion, on whom the greatest hopes were based, was the first to fall, and he was followed shortly by the Sweeney brothers of Oxford, Charles and Robert.

Martin played two rounds today, defeating Bernard Darwin, the English golf writer, two and one, in the morning, but losing, two up, in the afternoon to H. Shaw, a 25 year old Manchester unknown.

Weather Turns Bad.

The weather, which had favored the Americans, turned bad and Martin played Shaw in a biting wind and through occasional rain flurries.

He gained and lost the lead three times in the first nine, then fell behind at the thirteenth for the first time and couldn't recover the lost ground. He had a medal score of 82, Shaw 81.

Charles Sweeney, golf partner of the prince of Wales and captain of the Oxford team, lost to T. A. Bourn, well known English player, one up. His brother was eliminated by A. J. Peech, also one up.

British Stars Lose, Too.

The Americans were not the only ones to fall. Only one of those already selected for the British Walker cup team survived the third round. He is Eric McRuvie, the Scotch internationalist.

T. A. Torrance, captain of the English team, was overwhelmed by 21 year old Jack MacLean of Bankhead, and Lister Hartley, another of the British standbys, was eliminated by Sam McKinlay.

In the Wake of the News

ALL-TIME CUBS.

FANS continue to pour mail into this department with pros and cons for an all-time Cubs squad named in The Wake by a Helper some weeks ago. Considering the lapse of years and the many men who have played, it is surprising rather than otherwise that there are not more variations or that choice is not wider spread.

Helper A. Wright advances this: "One wonders what the outcome would be if the 1906 Cubs played the 1932 Cubs. Personally, I believe the odds would be on the old timers. At any rate, every Cub fan has among his souvenirs happy memories of those good old days and doubtless many a pleasant night's dream has included the snappy plays of 'Tinker to Evers to Chance.'

"I don't see how your original picker could have left Ed Reulbach off his first team. Reulbach was practically invincible when right and the leading National league pitcher for two years, a record Root never has established. Root is very good, but no Brown or Reulbach. As for Moran's catching ability, he never rated better than a second string catcher.

"The Cubs never had a man in the outfield who came up to Frank Schulte. He was 'Roundhouse Frank' or 'Rocking Chair Frank,' but, like Pat Dougherty of the Sox, he always delivered and his slow, lazy looking way of going after flies, with no lost motion, made his difficult and brilliant retrieves look easy."

Wake: As an old Cub fan, I've been interested in the current discussion of all-time Cub teams since 1906. Here's my choice: Tinker, ss; Evers, 2b; Grimm, 1b; Steinfeldt, 3d; Schulte, rf; Cuyler, cf; Sheckard, lf; Kling and Archer, c; Bush, Brown, Reulbach, Overall, p.

This might not be as strong a hitting aggregation as originally picked, but the fielding is so good I believe the loss would be overcome. G. E. N.

WHO'S AFRAID OF TIGERS? SOX OUT TO WIN 2 TODAY

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Morning showers and fear of later precipitation, which failed to precipitate, yesterday caused the White Sox to call off the scheduled final with the Cleveland Indians. The afternoon turned out to be perfect for baseball purposes, but the hurried action before lunch made reinstatement impractical.

The fact that the Indians will close their season here on Saturday and Sunday, July 23 and 24, may have aided the Sox nabobs in discovering excessive moisture on the grass yesterday morning, as there will be a double header on one of those dates. The Indians also will be in here for a one day stand on July Fourth, but a scheduled double header has been arranged for that date.

Indians On the Run.

Whatever may have been behind the postponement, there can be no challenge of the Sox sportsmanship in the matter. They showed in the two games played that they had the Indians on the run and demoralized to an almost unbelievable extent, especially after Cleveland's eminently talented Wes Ferrell got his ears pinned back with exceeding brutality in Tuesday's game.

The percentage was all in favor of the Sox lifting their current winning streak to five games, but the postponement will be justified, perhaps, if the Sox really turn out to be as spirited and awakened as their recent behavior has indicated. Even though the Sox have played brilliantly in their last four games, they remain well sunk in seventh place. By July 23 and 24 they expect to be up in the race and if they are, there will be great clicking of the turnstiles at a double header on either of those dates.

Two at Detroit Today.

The postponement did not cause the Sox to alter their getaway plans, and thus those of the players who care for such doings, had a beautiful day to see the hosses run. Usually ballplayers are obliged to take their racing on bad days and the relaxation under such favorable circumstances caused great elation.

While they rested yesterday, the boys were forced to look forward to extra work today, however. This afternoon they will play a double header against the Tigers at Detroit.

A double header with the Tigers is not a terrifying prospect, though for the young men still have in mind how they trimmed the Tigers last Sunday in both ends of their only 1932 double bill to date. . . .

Gregory, Fieber Ask Chance.

Paul Gregory and Clarence Fieber, who won their first American league decisions in those games Sunday, are reported to be itchy to get in against the Tigers again. But they probably won't, at least as starting performers. It has been indicated that Caraway, who was to have pitched yesterday, will start one of the games, while Ted Lyons is a good bet for the other. With warm weather Ted probably would make a much better showing than he did when he was knocked out in the second game of last Sunday's double header.

The eight day road trip on which the Sox started last night will be their last before a long June home stand. They will return on June 2 for four games with the St. Louis Browns. After the Brownies leave town the eastern clubs breeze in, in the following order:

Washington—June 7, 8, 9, and 10.
Boston—June 11, 12, 13, and 14.
New York—June 15, 16, 18, and 19.
Philadelphia—June 20, 21, 22, and 23.

June, therefore will be a great homecoming month for Sox alumni. With the Browns will be Bruce Campbell and Bump Hadley; with Washington Carl Reynolds, Moe Berg, Johnny Kerr, and Sheriff Harris; with Boston Smead Jolley, Johnny Watwood, Benny Tate, and Bob Weiland. The Yankees have no former Sox, but Joe McCarthy and Jimmy Burke will take up the slack in the homecoming festivities. None of the Philadelphia active players ever played for the Sox, but they will have an ex-Chicago delegation in Eddie Collins and Kid Gleason, both former Sox managers.

BURLEIGH GRIMES.

Where's Lina? With Dempsey, Fiance Thinks

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 25.—The old story of two men and one girl had the Hollywood film colony and the San Francisco Bohemian colony fluttering today, the two men being Jack Dempsey and Teddy Hayes, his one time trainer and close pal, and the girl being Lina Basquette, dark eyed and buxom dancer.

Dempsey disappeared from his Hollywood haunts two days ago and had a lot of fun introducing a "girl from Argentina" to friends in San Francisco on his arrival there. Close observers in San Francisco observed a remarkable resemblance to Miss Basquette, former follies dancer, film star, and widow of the late Sam Warner, film millionaire.

Mrs. Ernest Belcher, wife of the dance impresario and mother of Miss Basquette, said her daughter had gone out of town, but said she couldn't confirm reports that it was Miss Basquette who was seen with Dempsey.

Teddy Hayes, now self-proclaimed enemy of the man whom he helped train to the highest rungs of pugilism, recently came to Hollywood from New York with Miss Basquette, and their pending marriage had been reported. Hayes was known as the brunette dancer's manager. Hayes' friends here said Hayes was furious because of his belief that "Dempsey took my girl."

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—Old Burleigh Grimes, just around the corner from his 39th birthday, came back to the scene of his 1931 world series triumphs today. And today the Cardinals whom his strong right arm carried to the game's highest honors last October fell before that same arm. The champs not only fell; they withered and the Cubs, after four straight reverses, bounced out of their slump with a brilliant, 3 to 0 triumph.

The theme of Grimes' effort was revenge and he got it simply by pitching and not by snarling and taunting the enemy, as is his habit. He simply stood out there with a sort of satisfied smile and defied his one time companions to do anything of consequence to what he was throwing. How well he succeeded is indicated by the fact that of the eight runners who reached base on him, only one traveled as far as second. And in a couple of instances where the Cards seemed to be on the verge of an opening, Old Burleigh was saved from annoyance by the same infielders who of late have been tossing off victories.

Errors Help Plenty.

The Cubs themselves didn't do any vast amount of hitting, but at least they were ready when opportunity called. In eight innings they made only five hits off Paul Derringer, the long, lean right handed Kentuckian, but Paul had to contend with items for which he wasn't responsible. Eddie Delker, subbing at third for Sparky Adams, undermined his own cause with two errors. Both these were converted into runs by the simple expedient of a properly timed hit. The first two Cub tallies were accounted for in this fashion. The other was actually earned off Tex Carleton in the ninth.

What helped Grimes more than anything was two lightning double plays, both engineered by Billy Herman after spectacular stops. Luckless Bill Judges was in on these. He also was in on a few other snappy pickups of slow bounders which are so hard to handle. Except for the second twin killing, all these outstanding bits of defensive play were crammed into the first half of the game. In the last half, Grimes didn't require anything more than ordinary assistance. He finished by striking out two of the four men to face him in the ninth.

One For Our Cubs.

Derringer functioned so stylishly during the first three innings that only two Cub hits were produced and he also would have escaped in the fourth if Delker hadn't made a two base wild throw on Herman. A wild pitch put Herman on third and for a few minutes it looked as if he wouldn't travel any farther. English bounced out, Stephenson walked and Moore popped up. Grimm kept the inning from being a total loss by singling to center, Herman scoring. Hartnett concluded the matter by flying out to Frisch.

The best the Cards could do in the first two innings was a single and a walk. Both occurred after two were out so they caused no trouble. The champs came a bit closer in the third. Orsatti singled with one out, but was forced by Watkins, who was nipped stealing. In the fourth the gay Mr. Collins did the Cubs a favor by trying to stretch a single into a double with one out. He thought Moore was taking his time about making the return throw, but the Ripper now knows Moore's nonchalant movements frequently are deceiving.

The Support Sparkles.

In the fifth inning Grimes needed twenty-four karat support—and got it. Wilson led off with a single to right. Gelbert smashed a fast one toward Herman, who skidded over to his left, scooped up the ball, tossed to Jurges at second and Jurges whipped it to Grimm for a double play. Then Delker bounced a two bagger off the wall in right center. Grimes got out of this by fanning Derringer.

The sixth inning, in which the Cubs scored their second run, was strangely similar to the fourth. Delker erred

Cincinnati, O., May 25.—[Special.]—The Pittsburgh Pirates moved forward again under a first inning fusillade of hits today and captured the second game from the Cincinnati Reds, 9 to 4. The Pirates took part in a five run attack in the first aided by fumbles by Heath and Hafey. The errors put the Waner boys on base and they came home as Vaughan walked, Traynor singled, and both Barbee and Suhr connected for doubles.

Brown allowed only four hits, one less than he yielded the first time he faced the Dodgers, and struck out five. Vance was touched seven in seven innings before he was taken out for a pinch hitter, and three of them were bunched with a Brooklyn error in the second inning for three runs and the ball game.

A. A. A. SANCTIONS 100 MILE RACES AT ROBY JUNE 19

The official sanction from the contest board of the American Automobile association for the 100 mile championship races at Roby speedway has been received by Ward Beam, and he is now in Indianapolis signing drivers to appear here June 19.

The championship events mean more this year than in any recent year, as the 500 mile winner, according to the method of scoring points, cannot afford to miss competing in all other events if he wants to win the A. A. A. crown awarded yearly on points. Formerly the Indianapolis race carried enough points to enable the winner to coast through, but in the last two years the points have been reduced.

Billy Arnold, Chicagoan, who ran away from his field in the Roby events two weeks ago, packed a record crowd into the Roby track, so that now Beam is enlarging the stands in the belief that an even larger crowd will turn out on June 19.

P. WANER LIFTS BATTING MARK INTO .400 CLASS

Paul Waner climbed into the .400 class yesterday as all three National league members of the Big Six improved their batting averages. The American leaguers were idle. Waner smacked four hits in five times at bat, lifting his mark 16 points to .408. Chick Hafey and Hughey Critz each made two hits in four times up and improved their averages by four points apiece. Hafey went to .391 and Critz to .366. The standing:

Trout Get Even with Sculpins; They Eat Them

BY BOB BECKER.

The brook trout takes it on the chin from many enemies, but sometimes it strikes back and kills some of these predators. A few days ago in the upper peninsula of Michigan we saw several trout which had gotten revenge in a most satisfactory manner. They had eaten their enemies.

The victim in this case was the sculpin, a small fish which has the mean habit of raiding trout spawning beds and eating their eggs. The sculpin is a small, ugly fellow that lives in rocky streams and lakes. A trout stream is an ideal habitat for him.

They're Good Bait.

There are scores of species of sculpins in the United States, and in the north country they are a serious menace to trout. We have one or two species in Illinois. This little fish can be identified quite easily by his flat, depressed head, wide mouth, thick lips, and a tapering body.

In Canada they call the sculpin a cockatoosh and one impaled on a hook makes good bait for big trout. This is a favorite live bait for trout around the Soo.

One Gets Revenge.

We were fishing the Crow river near Blaney when we ran into the sculpin. This is a spring fed, clear water stream light in color and always cold. It flows southward to pour its waters into Lake Michigan. Being connected with the big lake the Crow is visited by rainbows and suckers in the spring. Both of these species go up stream to spawn.

For several hours in the morning we had excellent luck in the Crow—nearly all of our fish running from 10 to 12 inches in length. When we cleaned our fish we conducted an autopsy to determine on what they had been feeding. A fat 12 inch trout had swallowed a sculpin between 3 and 4 inches long.

Lane Defeats Schurz, 6 to 0; Enters Finals

Johnny Hari allowed only three hits as Lane Tech, defending champion, defeated Schurz, 6 to 0, for its second victory in the semi-final round for the Chicago Public High School league baseball championship at Logan Square park yesterday.

The victory placed Lane Tech in the finals of the north-south sectional race. It will meet Bowen, south division champion, for the right to meet the winner of the central-west zone play for the league title at Mills stadium Saturday.

Bowen Has Won Twice.

Bowen also has scored two victories, defeating the same teams as Lane. Bowen won from Schurz for its first triumph and on Wednesday overwhelmed Fenger, 17 to 0. Lane also piled up a heavy score against Fenger, winning by 17 to 1.

The finalists in the central-west sectional race have not been determined. The two undefeated teams in the zone are Crane and Lindblom, which won their first games. Harrison has been defeated twice, while Tilden has won one and lost one.

Tilden Beats Harrison, 3 to 2.

Tilden scored its first victory by defeating Harrison, 3 to 2, at Mills stadium yesterday. Two runs in the sixth inning gave Tilden victory after the teams were tied, 2 to 2.

Lindblom and Crane will meet today at Normal Park. Two other games in the central-west section will be played next Tuesday, Crane meeting Harrison at Mills stadium and Tilden facing Lindblom at Normal Park.

Lane Tech did not score until the sixth inning in its game with Schurz yesterday. Lane scored four runs on three hits in that inning. It scored again in the eighth and in the ninth. The scores:

Schurz	000	000	000—0 3 4

Batteries—Hari and Denning; Berg and Held.

Harrison	200	000	000—2 5 3

Batteries—Pichler and Karsc; Kusch and Rabets.

MORTON LOSES, 4 TO 3.

Morton High school, which clinched the Suburban league baseball championship last Wednesday, suffered its first defeat of the league season when it lost to New Trier, 4 to 3, at Winnetka yesterday. Five errors paved the way for the New Trier victory. Score:

New Trier	013	000	0—4 6 3

Grimes Shuts Out Cards to End Cubs Losing Streak

again on Herman to start the inning and English coaxed Derringer for a walk. On a wild pitch Herman reached third just as he had when he scored previously, but Wilson recovered the ball in time to throw out English at second. Stephenson grounded out to Collins, but Moore stepped in with a timely single through second and Herman scored. The best Grimm could do was fly to Orsatti.

They Only Tried.

The Cubs tried to pad their account in both the seventh and eighth innings but were snubbed in each instance. Hartnett led off the seventh with a walk but Jurges flied out, Grimes sacrificed, as a means of conserving his energy, and Frisch tossed out Richbourg. The eighth opened with Herman singling to deep short. English tried to sacrifice, but Derringer whipped the ball to second to force Herman. Then Stevie rolled out to Collins and three strikes stopped Moore.

After Delker's double in the fifth there wasn't another Cardinal hit until Gelbert blew open the eighth with a single to left. Manager Street picked Hendrick to pinch hit and the big fellow slapped a hard liner to right, but Richbourg smothered it. Then Sunny Jim Bottomley, who is in bad repute with his bosses because of his collapse as a hitter, swung for Derringer. The notable from Nokomis, Ill., banked one squarely on the nose and it was just his luck to have Herman make a brilliant pickup which led to another double play.

One More—That's Three.

Two hits off Carleton in the ninth served to furnish the Cubs with their last run. Grimm started this with a two bagger off the concrete in right center. After Hartnett had popped out Jurges singled over Frisch and Grimm scored. Jurges was nipped between first and second when Carleton intercepted the return throw.

Cubs Home for Rest Today; Meet Reds Tomorrow

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—The Cubs went home tonight and have nothing to do until Friday, when they'll tackle the Reds. Both Lon Warneke and Pat Malone will be ready to dust off the Rhinelanders.

Mayor Victor Miller of St. Louis did the talking at the plate when Burleigh Grimes received his world series emblem, a diamond studded ring. His honor talked at such length that some of the customers suspected he was out drumming up votes. Grimes also was given a large cake by an unknown admirer.

The Cardinal officials fooled everybody today. Usually they'll call off a game if they see as much as a bead of perspiration. The idea is that double headers are far more profitable than two single attractions.

Manager Hornsby made another switch in his batting order today by placing Stephenson fourth and Moore fifth. Moore lost his cleanup post because of his failures with men on base yesterday.

There were about 3,500 present today, and probably half of them were attracted by the fact that they wanted to see Grimes in an enemy uniform. And a lot of them were actually rooting for Grimes to win.

Stephenson was retired in an unusual way in the eighth. His roller went toward first base outside the foul line. Stevie stood at the plate, so Collins let the ball alone. It remained foul until within a few inches of the bag. Then it hit something and bounced into fair territory. Collins picked it up and touched the bag.

CENTRAL REGISTRATION HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL CHICAGO DAILY FEE GOLF ASSOCIATION COURSES

CHICAGO TO SEE TWO SEMI-FINAL OLYMPIC MEETS

Collegiate Winners to Qualify for Finals.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago will hold two of the five track and field meets which will qualify American athletes for the final Olympic trials at Stanford university, Palo Alto, Col., where the United States team will be named July 15 and 16. These Chicago meets are the National Collegiates at Stagg field, June 10 and 11, and the midwest semi-finals at Dyche stadium, Northwestern university, July 1 and 2.

In addition to these, Dyche stadium also will be the scene of the final American competition in the decathlon June 24 and 25. On the second day of this meet the preliminary track and field trials for Wisconsin and Illinois also will be held.

Fifteen to Qualify.

Thirteen preliminary meets, several of which have been held already, are feeders for the five semi-final tournaments. In addition to the semi-finals in Chicago, others will be held at Long Beach, Cal., July 1 and 2; Boston, Mass., June 17 and 18, and at Berkeley, Cal., July 1 and 2. This last meet is the annual Eastern Intercollegiate competition, officially known as the I. C. A. A. A., which for the first time in more than fifty years will be held outside of eastern territory.

The decision to hold the Eastern Intercollegiates was made last year and the west coast universities have appropriated $65,000 to pay the expenses of the eastern teams.

Athletes finishing first, second, and third in each event in the five semi-finals meets will qualify for the American finals. This will send a field of 15 in each contest at Palo Alto on July 15 and 16. While in theory each semi-final will qualify three men in each event, this rule may not be adhered to strictly. If, for instance, in the hammer throw, the meet at Harvard should have more than three outstanding athletes who are superior to those competing at Chicago, the numbers may be shifted so that the best are sent to Palo Alto.

Some Must Pay Own Way.

Seven thousand dollars have been appropriated to help send the athletes from the east, the central states, and the National Collegiates to the finals. This sum will take care of only 40 men. The others must depend on their clubs, universities, or their own resources to reach Palo Alto, Cal.

The final competition in the decathlon at Dyche stadium June 24 and 25 will bring together, among others, Jesse Mortensen, former intercollegiate and javelin champion, and James Bausch, Kansas university senior who won the decathlon at the Kansas relays this spring. Mortensen is favored to represent the United States in the Olympic games.

The decathlon was added to the Olympic schedule in 1912 and Harold Osborn is the only American who ever won the title. Osborn won in 1924, failing to break the existing record by 13 points. Osborn's point total was 7,710.775. The 1928 champion was Paavo Yrjola of Finland. He scored 8,056.2 points.

The American Olympic finals in the track and field events for women will be held at Dyche stadium July 15 and 16. It will bring together those who qualify in sectional meets. The Chicago preliminary, under the auspices of the Central association of the A. A. U., will be held June 18 at Ogden park.

To qualify in the preliminary meets for the semi-finals the contestants must equal the following marks:

EVENT.	QUALIFYING MARK.
100 meters	10 4-5 seconds
200 meters	21 3-5 seconds
400 meters	49 seconds

REPORT FIELDS ILL, BOUT FOR TITLE CANCELED

The welterweight title bout between Jackie Fields of Chicago, defending champion, and Young Corbett, Pacific coast boxer, scheduled at San Francisco, Cal., June 25, was reported called off last night. It is rumored Fields will enter a hospital in a few days to undergo an operation for appendicitis.

Ray Alvis, manager of Fields, last night denied that the title bout and nontitle match with Teddy Yarosz, scheduled at Pittsburgh, Pa., next Tuesday night were canceled. However, he said Fields is suffering from a severe pain in his right side and is under observation.

"We'll know positively what the trouble is today," Alvis said last night. "Jackie had a pain in his side and my physician said it was appendicitis, but we don't know for sure yet. The fights with Teddy Yarosz and Young Corbett have not been called off so far as I know."

TENNIS PLAYER WITH ONE HAND WINS STATE TITLE

Lexington, Ky., May 25.—(AP)—Joe O'Brien, 17 years old, who has only one hand, today won the Kentucky High school tennis championship in straight sets.

Representing Highlands High school of Fort Thomas, Ky., O'Brien defeated Charles Coleman of Danville, Ky., High school, 6-2, 6-0, 6-2, in the singles final of the state meet.

Klein's 80 Wins Low Gross in 40 and 8 Golf

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A steady downpour of rain failed to halt the charge of Voiture 220 of the Forty and Eight in its second monthly golf tournament of the season yesterday at the Big Oaks Golf club. More than sixty members of the ex-service men's organization answered the call at the first tee. The next tournament of the Forty and Eight will be held next month at Olympia Fields, under the auspices of Judge William Helander of the Municipal court.

Herbert H. Klein of Westmoor won low gross honors for the day with a card of 38—42—80, while Dan Davis of Bunker Hill came in for second with 41—43—84. Terry McGovern, former professional at Columbian, won the low gross prize for guests with 36—38—74, while Jack Ebert shot 45—45—90 for second.

Edward J. Barrett, state treasurer, won a prize for having the most sixes, his card showing seven of them. His gross was 97. Other prize winners for the greatest number of duplicate figures were Judge Helander, nine 5s; Judge Harold O'Connell, three 9s; Paul Armstrong, Cook county commander of the American Legion, ten 8s, and Mike Wisch, ten 7s. Sig Nothelser, chef de gare of the Forty and Eight, won high gross prize with a 63—71—134.

The North Shore Golf league, composed of eight leading north side clubs, will open its 1932 season at Sunset Ridge Country club today.

The Blue Island Golf association will stage a Prosperity day program at the Oak Hills Golf club tomorrow.

The Illinois qualifying trials for the Professional Golfers' association championship will be held at the Glen Oak Country club on July 27. All of the state's leading pros are expected to compete for places in the field, which will start at St. Paul in August. The number of places allotted to each district will not be known until after the entries, which close on July 15, are filed. There will be 100 places open for the finals at St. Paul. Tom Creavy, the young star who won the title last year at the age of 20, will be the only American professional exempt from qualifying in the sectional trials.

Chick Evans, Warren Dawson, Don Armstrong and Fred W. Smith will officially open the Big Run golf course, 135th street and Archer avenue, at 2:30 Sunday afternoon.

Antlers Country club, for six years a private club on the Butterfield road in Wheaton, has gone daily fee. Competitive events over the holiday week-end, with a blind bogey and flag tourney will open Antlers' program.

Among the entertainments being planned by the Chicago press committee for political writers covering the national political conventions here will be a golf tournament at Olympia Fields on June 20.

If Harry Cooper, professional at Glen Oak, had stuck to golf instead of changing to baseball for a day he wouldn't be nursing a broken bone in the fourth finger of his right hand now. Harry accepted a challenge by Spec Hammond, his assistant, to captain a caddies' baseball team during a lull at the Glen Ellyn course, and during the game came down with a broken finger after trying to stop a line drive. It's on the mend now, however, and Harry hopes to be in action by the holidays.

The Flossmoor Country club will hold its formal opening this week-end. According to Harry H. Hadsall, president, the course was never in better shape. Many events are planned for a three day celebration, including a dinner dance Saturday night. Among events planned each day are a fifty-four hole medal play event with full handicap prizes for classes A, B, C, and D, match play against par, 18 holes, and ball sweepstakes. Events for women including a mixed foursome Memorial day afternoon are planned.

Who's Who in Women's Golf

Betty Eckersall

MRS. JULES LE GRAND.

One of the outstanding women golfers of the Mission Mills Country club is Mrs. Jules Le Grand, who comes from Virginia. Mrs. Le Grand hits a tee shot consistently 250 yards and putts with an accuracy that is the despair of her opponents.

MRS. JULES LE GRAND.

Although she is not the club champion, and has been in competition for only two years, her game has progressed so well that she intends to compete in the main Chicago women's district events. She was the runner-up for the club championship last year, losing to Priscilla Carver, 3 and 2.

Mrs. Le Grand's 4½ year old daughter already is developing into quite a golfer, her mother says.

Mrs. Le Grand first became interested in golf four years ago at the insistence of her husband. Perhaps because she has seven brothers she prefers to play golf with men.

"They do not seem so upset over trivial things as some women players, yet take their golf more seriously," she says. "In this way I can concentrate on my game. The majority of men players are so superior to the women golfers that one is able to learn about the game just by watching them. Then again, men are better losers than women."

Mrs. Le Grand has diversified sports interests. She is fond of horseback riding, basketball, tennis, baseball and bridge. If her golf continues to improve she will enter the Women's National tournament at Salem, Mass. in September.

Everett Signs for White City Bout Monday

The card of supporting bouts for the Tuffy Griffith-Jack Roper fight at White City Monday night has been completed by Promoter Mique Malloy. Buck Everett, Gary, Ind., heavyweight, who recently lost a decision to Jack Kilbourne, will box six rounds with Pat McLaughlin. Solly Dukelsky, west side, faces Joe Barlow, south side, in a four rounder at 150 pounds.

Paul Pantaleo, who opened the outdoor season last year against Griffith, will appear on this year's opening show against Charlie Young, south side heavyweight. Other four round fights will be: Jimmy Lundy, Rockford middleweight, vs. Johnny Panek, South Chicago; Virgil Bemi vs. Art Donovan.

Although the Stadium has announced a show for June 6 Nate Lewis, apparently, is having difficulty arranging a card. Originally he hoped to sign Tuffy Griffith against King Levinsky or Mickey Walker. Mique Malloy had the same ideas for a White City fight, but neither has reached base. Levinsky seems headed for Reno and a Fourth of July engagement with Max Baer.

Walker, apart from his engagement with Paulino, prefers to mark time, until he finds out what will happen after the Schmeling-Sharkey championship fight.

Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion and Pinky Mitchell, ex-junior welterweight titleholder, may meet in an outdoor bout at Milwaukee this summer. The Arcadia Athletic association of Milwaukee is seeking the match. Al Tuso, president of the association, and Joe Kraus, the club's matchmaker, were in the loop yesterday with Pinky and his brother manager, Billy.

Leonard is making a comeback in eastern rings. Pinky is ready to make his first start after three years of retirement. He has been training for the last six months. Like Leonard he will make his comeback as a middleweight.

Jack Roper, who is making his home in Chicago, and Andy Kellett, heavyweight champion of Indiana, have been matched by Bud Tarpoc for a ten round bout at Terre Haute, Ind., June 6. Prince Saunders, south side lightweight, and Tracy Cox are to sign today for a bout at Indianapolis June 7.

Purdue Names Harmeson to Varsity Staff

Lafayette, Ind., May 25.—[Special.]—Glen Harmeson, one of the greatest all around athletes in Purdue's history and for the last two years head freshman football and basketball coach of the Boilermakers, has been appointed assistant varsity football coach, to succeed Frank Carideo, Director of Athletics N. A. Kellogg announced today. Carideo resigned recently.

Harmeson took part in all major sports except track during his three years of competition and won nine major letters in football, basketball and baseball.

Played with Champion Team.

He was a member of the undefeated championship football eleven of 1929 and the 1.000 per cent Big Ten championship basketball five of 1930. In baseball he had few equals as a fielder and was one of the heavy hitters of the conference.

As a half back in football Harmeson was noted for his brilliant broken field dashes and cut backs through tackle and around end and was a good forward passer.

No Successor Named.

Harmeson's promotion to the varsity football staff creates a vacancy as head freshman football coach, which is expected to be filled within the next week or ten days.

OSKY! WOWSKY! RUSSIANS DROP HOE FOR MASHIE

And Boatmen Tune Up for Volga Regatta.

to such a state sent a thrill of horror across the country. The fact that one of the best human bodies ever produced in the United States was being used for practical purposes in industry was regarded as news by all the press associations, as, in fact, it was.

The boom was on at thetime and if Thorpe had been an alumnus of some other school some committee undoubtedly would have found him a job in Wall street. But Carlisle was abolished many years ago and there are no Indians in the brokerage business. So a Hollywood producer, with great humanity and public spirit, rescued Thorpe from a fate which was worse than death by giving him a job as an extra in a movie.

Rah! Rah! Dig Those Spuds!

When the Russians announced their Olympic program I had my doubts that the thing contained the elements of success as a spectacle. It is a beautiful and stimulating thing to watch a young, strong heavyweight fighter beating an old, weary hulk on the liver or the base of the brain, knocking him feeble-minded or tearing him apart inside his body, but there is no entertainment in watching the best farmer on earth dig a row of potatoes. The crowd at a prize fight will rise and cheer a knockout, but I cannot imagine a crowd, even in Russia, where overcoats are near and dear to the people, watching a tailor make a coat and yelling, "Yea, Cohen; stitch that hem!"

STRONG FIELDS TO RUN IN SPRINTS AT QUADRANGULAR

Two sprint races will be held in the quadrangular track meet which brings Marquette, Chicago, Loyola, and Illinois State Normal together on Stagg field Saturday afternoon. In the list of sprint stars is Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette, the former Tilden Tech athlete, who has twice tied the world's record of :09.5 this season.

Metcalfe may have to equal the world's record again Saturday, for he will be running against Johnson of Illinois State Normal, who last week ran a :09.6 race in the 100 yard dash and did :21.2 in the 220. Jack Tierney, Metcalfe's team mate, holds the central intercollegiate record of :09.8 in the 100 yard dash and the 220 mark of :21.2. John Brooks, Chicago's all around performer, who can run fast time in the dashes and low hurdles, is another of the strong field in the two sprints.

HORSES OBSERVE CHICAGO DAY AT WASHINGTON PK.

Adobe Post, Dyak Come Home in Features.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Chicago owners were jubilant at the end of yesterday's racing program at Washington Park. They were shouting raucously and talking out of turn now and then.

For Adobe Post had won the Chicago Heights Handicap in the Blue and White jacket of Dick Morris of the Board of Trade, and a few minutes earlier Dyak had carried the white, red dotted silks of Fred A. Burton, one of our coal barons, to victory in the Michigan Avenue purse.

Both triumphs were rolled up in easy fashion. Dyak won the Michigan Avenue, which was at a mile, by five lengths, and Adobe Post conquered his rivals, some very stylish 3 year olds, by the same margin, and was galloping easier than any of them when the finish came. This struggle was at seven furlongs.

Carried Chicago Money.

The hundreds of Chicagoans in the big crowd had sort of an inkling that this was to be a Chicago day, and they backed both the Chicago horses stoutly. Dyak paid $6.12 for a two dollar ticket. Adobe Post was an odds-on choice, paying off at $2.98.

The folks who backed Adobe Post put in a very miserable minute and twenty-five seconds while he was scoring his victory. For in the early part of it Adobe Post was so far behind he seemed hopelessly beaten. But that was only the early chapter of the story.

On the lower bend, as he turned into the home stretch, Adobe Post began to eat up the ground. He raced from last place up into a contending position, and a sixteenth out drove on past Brave and Bold and Blackstrap, which had been fighting it out for the lead. From then on it was a cake walk. Adobe Post had too much class and too much speed.

In this struggle he looked as if he might be a great route runner. But he has always been showing such signs. Even Mr. Morris has thought now and then that Adobe Post might go on a route. But he's got to prove it first.

Dyak Also Comes Up.

Dyak also had to come from far back, for Astute, Thunderstone, and Sophist went out in the early part of it and raced each other into the ground. Dyak was moving along in good stride, but not very fast, back in sixth place. At the head of the stretch Jockey Bill Fronk came through on the rail and saved a lot of ground. Then Fronk sent Dyak after the leaders. He mowed 'em down one after another until he had taken the lead less than half a furlong from the finish line.

Dyak was full of run now and sprinted away from his rivals and was leaving them farther and farther behind him as the official numbers were hung up.

The Chicagoans celebrated again at the end of the sixth race, when Mrs. Emil Denemark's Waterport got up late to win a mile and a furlong selling plater number and rewarded backers at $46.12.

Some lucky folks backed Waterport, but Mr. and Mrs. Denemark left the track sore at heart. They didn't think the son of The Porter-Barleywater had a chance, so they didn't wager on him.

But that's the way it goes in horse racing.

GOOD AT PUZZLE? $5,000 SWEITZER HANDICAP IS ONE

The Field's Big and They Are All Good.

The renewal of the $5,000 Sweitzer handicap at Washington Park on Saturday most likely will develop into a right merry contest with the outcome a Chinese puzzle some 60 hours before the running.

The field will be large, there is no doubt about that. If Gallant Knight had remained here to try for the prize there might have been but a few starters. But with the Knight at Belmont awaiting the Suburban handicap, a field of a dozen or more is in prospect for the mile and a furlong struggle.

The prospective starters, all of them on the job and training nicely, follow:

Polydorus	Uncommon Gold
Mania	Dr. Freeland
Burning Up	Street Singer
Spanish Play	Prince Atheling
Wotan	Ervast
Scimitar	Plucky Play
Gallant Sir	Cousin Jo
Pittsburger	Canfli
Marmion	Lady Broadcast.

Roy Carruthers, general manager for the Arlington Park Jockey club, spent yesterday afternoon at Washington Park, Arlington Park stakes, the final closing for which is on June 1, occupied his time. He says the entries indicate every top notch horse in the country will be in action at Arlington Park during the July meeting.

Ballygran, the son of Bubbling Over which ran such a sensational race on opening day, beating the Kentucky star, Red Whisk, wasn't so highly regarded earlier in the season, as he wasn't nominated for any of the Washington Park 2 year old stakes.

Suntica, the Kentucky Oaks winner, worked a slow mile over the Washington Park course yesterday in 1:46. She was cantering all the way. This daughter of Sun Briar has developed so rapidly that many give her a chance to take the 3 year old filly crown away from the eastern stars, Top Flight and Evening.

Col. Matt J. Winn gave his first expression yesterday regarding how things are going at Washington Park. "We are pleased with the patronage," he said. "Our crowds are as large as last year and the enthusiasm indicates there is more general interest in racing than ever before. The betting is off less than 10 per cent."

One of the big golf clubs on the far south side placed an order for 60 boxes for the American Derby yesterday. This was the biggest order received for the renewal of the old fixture on the afternoon of June 18. It indicates the 3 year olds are as much of a gate attraction as ever.

The Tulip purse, which features this afternoon's Washington Park program, brings together seven candidates for the Illinois Oaks. In the overnight betting I Say, owned by Albert Sabath of Chicago, ruled as a slight favorite over Princess Camelia and Late Date.

MILLS CONFERS WITH CHICAGO TRADE LEADERS

BY O. A. MATHER.

Chicago financiers and industrialists yesterday joined the movement launched by the federal reserve board a week or so ago to study ways to expand credit for commercial purposes and thus stimulate business and relieve unemployment. Following a meeting in the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank building, which was attended by Ogden L. Mills, secretary of the treasury, and Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, a committee of 11 leading financiers and business leaders was named to investigate ways in which additional bank credit can be safely used.

Seldom has such a representative group of Chicago leaders been assembled. They represented most of the large and varied interests of the middle west. They had been called together by Jamaes B. McDougal, governor of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank, to hear Secretary Mills and Gov. Meyer explain the views of the reserve board, which has sought to encourage credit expansion through heavy buying of government bonds by the reserve banks. But it also was the purpose of the meeting to let the government officials gain first hand knowledge of the views of these middle western men.

Leaders at Meeting.

Attending the meeting were Rufus W. Abbott, chairman Illinois Bell Telephone company; Sewell L. Avery, president, Montgomery Ward & Co. and U. S. Gypsum company; Eugene J. Buffington, president, Illinois Steel company; D. A. Crawford, president, Pullman company; D. F. Kelly, president, The Fair; Alexander Legge, president, International Harvester company; John McKinlay, president, Marshall Field & Co.; Frederick H. Scott, vice president, Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co.; George E. Scott, president, American Steel Foundries; William M. Scudder, vice president, American Radiator and Standard Sanitary company; W. B. Storey, president, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad; John Stuart, president, Quaker Oats company; Gen. Robert E. Wood, president, Sears, Roebuck & Co.; George M. Reynolds, chairman, Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company; Frederick H. Rawson, chairman, First National bank; Stanley Field, chairman of executive committee, Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company; Malvin A. Traylor, president, First National bank; Albert W. Harris, chairman, Harris Trust and Savings bank; Solomon A. Smith, president, Northern Trust company; Philip R. Clarke, president, Central Republic Bank and Trust company; and Eugene M. Stevens, chairman, Chicago Federal Reserve bank.

In addition to these Chicagoans the following attended: Charles W. Nash, president, Nash Motors company; John Ballantyne, director, Detroit branch, Chicago Federal Reserve bank; E. R. Ratberg, Waukesha, Wis., banker; George J. Schaller, Storm Lake, Ia., banker, and Max W. Babb, president Allis Chalmers Manufacturing company. The last three men are directors of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank.

Meet in Morning.

This group of men gathered shortly after 10 o'clock in the directors' room of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank. While they were assembling, the train bringing Secretary Mills and Gov. Meyer arrived from Washington and accompanying them was Mr. Traylor, who had attended a meeting of the federal advisory council. At the bank, Gov. McDougal introduced the government officials and then for more than two hours they debated what might be done to help business in the middle west.

The upshot of the meeting was the naming by Gov. McDougal of the committee to study conditions and work out plans for credit expansion. Mr. Avery was appointed chairman. The bankers selected were: Mr. Reynolds, Mr. Traylor, Mr. Harris, Mr. Clarke, and Mr. Smith, while the business men were Gen. Wood, Mr. Stuart, Mr. Kelly, George A. Ranney, vice president and treasurer, International Harvester company, and Fred W. Sargent, president, Chicago and North Western railroad.

"No Rabbit in Hat."

While the general meeting was held behind closed doors, Secretary Mills explained some of its purposes when he stepped from the train.

"I have no magic in my brief case and no rabbit in my hat," he said. "We are all interested in expansion of credit and revival of business. We have no set program. We shall discuss the general situation with Chicago business men and tell them how things look to us in Washington and what the prospects are with reference to balancing the budget. We shall discuss the open market policy of the federal reserve system with a view to making it as effective as possible.

Mr. Mills elaborated on these themes at the meeting, according to the bankers who attended. He explained that a similar committee named in New York a week or so ago had divided into four subcommittees, one of which is forming a banking pool to support the corporate bond market, another is investigating industrial enterprises that would benefit by additional credit, still another is making a study of ways to aid the real estate bond situation, while the fourth group has arranged for advancing a large credit for New York housing improvements.

May Consult New York.

It was the opinion of several of the conferees that the Chicago committee initially will consult with the New York committee as a guide to what may be done in the middle west, although it is not expected the activities will be the same because conditions vary. It is expected the Chicago banks, however, will join the New York group in its plan to support the bond market.

Young Group to Lend First to Aid Homes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—The first step in the plans of the Young committee for making effective the credit expansion program of the federal reserve system, will be to place funds in the hands of the saving and loan associations of this state. That will enable such groups to refinance the maturing mortgages of the small home owners.

The funds are to be supplied through the subscription by a group of leading banks to bonds of the Savings and Loan bank of the state of New York, the central bank of the savings and loan associations.

Exact Sum Kept Secret.

The exact amount of the funds to be subscribed was not revealed. It was said the bond issue would be of an "open end" variety, that the Savings and Loan bank could sell the securities to the subscribing banks from time to time as it required the funds.

The Young committee of twelve held a meeting today at the Federal Reserve bank. There additional plans were considered and turned over to a subcommittee for study. One of these plans involves a proposal backed by a number of important industrialists, including some who are members of the Young committee, for the increased use of trade acceptances in financing domestic business.

The proposal, which is credited to Irenee Du Pont,, vice chairman of E. I. Du Pont De Nemours & Co., is for the large industrial concerns, such as the General Electric company, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, and the General Motors corporation to buy and sell not for cash or through the use of open book credits, but by means of trade acceptances which could be discounted in the open market and thus supply a new source of negotiable instalments of credit to form the basis of bank investments and to enlarge the amount of bank credit outstanding.

Foresee Several Advantages.

The advantages of the plan, apart from its value in supplying a more attractive outlet for bank funds than the customary loans against accounts receivable according to its sponsors, are manifold. A trade acceptance, it is pointed out, is a much more satisfactory obligation for a creditor to hold than an ordinary commercial loan. It provides documentary evidence of a type which in the event of insolvency of the debtor has been held by the courts to entitle the lender to a preferred claim.

In addition, it is said, the use of trade acceptance credits rather than open book credits would benefit the ordinary business man by restraining him from injudicious purchases. A clever salesman, it was said, usually can oversell the average small business man, but the latter, if he had to sign an acceptance, obligating him to pay at a specific date, each time he made a purchase would be inclined to go more cautiously.

Tells of Loan Plans.

The announcement of the plan for providing funds to take care of distressed home mortgages was announced by William H. Judson, president of the Savings and Loan bank.

"It is the aim of the bankers," he said, "to use the facilities of the Savings and Loan bank of the state to provide savings and loan associations with additional funds that may enable worthy families, having adequate security in the ownership of their home premises, to be relieved from the anxiety of threatened foreclosure in those cases where financial ability to meet the savings and loan payments on a new mortgage contract is in evidence.

"This program should make further opportunities for employment in many communities in the state.

APPROVE ISSUE OF $70,000,000 IN INSULL BONDS

Authority was granted the three large Insull operating properties yesterday to issue a total of $70,000,000 in bonds. The companies are the Commonwealth Edison company, Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, and the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois. Permission to sell the bonds was given by the Illinois commerce commission.

Under the order the Edison company has power to issue $18,000,000 first mortgage 5½ per cent bonds and the Public Service company may sell $32,000,000 6½ per cent bonds. Peoples Gas proposes an issue of $20,000,000 first mortgage 5½ per cent bonds.

Details of the public offering of the bonds have not been made public. It was learned, however, that Halsey, Stuart & Co. will head the syndicate marketing the issues. It was stated in well informed quarters that reports of change in the Insull banking alignment were unfounded.

How England Deals with the Postal Savings

BY SCRUTATOR.

The British treasury's announcement that holders of national savings certificates, expiring this spring, may retain them, irrespective of the date of purchase, for another ten years emphasizes the permanent, or perhaps "frozen," nature of the British government's nationalized savings system.

Great Britain's idea of running a government bank is to accept deposits use the money to help finance the government and then hope that conditions never get so bad that depositors start clamoring for their money.

Owes Almost 3 Billions.

The British treasury, according to the most recent figures, now owes British depositors in postoffice banks and holders of savings certificates a sum of almost three billion American dollars even at the current rate of exchange.

The postoffice savings banks of the United Kingdom at the close of 1930 had a combined deposit liability of £290,235,000. In addition the treasury had outstanding £371,602,258 of national savings certificates and owed £124,500,000 in accrued interest on these certificates.

The postoffice savings banks have been functioning since 1861. They pay 2½ per cent interest on deposits in good times or bad, and when they don't cover expenses the treasury makes up the losses out of the taxpayers' money in the consolidated fund.

The national savings certificates represent another scheme which has the double object of encouraging thrift and providing the government with funds. These certificates resemble our war savings stamps and were invented in 1915 when the British government needed money to finance the war.

Sound as the State.

Investments in postoffice savings banks and the certificates are as sound as the state, but their supposed liquidity is largely a myth. No reserves are set up against the deposit liability as in the case of a private joint stock bank. Back of each deposit is an I. O. U. John Bull's name is signed to it, but it is still just an I. O. U.

In 1910 the United States monetary commission, under the chairmanship of Nelson W. Aldrich of Rhode Island, after an examination of the English banking system, reported to congress that the affairs of the British postoffice savings banks had been so conducted that they had "reduced their finances to a position which would be considered one of insolvency if any private or joint-stock company had to acknowledge such a state of affairs."

"The funds of the savings banks," declared the London Economist, Nov 19, 1904, "have been consistently used in recent years to finance capital expenditures under special acts and thus have been made to minister to national extravagange."

No Extra Precautions.

The depositor has this to consider. The treasury borrows his money, repayable on very short notice, but it makes no provision to meet extraordinary demands for withdrawal. It makes long term investments out of short term borrowings. It takes the money as a banker, but treats the money as an investment. Should a run occur the treasury, having spent the depositors' money, would have to stall them off until it could raise sufficient funds through taxation or other borrowings.

The attitude of public officials was summed up by a witness appearing before a parliamentary committee on savings banks some years ago.

"It is wholly unnecessary, a wholly useless and wasteful amusement to keep cash reserves," he said. "A real crisis in which consols were unsalable, or unsalable to the extent required, would have to be met in quite another way. I suppose the bank act would have to be suspended and the government would give I. O. U.'s in the shape of bonds."

This would mean that the nation would fund its savings bank debt either permanently or for a period to suit its convenience.

FORD MOTOR REPORTS A $53,586,000 LOSS FOR YEAR OF '31

This was revealed today in a statement filed by the company with the Massachusetts commissioner of corporations and taxation. This annual statement provides the only insight into the operations of the Ford company. Since its stock is held privately, the company is not obliged to reveal its balance sheet except in this single instance.

The statement filed today showed that the profit and loss surplus at the end of last year was $655,302,247. This compares with $708,888,247 at the end of the preceding year.

Ford's 1930 operations resulted in profit of $44,460,823, or $257.52 a share on 172,645 shares of $100 par stock. In 1929 the profit was $81,797,861, or $437.79 a share.

These figures do not take into account such dividends as may have been paid to the three owners, Henry Ford, Mrs. Henry Ford and Edsel Ford.

Profits in France.

PARIS, May 25.—Net profit of the Ford Motor Company of France for the year ended Dec. 31, 1931, was approximately 15,516,000 francs after expenses and depreciation, against 35,127,000 in 1930.

General Motors Report.

New York, May 25.—(AP)—Alfred P. Sloan Jr., president of General Motors corporation, in his complete report for the first quarter, said today the slow business of the period was accentuated "in an important business tendency to delay purchases pending the product announcement of an important manufacturer in the industry."

While the General Motors head did not name the Ford Motor company, its principal competitor in the low priced field, this comment recalled the late announcement of the new Ford models. Mr. Sloan also pointed to the "lack of confidence that has existed ever since the industrial depression set in," as a factor in the decreased buying."

The balance sheet as of March 31, as was indicated in the preliminary report, showed cash account, including United States governments and other marketable securities, of $186,777,639, against $205,029,119 three months previously, and $179,133,114 on the same date of 1931. Net earnings, as previously reported, were shown at $9,693,027, equivalent after preferred dividends to 17 cents a common share, as reduced from $28,999,409 reported for the like quarter of last year.

Gold Exports $20,420,600 in Single Day

New York, May 25.—(AP)—Gold exports today totaled $20,420,600, with $7,349,500 to France, $6,032,700 to Switzerland, $3,500,400 to Belgium, $1,850,000 to Holland, $1,188,600 to England and $500,000 to Germany. Imports of $89,500 from Mexico were reported.

Loss to this country's monetary stock of gold, occasioned by the above exports, was reduced by $3,500,000, representing a decrease in earmark account.

Dollars weakened in the foreign exchange market today. European gold currencies were particularly strong, the most striking gain occuring in Dutch guilders which rallied 8 points. French francs were up 3-16 of a point to 3-95 cents and Swiss francs rose 5. Reichsmarks recovered part of their recent loss. Sterling strengthened 1¼ cents as further gold was taken for shipment to England. Cables closed at $3.69¾, Canadian dollars rallied.

Dollar Declines in France.

PARIS, May 25.—(AP)—The dollar, which has been quoted at 25.335 francs the last few weeks, closed today at 25.325, the lowest quotation in some time and just above the gold point. Exchange dealers said there had been some buying of the pound but little demand for the dollar, chiefly because of uncertainty about the course congress will pursue regarding the balancing of the budget and other financial matters.

Britons Debate Inflation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, May 25.—The inflationist group in the house of commons—opponents of the return to the gold standard—led by Sir Robert Horne and supported by Winston Churchill, L. S. Amery, and R. J. G. Boothby, took active part in debate tonight on the clause in the finance bill dealing with exchange equalization.

This clause authorizes the Bank of England to use $750,000,000 on a loan to prevent undue fluctuation of exchange. Inflationists strongly oppose the return to the old gold parity. They support the cause of the producers as against the deflationist policy of the Bank of England.

Several members took exception to the clause providing for the winding up of the equalization fund not later than six months after the date when the gold standard act of last year ceases to have effect. They argue that the clause clearly contemplated a return to the gold standard.

Might Restore Gold.

Maj. Walter E. Elliot, financial secretary of the treasury, endeavored to pacify his critics by the assurance that the government has no intention whatever of going back to the gold standard—not, at any rate, "while gold prices are behaving as they are doing." That, however, did not satisfy his critics.

Sir Robert Horne suggested that the government consider the whole question again before the bill has reached the report stage. Many believed that, some day, by international action, when the proper stipulations are made, they might be prepared to return to gold, but no one believed they would go back to gold parity as it stood in September last year, he said. Eventually, Maj. Elliot said, the whole question will be reconsidered.

RAILWAY LOANS MAY RUN OVER BY $30,000,000

Finance Corp. to Get More Calls.

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—E. G. Buckland, president of the Railroad Credit corporation, told the interstate commerce commission today that his organization may be $30,000,000 short of enough money to meet the financial needs of railroads this year.

Buckland, who has charge of collecting receipts from freight rate increases authorized by the commission and lending the money to railroads to meet their interest charges, testified before a group of commission examiners.

They were investigating the situation in a number of states whose regulatory bodies have refused either to authorize increased rates within the states or omitted certain items from the increases.

The States Affected.

The states included Arkansas, Idaho, Kentucky, Louisiana, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Texas, Utah, Arizona, and Wisconsin.

Hearings already have been held in each of the states affected. The railroads' side of the dispute was presented today.

"The interstate commerce commission's estimate of yield from the increased rates during the 15 month period was between $100,000,000 and $125,000,000," Buckland said. "The estimate contemplated that the increases would be applicable not only to interstate business but also to all traffic handled in intrastate business. The estimate did not contemplate the drastic reductions in railroad traffic thus far occurring in 1932.

"Our present estimate is that the 10 month period [Jan. 4 to Oct. 31, 1932] will make available for purposes of the plan the approximate sum of $60,000,000.

"It was estimated before the rates went into effect that the interest requirements of the carriers would amount to about $60,000,000.

"Due to unprecedented conditions, this sum has been increased to approximately $100,000,000. According to present indications, the corporation will receive approximately $30,000,000 less than needed, thus having a deficit of approximately $30,000,000, where it had been estimated that at the end of the year the corporation would have a surplus of approximately that amount."

The Pennsylvania Railroad company today asked the Reconstruction Finance corporation to begin advancing a $27,500,000 loan on June 1 instead of Oct. 1, as provided by the interstate commerce commission.

A. J. County, financial vice president of the Pennsylvania, said this was requested "owing to changed conditions which have made it impracticable to make a public offering of securities

Middle West Protective Group Forms

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Organization of a protective committee for the common stock holders of the Middle West Utilities company was announced yesterday by representatives of several important groups holding large blocks of the stock.

Martin Lindsay, Chicago investment counselor, is chairman of the committee. Other members are M. L. Emerich, resident partner of Hallgarten & Co.: Harry C. Edmonds, representing estates with important holdings, and Howland S. Davis, partner of Blake Bros. & Co., New York, who represents the Holland interests.

The committee, it is understood, has assurances of deposits of more than three million shares at the present time. The committee will also solicit deposits of shares from the independent holders. New York and Chicago banks holding substantial blocks of shares are supporting the committee.

Main Depository Here.

The Northern Trust company has been named Chicago depository. A depository in Amsterdam, Holland, has also been named and it is expected that a New York depository will be designated later. The law firm of Taylor, Miller, Busch & Boyden is counsel for the committee.

In a communication being sent to stockholders the committee states that it cannot at this time recommend a course of action. Such recommendation will be made to depositing stockholders upon completion of an examination of the financial condition of the company, the letter says.

Expenses Also in Doubt.

"It is impossible to know at this time what the total amount of expenses and costs of the committee work will be," the communication adds. "The deposit agreement provides that the committee may raise additional necessary funds either through borrowing on the deposited stock or by assessment, but not by both. If the committee borrows, it cannot assess and, if it assesses, it cannot borrow. If it borrows it charges only the deposited stock and not the depositors. If it assesses, depositors who so desire may withdraw their shares without payment of the assessment or any further sum."

Formation of the committee was made, it was stated, at the request of some of the largest holders of the common stock. While the committee gives no definite figure of the number of shares it starts with, it states that assurances make certain the deposit of several million shares.

New York Stock Exchange to Remain Open Saturday

New York, May 25.—(AP)—The New York Stock exchange will remain open on Saturday, the board of governors decided today. A petition, signed by nearly 600 members, requested the closing of the exchange on that day to extend the Memorial day holiday.

Senate Stock Mart Probe Will Resume on June 3

Washington, D. C., May 25.—(AP)—Resumption of the senate's stock market investigation was postponed today until June 3. Chairman Norbeck of the banking committee said "several big cases" would be ready for presentation to the committee by then.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—The share market had another bad day of it. Whether the selling, which went on without interruption in all departments, was due primarily to an increase in the many anxieties under which the financial community has been laboring, or whether it indicated an overstrain of pocketbooks worn down by the long depression no one could say. Whatever its cause, however, it bore the list headlong to newer and yet lower levels for the major decline and recorded a fresh array of losses of from a fraction to 3 or 4 points.

Moreover, instead of slackening with the further display of weakness, the volume of trading increased, which caused a wagging of heads in quarters given to gloomy prognostication. Brokers said that short selling as well as liquidation appeared to be gaining.

May Be Forced Selling.

One explanation of the selling was that many investors who have found their incomes sharply reduced by loss of dividends in the last year or six months are now being obliged to sacrifice their holdings in order to raise funds to meet taxes and other expenses. Short operations are believed to be largely due to growing discouragement over the failure of congress to do something to pull the country out of the hole—instead of jockeying precious time away at so much per diem.

Measured by one old and widely consulted set of averages, the industrial group sold today at the lowest level it has reached since 1904, the big gloom year when U. S. Steel common touched its all time low of 8. However, some of the most prominent issues of the lot, including both U. S. Steel and American Can, succeeded today in keeping slightly above their minimums for the year. U. S. Steel held at 27½, as against its bear market low of 26¾, and American Can at 35½, which compares with its low of 34¾. Losses among some of the less conspicuous issues, nevertheless, were not to be overlooked. Lorillard gave up a point and Reynolds B was driven to a new low. The cigaret production figures recently an-

CALL CRITICISM OF BOND BODIES UNCALLED FOR Investment Bankers Rap Pooling Plans.

BY AL CHASE.

Most of the criticism of bondholders' protective committees is uncalled for, according to a report made public yesterday by the real estate securities committee of the Investment Bankers' Association of America, which declares that the work of the members is thankless and offers little remuneration. Pooling of bond issues in trusts or other forms was criticized and the efforts of committees to build up management departments were praised in the report.

It declared that the outstanding defect in past real estate financing has been the inflexibility of this kind of financing and adds that the private investor will avoid real estate bonds for some time to come. The report also points out that the system must be radically changed.

Urges Lower Wages.

The investment bankers' committee also declares that before there can be any appreciable activity in new building construction wages of the building trades must be reduced in line with commodity prices. It also adds that excessive taxation and unemployment have forced into foreclosure many real estate bond issues that normally would have weathered the storm. Louis K. Boysen, vice president of the First Union Trust and Savings bank, Chicago, and former president of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' association, is chairman of the real estate securities committee. In his absence the report was presented by Charles B. Crouse of Detroit.

Finds Them Honorable.

"At present the members of the Investment Bankers' association are not interested in new real estate financing, but many are interested in the subject from the standpoint of liquidating the issues sold or participated in by them in prior years," the report states. "There has been considerable uncalled for criticism of bondholders' committees. The real estate securities committee has investigated a number of these committees and generally finds them composed of honorable, well intentioned men who are doing their best to serve the bondholders. The work is thankless and difficult at best and offers very little remuneration for the members of such committees.

Well Known Methods.

"There are well set methods of procedure for reorganization or foreclosure which form the framework on which bondholders' committees build their plans. We believe that each property presents its own problems which should be carefully analyzed by those engaged in the reconstruction work and that each property should be worked out separately. We do not as a general rule favor combining a number of bond issues and properties into a common pool. Each bondholder is entitled to his proportion of the security covered by his bond, unshared with other bondholders, irrespective of whether the result be for the better or for the worse. The liquidation and distribution of properties put into a common pool will take expensive years of accomplishment.

Praises Management Efforts.

"While we do not believe in pooling bond issues and properties, we are thoroughly in accord with the efforts of committees to build up management departments and through them systematize records and costs and cut down operating expenses by purchasing coal and supplies in wholesale lots."

RAILWAY LOANS MAY RUN OVER BY $30,000,000

at this time at a reasonable cost." The money will be used for construction.

The letter asked that the Finance corporation advance $5,000,000 on June 1, $9,000,000 on July 1, $4,500,000 on Aug. 1, $4,000,000 on Sept. 1, and $5,000,000 on Oct. 1.

"The company undertakes," County continued, "to raise an additional $27,500,000 necessary for its 1932 construction work program by sales of securities through banking and investment channels before the end of the year, if business and financial conditions make it possible to do so upon reasonable terms."

The commission last week authorized the Pennsylvania to morrow $27,500,000 from the Finance corporation, the money to be available Oct. 1. The company was to finance itself until Oct. 1 through private channels.

The Pennsylvania railroad also asked the interstate commerce commission to permit it to unify the operations of six of its subsidiaries as a means of economy.

Cotton Belt in Trouble.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 25.—The St. Louis Southwestern railway [Cotton Belt] stood tonight on the verge of receivership. An insufficient number of bonds has been received to make operative a refinancing plan on which continuance of the road in its present status depends.

In this situation, John R. Rueney, vice president of the line, began intensive efforts by telephone, telegraph and personal solicitation to obtain further deposits. These continued to trickle into the Cotton Belt offices until a late hour.

Officials Are Puzzled.

Officials are unaware whether another twenty-four hours would see their property headed for receivership. The refinancing plan is designed to meet the maturity of $20,727,750 of 4 per cent consolidated bonds on June 1. Holders of the securities have been offered one-half cash and one-half general and refunding 5 per cent bonds in lieu of a full cash payment giving effect to one extension of time granted, the period for deposit of the securities expired yesterday.

The plan originally required the assent of 100 per cent of the Cotton Belt bondholders to the plan but when the time for deposit was extended, this stipulation was lowered to 90 per cent. Only 85 per cent had been deposited at the close of business yesterday, although Daniel Upthegrove, president of the company, had issued on Tuesday another in a series of warnings that failure of the plan meant receivership.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, May 25.—Raw sugar was quiet today, and, with buyers and sellers apart, no sales were reported. The former seemed willing to pay 2.58c for sugars in nearby positions, but there was nothing available below 2.60c, and it developed that late yesterday an outport refiner bought 80,000 bags of Porto Rican for June shipment at 2.60c. In the absence of any new developments in the spot market trading in futures was of limited proportions and price movements were narrow and irregular, with the market closing 1 point lower to 1 point net higher. All told, only 8,650 tons changed hands. Prices follow:

STOCKS CARRIED TO RECORD LOWS IN WALL STREET

Another conspicuously weak spot was provided by New York traction shares, which slid off without exception to new low territory as unusually heavy selling continued to take its toll of values. The street heard that estate liquidation was to blame for much of the selling, particularly in Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, although the fact that the company has a sizable maturity to meet in August may be causing some worry. Darkening prospects for the city unification plan, due to the scandals brought out by the Hofstadter graft investigating committee's inquiry, is another factor on the wrong side of the account.

Rail and Utility Pressure.

Pressure against the public utility and railroad groups was as relentless as ever and most of the leaders found lower ground more comfortable before the day was over. American Telephone was one of the many to hit a new bear market bottom. Among the no friends at all, rails losses of 1 to 2 points or more were suffered by Atchison, Union Pacific, Norfolk and Western and others.

Preferred stocks generally were in disfavor, those of Baldwin Locomotive, New York Steam 6s, Public Service 7 per cents, United Biscuit, Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies and others hitting the toboggan for losses of anywhere from 2 to 9 points.

Coppers, motors, chemicals and oils fared poorly and the food stocks had Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 5,000; hogs, 23,000; sheep, 13,000.

The pressure of receipts proved too great for the hog market yesterday and prices were shoved back 5@10c after a fair amount of business had been transacted on a firm basis early in the day. Receipts ran up to 27,000, exceeding all expectations. They were the largest for Wednesday since Feb. 3 and above 1931 and 1930. The average for Wednesday during the last six weeks stands at 17,000. The extreme top for load lots was reduced 5c to $3.45, only a few head reaching Tuesday's peak of $3.50.

Strength in packing grades and the better action in hogs selling at $3.25 and above held the general average for the whole day steady at $3.25. Large local houses were aggressive again, handling more than 12,000 head, including 5,200 bought here at $3.25@3.35. Reports from other markets, however, were discouraging. Four relatively low points in the west sold extreme top hogs at $2.90@2.95.

Cattle Are Stronger.

A stronger undertone was in evidence in the cattle alleys yesterday when supplies fell short again. Arrivals at the seven leading points at 24,000 were second smallest for Wednesday in two months and below any corresponding day in recent years. Trading got under way earlier in the forenoon and a good clearance was affected before noon.

Prices ruled strong to 25c higher, best grades selling at $6.50 and above showing the full strength of the market. A range of $7.00@7.25 took a big share of the day's supply of choice steers, with more cattle at $7.00 and above than at any time since early in the month. The market as a whole was highest in about three weeks.

Two lots, a total of 113 steers, averaging 1,140 lbs and 1,236 lbs topped the market at $7.50. Not many sales were made between $6.50 and $7.00, but numerous 700@1,100 lb common to medium grades of steers sold at $5.40@6.25. A fair showing of the poorest ranged downwards to $5.00, but prices below that line bought only ill bred stock carrying little "kill." Heifers shared in the activity and sold to better advantage, while cows were firm. Calves sold steady to strong.

Lambs Advance, Too.

Better action featured the lamb market, too, and prices ruled strong to 25c higher. There was an earlier clearance of all good slaughter stock. Aged wool lambs sold at $5.00@5.25, with most shorn stock at $4.75@5.00. Three car loads of lambs without fleece also reached $5.25, the day's peak. Spring lambs from the western coast brought $6.00@6.25, but buyers insisted on slightly heavier "sorts."

Natives cashed largely at $6.00@6.25, with one full car load to a city butcher at $6.40. The shortage in the old crop of lambs swung some orders into the sheep market for light ewes, resulting in the first upturn in aged sheep in three weeks. Ewes averaging 95 lbs sold up to $2.25.

OCTOBER EGGS FIRMER

Bullish storage news brought support into October eggs on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday and prices moved up ¼c. Butter came back from an early fractional loss, closing unchanged. Selling pressure was heavy in October eggs at the opening, new selling appearing, but later in the session when the storage figures arrived new buying entered and carried prices back. The storage movement inward in the four markets was sharply less than last year, the shortage gaining by 16,000 cases. Butter reports also were bullish. The shortage was increased 250,000 lbs in the four markets. Sales: Butter, 25 cars; eggs, 82 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 3 cars. Prices follow:

MEN

PERMANENT, IMMEDIATE POSITIONS ARE AVAILABLE AT OUR WEST SIDE BRANCH OFFICE TO MEN WHO ARE QUALIFIED TO LEARN HOW TO SUCCESSFULLY REPRESENT THIS COMPANY.

These positions pay $5,000, $6,000, $7,000, $10,000 and more a year regularly to men who learn how to do this work successfully.

1931 was our biggest year. 1932 will be our third consecutive record sales year. The reasons for this unique record are: 1. Our men are taught in a practical manner how to do this work. 2. They are honorably treated. 3. Our product is so revolutionary in its service superiority that it is changing the course of an entire industry. 4. The present and potential market is absolutely unlimited.

The product itself reveals a picture which the prospect can never forget, and an imitable method of presenting it is now being introduced with dramatic effect. Applying this method of work, C. J. Erckman, a former supt. of bldg., earned $46 his first 28 days, while another new man in our West Side office, Stanley Laszewski, a former health inspector for Cicero, earned over $45 his first two days in the service. Wm. Anderson earned over $90 the same week and H. W. Sprague, formerly in the insurance business, made $115 and R. C. Allen, previously in the radio business for years, earned well over $200 for the same week. Throughout the entire country men are making more than they ever made before as clerks, salesmen, bookkeepers, mechanics, engineers, etc., due to the amazing and compelling value they can offer in this new Electroluxe product (not refrigeration).

The work is not "easy," yet it is not difficult. Average men master it by long, steady application to it and really study and practice to acquire skill. Immediate earnings to more than meet your living expenses are the rule before any one made how to do the work successfully and apply themselves earn regularly from $5,000 to $12,000 a year.

If you are qualified to learn this work, the opportunity is permanent and unlimited. There is no investment, no deposit, no charge for instruction.

These positions are for responsible, adaptable men who live in the West Side of Chicago, or in Will or Kankakee county. Apply in person at once, Thursday morning, 9 to 12, suite 11-14 Austin-Madison Bldg., 5967 Madison street.
